CITY MOURNS LOSS OF CITIZEN

DEATH OF MRS. J. S. BAKER REGRETTED BY ALL

Funeral Held From Home at 2:00 p. m. Today—Business Associates Act as Escort

The death of Mrs. Martha R. Baker, which occurred at Miami, Fla., shortly after noon on Friday, January 13th, where she and her husband were spending the winter, has reached the sympathetic heart of Charlevoix and brought genuine sorrow and a direct personal loss to every home in the city.

Mrs. Baker had been in poor health for the past three years or more, but was able to be about most of the time until late in the fall of last year when her condition became such that she was confined to her room a greater portion of the time. About a month ago she with her husband and nurse, went to Miami, in hopes that a change of climate would be beneficial. Little change was apparent, however, and she continued to fail until the end came on Friday.

Deceased was born November 24, 1865, in Exeter, Ontario. Her early girlhood was spent there. When still only a child she moved with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Elston to Muskegon, Mich., and later to suburban Grand Rapids, where her parents conducted a small tavern. Later she returned to Canada where she received her education.

On October 11, 1888, she was united in marriage to John S. Baker of Charlevoix. Two daughters were born to this union, Martha, who died in infancy, and Doris, now Mrs. Arthur L. VonDolke, who besides her husband survive her.

In 1889 she began her active business career and with her husband engaged in the implement business under the name of J. S. Baker & Company, their location being on Clinton street, just west of the present County Bank building. This business was continued for about ten years.

She began her career in the hotel business on April 20, 1899, when ground was broken for the erection of what is now known throughout the entire country as the Charlevoix Beach Hotel. The building was finished and ready for occupancy in two months and eight days, the formal opening occurring July 2nd, 1899. The season could not be well termed a success, as the hotel contained but fifteen rooms and one bath, there being no office, a desk in the corner of the dining room being utilized for this purpose. The dining room at that time has seating capacity for 72 people only, and the hotel was given but little support the opening year.

The Elston Hotel, now Hallett's Inn, was opened the same date under the management of her father, R. W. Elston, and Mrs. Baker assumed charge of the business the second year, the Beach being under the management of Effie Clayton during the summer season. Neither of the two hotels were favored with business during this season, they being filled to capacity but one night only.

The third year after the Beach was built, it was sold to Mr. and Mrs. James Noble, who conducted it for one season. In the spring of 1902 after a winter spent in Oregon, Mrs. Baker repurchased the Beach and has since owned it. In 1904 the building was enlarged, the roof raised and housing capacity practically doubled. Since this period each year has increased the popularity of the Beach.

Six years ago the final addition was added to the Beach, making it seven stories in height on the lake frontage, containing in all 216 rooms, 86 baths and a dining room with a seating capacity for 400 guests, including the fourteen adjacent cottages.

Mrs. Baker did not confine her business activities alone to Charlevoix. One winter she managed a hotel of 320 rooms in Chicago, and the venture proved a financial success.

She also owned and managed Baker's Inn, now the Hotel Charlevoix, for several years. She spent twelve winters in Florida, the last seven prior to the present season in conducting the Hotel Granada in St. Augustine, Fla.

During the past two years Mrs. Baker had in mind further improvements to the Beach Hotel, blue prints and plans having already been made which would, when completed, result in the addition of 135 more rooms and baths, a dining room with seating capacity for seven hundred people, a tea room which would seat 200 guests, and the installation of a large pipe-organ in the Casino. Had not her death occurred, the improvements would have been completed.

C. A. C. MEETING WELL ATTENDED

WORKING COMMITTEES NAMED FOR PRESENT YEAR

Bureau of Information to be Continued in Charge of Asst. Secretary—Visitors Present

The Charlevoix Association of Commerce met Friday evening of last week, and after dining and the usual preliminary skirmishes, had the pleasure of hearing W. L. McManus and Frank Quinn, guests from Petoskey.

These affable gentlemen, both members of the Northern Michigan Board of Trade, and in whose behalf they are working, have prepared a skidway upon which we were tentatively invited to cast our advertising funds with assurances that in due time there would be issued from Petoskey a booklet of "The Region of the Straits of Mackinac." In this booklet Charlevoix would occupy a place in proportion to her financial interest.

Doubtless the further development of this section as above mentioned is a good idea, but whether or not Charlevoix desires to be big-brothered by Petoskey is another matter. Petoskey is centrally located, it is true, and our guests spoke entertainingly of the historical interest of the Straits of Mackinac and of the future of the embraced region in general, both as a watering place and agriculturally.

Ray Hamilton gave an excellent short talk on the regatta situation and R. V. Otto said he believed that the conditions here were unsurpassed for production of the finest fruits and a wide range of farm products, requiring only the right kind of publicity to attract farmers—the country would hold them, once here.

Rev. H. R. E. Quant, the new pastor of the Methodist church, put his first impressions of Charlevoix in most attractive form. He was a good speaker and was eagerly followed.

Others gave short talks on various topics, which greatly enlivened the meeting.

The lease on the building occupied by the Information Bureau has been renewed and will again be in charge of Miss Addie Holley, assistant secretary of the association.

Working committees of the association for 1922 were named by President E. B. Ward as follows:

Executive
J. L. Crane, Charles E. See, W. W. Mitchell, R. F. Sloan, W. H. Miller, Robert Bridge, E. B. Ward (ex-officio), P. D. Campbell (ex-officio).

Membership
P. D. Campbell, Secretary.

Reception
Judge F. W. Mayne, Lisle Shanahan, Ira Adams.

At the regular hour President Ward rose and moved to adjourn. The ladies of the O. E. S., as usual, served the supper to about 60 members and guests, and this means the food was good and the service was faultless.

Business Meeting and Supper
The members of the Masonic Building association will hold their regular annual meeting next Tuesday evening, January 24th, at the Masonic Temple. Supper will be served at six o'clock to the members and their wives, followed by the business meeting and a social evening. All members are requested to be present.

Thompson Open To All Comers
Challenges Any Michigan Man to Fight at 118 Pounds
Earle Thompson of Central Lake, a new comer in the bantam weight class, issues a challenge to any man in Michigan to meet him, regardless of location.
Thompson's fighting weight is about 118 pounds, and those who have seen him in action predict a surprise for the man who faces him. His home is in Central Lake and while in the army he fought many of the best and made a very creditable showing.

REPORT OF PROBATE COURT

WORK OF 1921 OUTLINED BY JUDGE S. A. CORELL.

Eighty-eight Cases Commenced Exclusive of Juvenile Division—$346.93 Inheritance Tax

Report of the Probate Court of the county of Charlevoix for the year ending December 31st, 1921. Eighty-eight proceedings have been commenced in said court during the year exclusive of the juvenile division and are as follows:

Forty-four intestate estates have been commenced, seven of which have been the short method by the determination of heirs. Eleven wills have been admitted to probate during the year. Nine guardians appointed for minors and one guardian for a mentally incompetent person. Five children and two adult patients have been sent to the University hospital at Ann Arbor for treatment. In every case the patients have been greatly benefited except one. In that case the patient is not discharged and is to be hoped that some good may yet be done. No fatalities have occurred during the year.

One patient admitted to the Michigan Farm Colony for Epileptics at Wahjamega, Mich., seven children placed in Charlevoix county homes by adoption. During the year the administration of thirty-seven estates has been closed and the administrators discharged.

In this connection, I desire to say, to administrators where the soldier's bonus is the entire property of the estate, that it is necessary to file final account and have that account passed upon by the court and an order made assigning the residue of the estate.

However, if our national Congress should pass an act making an allowance by way of bonus to the soldiers and the same made payable to the administrator where the soldier is deceased, it is not advisable to close the administration until that is received.

Nine investigations as to sanity with the result that seven persons were found in need of hospital treatment and admitted to the state hospital at Traverse City. One petition dismissed and one patient died before the hearing.

Nineteen children have been before the court on charges of delinquency. Most of the charges were for minor offenses and the cases disposed of by placing on probation under certain restrictions and have worked out satisfactory. One boy sent to the Industrial school at Lansing. No girls committed to the Industrial home at Adrian and but few girls have been before the court during the past year.

I am glad to be able to make so favorable a report for the children of the county at a time when a wave of juvenile delinquency seems to be sweeping over the entire country and our national authorities are considering measures for its prevention.

Thirty children classed as dependents have been before the court and today we are caring for twenty-two children under the juvenile court act, commonly known as the "Mother's Pension," at a cost of $42.00 per week or $2,184.00 annually.

Three estates have been subject to inheritance tax and the tax determined and paid which amounted to $346.93.

ONE HUNDRED

GUESTS ATTEND

Friendship Banquet at Congregational Church Tuesday

One hundred guests attended the Young Peoples' Friendship banquet at the Congregational church Tuesday evening in the church parlors. The tables were tastefully decorated with poinsettias and green vines. An orchestra composed of young men gave several pleasing selections, Helen Mason two readings, Eleanor and Cordelia Kelderhouse a vocal duet, followed by a short address by the pastor, Rev. C. W. Long, on the "Value of Friendship."

The young people are to be congratulated upon the success of the evening for the interest manifested for the advancement of young people's work in and for the church and for the cultivation of friendship for each other and for the Master of Friendship.

The L. O. T. M. will hold a book sale, Saturday, January 28th, at Mason's Dep't Store. adv 312

LEGION HOLDS A SNAPPY MEETING

Prepares to Kick Up Some Dust During Coming Months

"A Community Building for Charlevoix," will be the slogan, for the next few months at least, of Leslie T. Shapton post, American Legion.

Last Monday evening the post headquarters saw the snappiest meeting held in Charlevoix for a long time. A large portion of the membership was present and from the interest manifested it becomes apparent that it takes only some such action as that of a community building, something which Charlevoix as a whole will derive great benefit, to get these young men out with their shoulders to the wheel.

No answer has as yet been received from Attorney General Merline Wiley relative to the obtaining of the city owned property at Bridge street and Belvedere avenue, although it is expected by next week.

Membership fees for 1922 are coming in fast. Come on, you eligibles. We need you. Hand in your two bucks and a half to Leo Powers or Edward Edwards.

Leslie T. Shapton post is going to kick up some dust during the present year. Come on now, everybody. "A Community Building for Charlevoix."

NEWBERRY GAINS RIGHT TO SEAT

VOTE IN FORD DISMISSING CONTEST 46 TO 41

Vindication of the Michigan Senator Comes After Long Fight—Begins Active Work

After three years in the courts and in the investigating committee of the United States Senate, Truman H. Newberry of Detroit, Friday was declared entitled to a seat in the senior body by a vote of 46 to 41. At the same time the Senate went on record against the excessive use of money as being harmful, in an amendment offered by Senator Willis of Ohio.

The final vote on the adoption of the majority report of the investigating committee, came Thursday evening, and was preceded by several speeches both for and against the report.

Senator Newberry has taken very little part in the deliberations of the Senate since the matter was taken up by the investigating committee, and will now enter upon the active discharge of his responsibilities.

DEATH TAKES JOHN O'NEILL

HAD RESIDED IN CHARLEVOIX FOR 41 YEARS

Funeral Service Held from St. Mary's Church Saturday—Will be Missed by Relatives and Friends

John O'Neill, aged 74, one of Charlevoix's pioneers and most estimable citizens, passed away at his residence on Dixon avenue, late Wednesday afternoon. Mr. O'Neill, although physically inactive for a number of years, was mentally active and able to converse with members of his family almost to the time the final call came.

John O'Neill was born in Nurey, Ireland, August 16th, 1848. When five years of age he came to Brooklyn, N. Y., with his parents. Five years later the family moved to Washington Island, Wis., which place was their home until 1880, when they moved to Beaver Island. Here he lived for about two years before coming to Charlevoix in 1882.

He was united in marriage September 17, 1871, to Miss Marietta Weaver at Fort Howard, Wis., who died September 13, 1921. Deceased is survived by one son, John O'Neill, Jr., and two daughters, Mrs. Joseph Howard, of Charlevoix, and Mrs. Emory Pierce of Sault Ste. Marie, besides two sisters, Miss Margaret O'Neill, a teacher in Milwaukee 12th street school, and Mrs. Mary Gilger, of Green Bay, Wis.

Mr. O'Neill was one of Charlevoix's substantial and reliable business men. He enjoyed the friendship and confidence of all who knew him and his death is learned with the keenest regret by the entire community. He entered the fishing business in the spring of 1884 at Washington Island, Wis., where with his five brothers built the first steam fishing tug on fresh water. When he became a resident of Charlevoix he entered the employ of the late Hon. John Nicholls, of the Charlevoix Lumber Co., as master of the tug Minnie Warren, towing logs from Pine Lake to the mill. Later he purchased the tug and again entered the fishing business, which in time grew into one of the largest in northern Michigan. At one time he operated three tugs, the Minnie Warren, J. W. Parmelee, and G. R. Green. This business was continued until failing health forced him to retire.

He had always been an unusually active man, taking great interest in the development of the territory in which he lived. Not one of his acquaintances but feels a personal share in the grief which his death has caused, not one but finds it hard to reconcile the taking of a fine citizen and a loving father and advisor.

Funeral services were held from St. Mary's church Saturday forenoon at ten o'clock. Interment in Catholic cemetery.

Kerosene and Coal.

Kerosene contains more heating energy than coal when considered on a weight basis. A pound of kerosene contains about 19,000 heat units, whereas a pound of high-grade coal contains about 15,000. The cost of the various fuels for heating purposes depends largely upon the relative supply.

A Flying Furnace.

The average meteor when first seen is about 80 miles above the surface of the earth, and disappears from view at 30 miles. Thus, it travels 50 miles before the atmospheric friction burns it up. This friction, it is reckoned, raises it to a temperature of something like 3,000,000 degrees.

Substitute for Glass.

A new substitute for glass or for lacquer has been invented in Germany. It can be cut with shears or with a knife and, when heated to more than 100 degrees Centigrade, it forms a kneadable mass which resumes its previous hard state on cooling. It is known as "celion."

Two Jugular Veins.

There are two jugular veins on each side of the neck. The external jugular veins are just beneath the skin and convey the blood from the external portions of the head and neck to the heart, while the internal jugular veins carry the blood from the lateral sinus to the heart.

Blinded Goldfish.

The naturalist Ogneff kept goldfish for three years in absolute darkness, taking care to give them plenty of room and plenty of food. The result was total blindness; even the rods and cones of the retina disappeared.

Coconuts as Money.

Coconuts are the common form of exchange among the natives of the Nicobars. For instance, a box of matches is worth 20 coconuts, while for needles the price is one coconut each.

Amateur Farmer's Error.

One reason why a town man sometimes fails at farming is because he thinks more of the picturesque woods and rocks on his place than of the ground that's suitable for corn.

The Opposite Perhaps.

"Hard work will kill no one," declares a literary editor. Most people, of course, prefer an occupation with a spice of danger about it.—London Punch.

Keep Horse Racing Clean

Parry F. Powers, president and manager of the Northern District Fair, is in favor of clean horse racing as an attraction at Michigan fairs. He defeated racing at a recent meeting of the Michigan Association of Fairs held in Detroit. "We are united in our efforts to keep horse racing a clean sport. We want to hold contests for the contest's sake and to eliminate the betting wherever possible. If the breeding and showing of fine horses cannot be developed without betting, I say: let it go. Keep it a clean sport, or drop it entirely," said Mr. Powers.

An exceptionally rich bed of marl has been uncovered by the Moore brothers, Harry and Morris, on their farm at Fern Lake, nine miles west of Traverse City. The Moore property adjoins the Armour estate, near Forest Lodge. A special device, consisting of a scoop and slide is used to remove the marl from the lake bottom and load it directly into wagons.

Some Bank Balance

According to a story printed in Detroit papers Henry Ford is today the richest man in the United States, his holdings being estimated at more than a billion dollars. His bank balance yesterday was reported more than $120,000,000. Mr. Ford says his company pays out a half million dollars a day in wages and three quarters of a million dollars a day for materials. Ford says his cash balance is only sufficient to run his company about 100 days. He is anxious to get control of Muskegon Shoals water power plant and other water powers in the United States.

Employ Ex-service Men

When the firm of Hall & Son at Traverse City start cutting ice they will employ as many ex-service men as possible. Cuyler Hall has informed Bowen-Halliday post, American Legion. Mr. Hall has asked the Legion for a list of veterans out of work and Mose Champney, acting as commander of the post, now is making a canvass of the number available. Investigation has revealed that there are now more ex-service men out of work in Traverse City than has been believed generally and several of these men are reported to be in great need of fuel and provisions for their homes.

Will Improve Conditions

The proposed soil survey of the state, declares John A. Doalle, director of the Michigan department of farm development, will improve conditions in the sale of farm lands and should therefore have the earnest backing of all honest real estate dealers. This is in line with the principles of all modern business. In times past, transactions in farm lands have been conducted sight unseen, the would-be farmer knowing nothing of the nature of the soil in the tract he bought, the dealer sometimes knowing little more or, knowing more, unfortunately keeping his knowledge to himself. The result has been that the farmer who wanted to raise corn found himself in possession of a piece that was fit only for potato culture, and one who wanted to raise potatoes in possession of a piece that would support nothing but trees—or nothing at all. This is just as bad business as if a dealer should sell a man a touring car when he desires a truck, or a grapefruit when he craves a peck of beans. In automobile and grapefruit transactions the customer can judge what he is buying or, if he can't the seller can and does trustworthily inform him. The time has come when it must be so in the real estate business; and, with soil survey maps in the hands of business-like dealers, it very soon will be.—Detroit News.

Just another report of a case in Charlevoix. Another typical case. Kidney ailments relieved in Charlevoix with Doan's Kidney Pills.

I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and a few boxes which I bought at Metcalf's Drug Store, cured me up in great shape. Doan's are a good remedy and I am glad to recommend them."

AT THE MOVIES

Enid Bennett has another of those wistful young wife roles which she made popular in "Stepping Out" in her latest Thomas H. Ince picture, "Hairpins", coming to the Palace Theatre next Wednesday. Matt Moore is the leading man and Fred Niblo directed the picture, which is a Paramount Artcraft. It is the appealing story of a household drudge who took a lesson from her husband's stenographer and blossomed out as a drawing room favorite. C. Gardner Sullivan wrote the story.

"Primpton! Primpton!" One lone passenger stepped off the 5:42 accommodation. Under one arm she bore a bulging telescope; under the other a wire dress form.

She had come to sleepy, creepy old Primpton to find a home but remained to give it the shock of a century—all because of a love charm! Wanda Hawley in "The Love Charm" at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday.

Tracing Origin of Billiards.

Billiards is believed by some to have been brought from the east by the Crusaders, while others claim an English origin for it and find it allied to the game of bowls. Still others assert that the French developed it from an ancient German game. It seems pretty certain that the first person to give form and rule to the game was an artist named Henrique Devigne, who lived in the reign of Charles IX. One writer sees in billiards the ancient game of pallemaille played on a table instead of on the ground, and this is a reasonable assumption.

"Ye Actor."

"Pa, what's an actor?" An actor, my boy, is a person who can walk to the side of a stage, peer into the wings at a group of other actors waiting for their cues, a number of hored stage hands, and a lot of theatrical odds and ends, and exclaim: "What a lovely view there is from this window!" Petticoat Lane? At least in our own humble dome of thought, from Hallett's Inn to the drawbridge shall hereafter be known as Petticoat Lane. It seems entirely in accord with the traditions of a summer resort's shopping district. What say!

A friend of mine writes that cemetery officials are fighting the order of a western city to move their burying ground—a grave situation.

YOUNG BLOOD TO THE FARM

One of the great laments in agriculture has been the tendency of the young to leave the farms and seek the towns. Now the tide has begun to flow the other way, and agriculture is in a fair way to get the young blood which it needs.

A grange lecturer recently told his hearers that he had noted a marked "back to the soil" movement. What struck him particularly was the high percentage of young people who were taking up and starting to develop abandoned farms.

This is very likely true in many states, and it is one more proof of the sense, intelligence and courage of the country's young men and women.

When the war disrupted the lives of our young Americans, they assumed its burdens with a will and a responsibility beyond their years. They are adapting themselves to the necessities of after-war adjustment with the same energy and efficiency. They have seen the war-blown town bubble burst, and have vision enough to believe that in the next few years the soil will have its inning. As a result of their sturdy enthusiasm both the farms and the young people are likely to prosper.

THAT FEDERAL BONUS

Believing that perhaps some opposition to the federal bonus for soldiers is due to misapprehension, the American Legion has started an educational campaign to acquaint the public with its true objectives.

The soldiers who advocate the bonus wish first to emphasize that it is sought not as a "sentimental" recompense but as an "economic" one, the service man having been shut off during the war from contact with industrial life, and having suffered much since his return from the processes of reconstruction which have made it difficult for him to catch hold or catch up. They wish, too, to have the fact noted that the proposed bonus is not confined to a lump cash payment, but may take any one of five forms, under the proposed legislation.

The measure gives the war veteran his choice of cash payment, paid up 20 year endowment insurance policy, vocational training, land settlement or aid in acquiring a home or farm. If the money payment is chosen it will not be paid in a lump sum to be squandered at once, as opponents to the measure have prophesied. It will be paid in small regular installments over a term of months. It is said that a canvass of the men indicates that the paid-up insurance endowment will be the most popular.

It is only fair that both those who favor and those who oppose the federal bonus should be thoroughly familiar with what is proposed, and the Legion's publicity campaign should be useful, alongside of current criticism, in forming a correct estimate of the situation.

In Russia prices are 52,800 times higher than in 1914, says Ekonomichesk Zhizn. We take it that trouble makes even a microbe articulate.

FIST FIGHT ENDS WITH STABBING

Merton Barnes Uses Knife When Worsted in Encounter

Merton Barnes, age 18 years, was brought before Justice Stites Saturday, charged with assault, and upon pleading guilty, was sentenced to spend 90 days in the county jail.

The trouble took place Thursday night about nine o'clock, when Barnes and a young lad named Reuben Hull, aged 15 years, got into an argument which ended in a fist fight. Barnes, from all reports, was getting the worst of the encounter, and drew a jack knife, stabbing Hull four times, two of the wounds being of a serious nature.

EVEN A PRINTER BECOMES PEEVED

Reply to Local Doctor was Pointed and to the Point

Charlie Harris of Forth Worth, Texas, a friend of Mr. Nubblers in the printing business, got slightly peeved at a letter from a doctor who wanted him to run several thousand letter heads, different sizes, different grades and different colors, and wanted the printing form held standing. So Charlie took his typewriter in hand and wrote:

"Am in the market for bids on one operation for appendicitis—one, two or five inch incision—with or without ether—also with or without nurse. If appendix is found to be sound, want quotations to include putting same back and canceling the order. If removed, successful bidder is expected to hold incision open for about sixty days as I expect to be in the market for an operation for gallstones at that time and want to save extra cutting."

The Literary and Sewing Club will hold their annual basket picnic in the lower auditorium of the church Friday evening, January 28th.

Friday this week is the day we go to Traverse City to hear the Bishop. Bishop Henderson is outstanding among his contemporaries. He is recognized as the greatest leader the church has developed in the last decade. It will be worth all your energy and expense to listen to this great man.

This Sunday is our "Total Enrollment in Sunday School Day." Every teacher is urged to see that all are present. This task belongs to each teacher. If your class is not interested it is up to you.

Hear the sermon next Sunday morning. The text: "Where is Thy God?" This vital question will be discussed in "Where is Thy God in the Natural Order of Things." In the business world, in your home life, in individual experience, in practical responsibility, and in religious belief. Think about this and ask yourself, "Is the God of all the earth my God?"

The chorus choir is called to meet at the parsonage on Friday evening. This invitation is extended to all who sing and would like to help in this way. Bring your musical instruments and make a glad noise unto the Lord.

Sunday evening service will take the form of a union service held at the Congregational church under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. Speaker Mr. Simpson, recently delegate to Washington, D. C., in the interests of prohibition.

Barnard services are conducted for the best interest of the whole community. The Sunday school furnishes instruction for young and old. Come out and study these splendid lessons.

At two o'clock you have the opportunity for preaching service. Six days in the week are spent in secular getting. The other day ought to be set apart to get close to God.

Old Japan.
"If old Japan is to be found anywhere it is in Kyoto—in spite of its huge factory chimneys. In Tokio, complete European dress is common in the streets, but in Kyoto it is the exception. Tokio also wears boots, but Kyoto is noisy with rattling night and day. Not only are there countless shops in Kyoto, rising up to porcelain, curving, serious, bronze, old armor, and so forth, but no matter how ramshackle the normal stock in trade of the other shops, a number of them have a little glass case—a shop within a shop, as it were—in which a few rare and ancient articles of beauty are kept. A great deal of Japan is expressed in this pretty custom.—E. V. Lucas."

Best Way is to Change Ground Upon Poultry Run, Especially if Fowls Are Crowded.
Changing the ground upon which poultry run is the best means of controlling intestinal worms in poultry, because the worms or eggs of the worm will stay over in the ground from one season to another, especially if the poultry is overcrowded.

The difference between a precious stone and a common stone is not an essential difference—not a difference of substance, but a difference of the particles—the crystallization. In substance the coal and the diamond are one, but in form and effect how widely they differ. The pearl contains nothing that is not found in the coarsest oyster shell. Two men have the same thought; they use about the same words in expressing them; yet with one the product is real literature, with the other, it is a platitude.—John Burroughs.

MAKING CANDIES

There is no gift that is given or received with greater pleasure than a really fine box of home-made candy. It is both pleasant and economical to make if in the home. In fact, home-made candy is welcome anywhere and at all times.

It is unnecessary to have an expensive equipment, unless one wishes to go into the business professionally.

There are those who like grainy candies, but a really fine candy should be as smooth as velvet, as well as colored appropriately, flavored and decorated. Only vegetable color should be used in foods, and it is procurable in most places.

Creamy candies, such as cream candy, fudge, fondant and the like, should never have a trace of grain, or crystals, however small.

Cream candies are kept from granulating by the addition of cream of tartar or a few tablespoonfuls of white corn syrup. Rapid boiling and splashing of the syrup upon the sides of the kettle will cause grains. If this occurs, wash down the sides of the kettle with a skimmer wrapped with a cloth and dipped in cold water.

Successful fondant is never made on a damp day. Choose a clear, bright day, and carefully follow directions, and you will have candy as good as a professional's. One nice feature of this kind of candy is that it may be made even in the summer, packed in a jar, covered with buttered paper and, sealed from the air, and it will be perfectly good to use months later.

In testing candy, lift the spoon or fork vertically, and try not to stir the mixture.

Candies which contain molasses do not grain, and less care is needed in making.

Made Paradise for Birds.
A naturalist is the last person in the world one would expect to succeed as a farmer. They won't plant a field if a bird has made its nest there. John J. Audubon, greatest nature student of his day, bought 40 acres at Charlevoix, on the Hudson, to do some farming. The best part of his property was fenced in for deer, elk, and wolves. His orchard, 200 trees of apples, pears, plums, apricots, and cherries, was left as a paradise for birds—it was Audubon's study. However he had no scruples against fishing and caught 200-pound sturgeons in the Hudson.

TEAMS PLAY GOOD FAST GAME

VISITORS ARE HANDICAPPED BY SMALLNESS OF FLOOR

Ellsworth Boys' and Girls' Teams Defeat Opposing Teams from Elk Rapids by Decisive Scores

Last Friday evening, January 13, the third basketball game of the season was played by the Ellsworth high school boys and girls when Elk Rapids high school came to Ellsworth with two fast teams.

The girls' game was called at 8 o'clock local time with the same lineup for Ellsworth that played in the Alden game last week.

The first half ended by a score of 1 to 0 in favor of the Ellsworth girls and the last half ended 5 to 2 in favor of Ellsworth.

The visiting team played a good fast game, as the score shows, but both the boys' and girls' from Elk Rapids were at a disadvantage as they were not used to playing on a small floor and promise to give us a closer race when we play the return game there on March 3rd.

Points made by Ellsworth: E. Ruis, 1 field goal and lost one free throw. E. Johnstone, 3 out of 9 tries for free throws. Total, 5 points.

Points made by Elk Rapids: O. Maxwell, 1 field goal and none out of 1 try for free throw. M. Smith none out of 1 try for free throw. Total, 2 points.

The boys' game followed and promised to be a very close game the first half ending in a score of 4 to 4.

However, the second half was not so close, the game ending with a score of 20 to 6 in favor of Ellsworth.

Points made by Ellsworth: Field throws, Elzinga 1, Yettaw 2, Griffin 2, Peebles 3. Free throws, Elzinga 4 out of 8. Points made by Elk Rapids: Free throws, Westlund 4 out of 1; field throws, Westlund 1.

We wish to thank the people who turned out and supported us so well. Although we did not make expenses we came so near it that it can be made up on the next game we have at home. The next game Ellsworth plays will be with Bellaire at that place on January 27.

Buried Treasure

By FREDERICK HART

© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"I wonder why grandfather kept this old map?"

Beatrice Forbes studied the sheet of paper which she held in her hand. Beside her Foster Reeves, her houseguest and old friend, idly tried to decipher the scrawled document. The pair were seated on a low dune of sand on the beach. Behind them the land sloped gently up to where white houses and smooth shell walks shined before the presence of a summer colony; before them was the flat beach, on which the waves broke gently. It was a gloriously calm day; the ocean was untroubled by a breeze; the groundswell was the only movement of the water. Far out a steamer trailed its smoke across the horizon.

"Perhaps it tells where there's a buried treasure," Foster Reeves's voice was hooting. "Here—let's see it."

Beatrice handed him the paper.

"It was in his desk for years and years," she said. "I think it's an old survey of this part of the country. But you can look at it."

Reeves studied the time-worn paper. It carried a fairly clear outline of the beach which, according to the scale indicated in one corner, represented about six miles of territory. The ocean was distinguished by neatly drawn lines running parallel to each other.

Beatrice looked at the map.

"Why, it's only an old copper ring," she said. "That's all your treasure!"

Foster took a sudden respite. He stepped across the pit he had dug and stood beside the girl.

"No, it isn't all the treasure," he said in a new voice. "Your grandfather's map helped me after all. Give me that ring." He took it and her hand with it. In a moment he had slipped the ring on her engagement finger. Beatrice uttered a little cry of surprise.

"Beatrice—I've found my treasure; it's you, dear. I love you, and I've been afraid to tell you. Look—the ring fits. Will you wear it—for me?"

Beatrice turned to him with shining eyes, in which he read his answer.

And while they stood unconscious of other things, the scrap of paper fluttered away and was lost in the ocean. It was work was done; the treasure that never was had been discovered, after all.

"East 100 rods to boulder, south 57 paces," he said. "Find point by taking line on the big oak and Hartwell's light."

"Where's Hartwell's light?" he asked of Beatrice.

She pointed, and Reeves, following her finger, saw a hump of sand surmounted by a heap of stones that showed evidence of having been worked by the hand of man. And then his gaze was arrested by a feature of the landscape which he had seen many times before but had never particularly noticed.

About a quarter of a mile inland stood a majestic oak tree—by far the largest in the neighborhood. Its spreading branches were silhouetted against the sinking sun and it showed like a monarch of the countryside. Reeves caught his breath. The "big oak," said the directions on the map. That must be the big oak—and there was Hartwell's light, just as described. And as he cast his glance around he saw down the beach an enormous boulder jutting from the sand—a huge gray rock that dominated the immediate foreground. He turned to Beatrice in excitement.

"Look!" he said. "There's the big oak and the old light—and down there is the boulder; it must be the one your grandfather meant; there's not another stone anywhere near its size. We ought to follow the directions on the map!"

Beatrice looked at the boulder and the tree and the light, and there, she said, "Grandfather made this map of this part of the beach—why shouldn't they be there? He never hid any treasure. Come on, let's go in. It's getting late."

Foster, aroused from his dreams of treasure by his companion's common sense, followed her into the house.

But the idea of a buried treasure would not down. When the rest of the party were sleeping that night Foster found his mind running on pieces of eight and doubloons hidden in a chest at the point fifty-seven paces south of the boulder where the big oak and Hartwell's light stood in line. He tossed and turned, but sleep would not come. At last he gave up and left his bed.

"I may be a darn fool," he said resolutely, "but I'm going to follow this hunch."

A few minutes later he was dressed and walking rapidly to the beach. The simple directions on the map were easily followed and in a very short time he found himself at a point where the great oak and the pile of stones that had once been Hartwell's light were in line. It was not difficult to find where this line cut another fifty-seven paces south from the boulder he had noticed in the afternoon. His point established, he took a shovel he had brought with him and began to dig.

An hour slipped by. His hands were blistered and his back was sore, but the strange obsession that was on him would not leave him in peace. He paused to take a breathing spell and straightened. Then he started, for down the beach toward him came a figure in white.

"It's grandfather's ghost!" he thought, and smiled to himself for his folly; but as the figure drew near he recognized it.

"Beatrice!" he exclaimed.

"Foster, you silly thing!" Beatrice's voice was relieved. "I heard you moving around and saw you go out; and when you didn't come back I followed you—I thought you might be sleeping. What are you doing?"

Foster grinned shamefacedly. "I'm looking for grandfather's treasure," he confessed.

Beatrice laughed outright. "Why, you foolish boy!" she exclaimed. "I asked mother about that map, and she told me that the point was found to settle some old dispute about the lines of our property and grandfather kept the map to prove his case. There isn't any treasure. Come back to the house."

Foster looked gloomily at the ground. Then he uttered a cry.

"I've found something, at any rate," he said, and stooping, picked up the object which his toe had disinterred and which glittered in the moonlight. It was an old, worn copper ring. Foster handed it to Beatrice, who looked at it curiously.

Foster took a sudden respite. He stepped across the pit he had dug and stood beside the girl.

"No, it isn't all the treasure," he said in a new voice. "Your grandfather's map helped me after all. Give me that ring." He took it and her hand with it. In a moment he had slipped the ring on her engagement finger. Beatrice uttered a little cry of surprise.

"It's grandfather's ghost!" he thought, and smiled to himself for his folly; but as the figure drew near he recognized it.

"Beatrice!" he exclaimed.

"Foster, you silly thing!" Beatrice's voice was relieved. "I heard you moving around and saw you go out; and when you didn't come back I followed you—I thought you might be sleeping. What are you doing?"

Foster grinned shamefacedly. "I'm looking for grandfather's treasure," he confessed.

Beatrice laughed outright. "Why, you foolish boy!" she exclaimed. "I asked mother about that map, and she told me that the point was found to settle some old dispute about the lines of our property and grandfather kept the map to prove his case. There isn't any treasure. Come back to the house."

Foster looked gloomily at the ground. Then he uttered a cry.

"I've found something, at any rate," he said, and stooping, picked up the object which his toe had disinterred and which glittered in the moonlight. It was an old, worn copper ring. Foster handed it to Beatrice, who looked at it curiously.

Foster took a sudden respite. He stepped across the pit he had dug and stood beside the girl.

"No, it isn't all the treasure," he said in a new voice. "Your grandfather's map helped me after all. Give me that ring." He took it and her hand with it. In a moment he had slipped the ring on her engagement finger. Beatrice uttered a little cry of surprise.

"Beatrice—I've found my treasure; it's you, dear. I love you, and I've been afraid to tell you. Look—the ring fits. Will you wear it—for me?"

Beatrice turned to him with shining eyes, in which he read his answer.

And while they stood unconscious of other things, the scrap of paper fluttered away and was lost in the ocean. It was work was done; the treasure that never was had been discovered, after all.

"East 100 rods to boulder, south 57 paces," he said. "Find point by taking line on the big oak and Hartwell's light."

"Where's Hartwell's light?" he asked of Beatrice.

About a quarter of a mile inland stood a majestic oak tree—by far the largest in the neighborhood. Its spreading branches were silhouetted against the sinking sun and it showed like a monarch of the countryside. Reeves caught his breath. The "big oak," said the directions on the map. That must be the big oak—and there was Hartwell's light, just as described. And as he cast his glance around he saw down the beach an enormous boulder jutting from the sand—a huge gray rock that dominated the immediate foreground. He turned to Beatrice in excitement.

"Look!" he said. "There's the big oak and the old light—and down there is the boulder; it must be the one your grandfather meant; there's not another stone anywhere near its size. We ought to follow the directions on the map!"

Beatrice looked at the boulder and the tree and the light, and there, she said, "Grandfather made this map of this part of the beach—why shouldn't they be there? He never hid any treasure. Come on, let's go in. It's getting late."

Foster, aroused from his dreams of treasure by his companion's common sense, followed her into the house.

But the idea of a buried treasure

would not down. When the rest of the party were sleeping that night Foster found his mind running on pieces of eight and doubloons hidden in a chest at the point fifty-seven paces south of the boulder where the big oak and Hartwell's light stood in line. He tossed and turned, but sleep would not come. At last he gave up and left his bed.

A few minutes later he was dressed and walking rapidly to the beach. The simple directions on the map were easily followed and in a very short time he found himself at a point where the great oak and the pile of stones that had once been Hartwell's light were in line. It was not difficult to find where this line cut another fifty-seven paces south from the boulder he had noticed in the afternoon. His point established, he took a shovel he had brought with him and began to dig.

An hour slipped by. His hands were blistered and his back was sore, but the strange obsession that was on him would not leave him in peace. He paused to take a breathing spell and straightened. Then he started, for down the beach toward him came a figure in white.

"It's grandfather's ghost!" he thought, and smiled to himself for his folly; but as the figure drew near he recognized it.

"Beatrice!" he exclaimed.

"Foster, you silly thing!" Beatrice's voice was relieved. "I heard you moving around and saw you go out; and when you didn't come back I followed you—I thought you might be sleeping. What are you doing?"

STATE TO COLLECT ALL BACK TAXES

EVERY TAXPAYER TO BE BENEFITED BY CHANGE

Local Assessors Will Be Required to Place Every Land Contract on the General Roll

A statewide campaign to compel payment of taxes on encumbered land contracts, as provided for in an act passed by the 1921 legislature, was started last week by the state tax commission. It is claimed by the commission that holders of land contracts have been evading taxation by failing to have contracts recorded.

According to a statement issued by H. F. Hurtless, secretary of the commission, every taxpayer in the state will benefit by the campaign. The revenue received from encumbered land contracts is divided equally between the counties and the state. No estimate of the amount of additional money that may be collected from this source has been made, but it is asserted that a campaign which successfully forces the payment of the contract tax will stop one of the gaps in the taxation system which allows concealment of taxable property and evasion of taxes.

A law was passed in 1911 making mortgages and land contracts taxable at the specified rate of 50 cents on each one hundred dollars of indebtedness. Mortgages, according to Mr. Hurtless, were almost always recorded and the tax could be collected. Land contracts, however, were rarely registered and as a result practically no tax has ever been collected. The legislature of 1921 passed an amending measure placing all mortgages and land contracts upon which the specific tax has not been collected subject to general taxation, and also provided in the shape of a penalty, that the general tax can be levied year after year, until the specified tax is paid.

The commission will conduct its campaign to collect these back taxes through local assessing officers. Agents of the commission have been sent to various parts of the state compiling information as to the number and whereabouts of land contract holders. Local assessing officers will be required to place upon the general tax rolls every land contract upon which the specified tax has not been paid. The specific tax on land contracts amounts to 1-2 of one per cent. The general tax rate ranges from two to six per cent.

FISH HATCHERY WORKS FULL TIME

Capacity Has Been Increased—Brook Trout Eggs Received

These are busy times around the state fish hatchery located north of Petoskey between Conway and Oden says the Petoskey Evening News.

After increasing the hatching capacity from two to five million and arranging to use either spring or artesian water, the management has about one-half million brown trout eggs that are just beginning to hatch.

Last Wednesday there was received from the east one million brook trout eggs, the first of an order of several million. C. H. Plumb, superintendent, says that after this week he will be able to show trout eggs in all their different stages from the green eggs to ones that are just hatching.

There is being constructed at the hatchery shop several large aquariums for showing the different species of fish that are native to the waters of this section, and as soon as completed and installed, the hatchery expects to have the best exhibit of fresh water fish in this state outside of the exhibit at Belle Isle at Detroit.

The hatchery is open to visitors at all hours, night and day, and an attendant is in charge to show visitors around and explain the system of hatching and rearing young fish.

ments would have been a reality within the next year or more.

The life of Mrs. Baker was a model one, she being the embodiment of sympathy, love and self-sacrificing charity. Her death marks the ending of the career of one of our most illustrious and public spirited citizens. Her dignified and delightful personality, her kindness of heart, her wide, ever continuing and unbound philanthropy, her business of soul, her unostentatious and gentle demeanor, her broad vision, unswerving integrity and safe judgment all combined to make her a dominant personality in the financial and philanthropic activities of our city.

Mrs. Baker was a woman of fixed convictions, arrived at by a careful study of conditions. She achieved her success by the hard road of experience. Her executive ability, her great judgment in the final prevalence of what was right, her tremendous energy and calm judgment gave her ultimate success, as results are figured. Her life was clean and wholesome, and we shall never know until the Great Book is opened how much good she did, how broad and unassuming were her charities, and how full of good deeds was the life now ended.

The remains arrived from Miami, on the 9:00 p. m. train and were taken to her home at the corner of Michigan and Dixon avenues. Funeral services were held from the house at 2:00 p. m. today, conducted by the Rev. James A. Smith, former pastor of the Congregational church. Interment at Brookside cemetery.

Out of reverence due the deceased, all business houses were closed from 1:00 to 3:00 p. m. Members of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce, of which body she was a member, acted as escort to the remains from the house to her last resting place. Hearts ache over both personal and public loss. Sympathies are extended to the husband and daughter in their hour of keenest loss.

Charlevoix has lost its best friend, but the sweetness of her life will ever remain a fragrant memory and an inspiring example.

SIXTY MEMBERS IN ATTENDANCE

At W. C. T. U. Meeting Held Last Friday Afternoon

The Women's Christian Temperance Union held their regular meeting Friday afternoon, January 13th, in the parlors of the Baptist church, with about sixty members in attendance. The devotionals and business of the Union were followed by an address by Judge Correll on "The Legal Status of Women," dealing with the laws in regard to real estate, property and government of children. Mrs. H. S. Harsha then explained the advantages to be derived from a club belonging to the state Federation of Women's Clubs and Rev. Chas. Rice gave a particularly appropriate talk on prohibition victory, the anniversary of the 18th amendment becoming a law falling on Monday, January 16th.

The work of the Union is broadening daily. Reports of the Law Enforcement committee were heard and discussed. The Union is in touch with both state and federal officers of the law and keep well informed on prohibition enforcement. The afternoon was followed by a supper served from 5 to 8 o'clock by one of the circles of the Union.

HAS A WORTH- WHILE MESSAGE

Rev. Simpson to Speak at the Congregational Church

The people of Charlevoix are asked to come to the Congregational church next Sunday evening at 7:00 o'clock to listen to an address on the "Eighteenth Amendment and Its Enforcement" by Rev. Simpson, pastor of the Evangelical church of Boyne City. The local churches have been asked to unite and give Rev. Simpson and his message a hearing.

Rev. Simpson is an Englishman by birth and is said to be a rather unusual speaker. He was a delegate to the recent Dry Workers' conference in Washington, D. C., and gathered a fund of information as well as "pep" which is available for the address here and in other towns in the county, through the courtesy of prominent citizens of Boyne City who believe that Mr. Simpson has a worth-while message.

POPULAR BOUTS RECEIVE SET-BACK

New-Comer Slips One Over, Would-be Jim Corbetta

The popular bouts which were being held in H. B. Wood's barn received a chilling set-back when several local aspirants for pugilistic honors were given some badly marked features at the hands of Connie Gatliff of St. James.

Wm. Woods, Jr., and young Winnick, high school students, were the first to get the count at a recent after which Jim Wyers took the gloves but after only a few minutes sparring he was honored with a severe punch which left an eye slightly discolored.

TO ORGANIZE A LEGION AUXILIARY

NEXT TUESDAY EVENING JAN-UARY 31ST

At Leslie T. Shapton Post Headquarters in Musseum Block—All Eligibles Should Be There

A charter for the American Legion Auxiliary has been received from department headquarters and a local Auxiliary will be organized next Tuesday evening in the local post's club room in the Musseum block. The charter membership consists of approximately twenty members, of which Miss Mary Finucan is temporary president.

What the American Legion Auxiliary is and what it stands for may be learned from the following:

The preamble to the constitution says: For God and Country we associate ourselves together for the following purposes: To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America to maintain law and order to foster and perpetuate a one hundred per cent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association during the great war; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, State and Nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy; to participate in and to contribute to the accomplishment of the aims and purposes of the American Legion; to consecrate and sanctify our association by our devotion to mutual helpfulness.

The American Legion Auxiliary shall be absolutely non-political and non-sectarian and shall not be used for the dissemination of partisan principles nor for the promotion of the candidacy of any person seeking public office or preferment. No candidate for or incumbent of a salaried elective public office shall hold any office in the American Legion Auxiliary or in any department or unit thereof.

Eligibility: Any person shall be eligible for membership in the American Legion Auxiliary who is a wife, mother, sister, or daughter, of a man or woman who is a member of the American Legion or who was in the naval or military service of the United States at some time between April 6th, 1917, and November 11th, 1918, and who died in line of duty or after honorable discharge and prior to November 11th, 1920, or persons who stand in a similar position in their various states.

The American Legion Auxiliary has come into its own. It has its own National Headquarters, its own organization, its own membership privileges and problems. It is as independent as a woman deserves to be now that we have a Nineteenth Amendment.

But it must never be forgotten that the word Legion is an important part of its new title. The Auxiliary is as much a part of the Legion as any organization can be that is not the Legion itself.

If the Red Cross had not adopted the designation before the Auxiliary (or the Legion for that matter) was born, the Auxiliary might reasonably appropriate the title of "the greatest mother in the world." But since the Red Cross has adopted it, we cannot bring ourselves to call the Auxiliary the second greatest mother in the world. As we see it, there is (Continued on page eight)

NEW GOVERNMENT SAVINGS SYSTEM

Postmaster Finucan announces that under the new government savings system, the postoffice department and the treasury department have joined to advance postal savings for the deposit of savings and treasury savings certificates for investment. Although the 25c thrift stamp and the $5 war savings stamp have been withdrawn from sale, a more comprehensive method of accumulating savings is now available. Under the new unified system, a 10c savings stamp fills the need of school children and one dollar will open an interest bearing account. Twenty dollars will be a "Roosevelt" certificate which has a maturity value of $25 five years later. Eighty dollars will buy a "Washington" certificate worth $100 five years later, and $800 buys a "Lincoln" certificate worth $1,000 in five years.

R. F. D. CARRIER GOES TO FLORIDA

To be Transferred to New Southern Route on March One

Clarence H. Miller, for the past six years R. F. D. carrier on route No. 2 of Charlevoix, will leave for Clearwater, Florida, the latter part of February, and on March 1 take up the work on a new route to be started out of that city on that date.

Mr. Miller has been contemplating making a change for some time, desiring to locate somewhere in the southern states, Florida, if possible. A new route was being established at Clearwater, and Mr. Miller immediately made application for a transfer to that place, which request was granted by the postal authorities at Washington.

Mr. Miller came to Charlevoix from Clarion, April 17, 1916, and since this time has made his daily trip on route two, rain or shine. During his service here he has made many intimate friends who, while they regret his departure, wish him success in his new location.

He will leave the later part of February, and his family will follow at a later date. The new route will bring him in daily contact with our fellow townsman, Fred A. Butler, former R. F. D. Carrier on No. 1, who left Charlevoix about two years ago.

DEBATING AROUSES PUBLIC INTEREST

HELPS THE STUDENT TO BE-COME OPEN MINDED

Should Receive the Same Encouragement at Athletics—C. H. S.
Meets Boyne City Friday

The increase in high school debating is fortunate. It is a mark of the growing tendency to make education an active force in fitting boys and girls for duties and opportunities of citizenship.

A democracy such as ours draws its life-blood from the full and free discussion of matters of vital concern to the individual and the state. Only so may keen thought be directed to the issues of the day.

Debating is a means of arousing interest in public questions when all other methods have failed. The contest where brain is matched against brain moves the student to hard study. With such a spur he delves more deeply into his subject and reasons more closely than he otherwise would. From the knowledge thus gained comes an interest that usually lasts through life.

It helps to make the student open-minded and leads him to see that the opinions of other people may be as good as his own. He weighs their arguments with patience and fairness, and listens courteously to any earnest, thoughtful speaker who really has something to say.

Just as the athlete is encouraged by the shouts from the side lines, so is the debater aroused by the enthusiasm and interest of his audience. If the citizens of Charlevoix desire to make debate a success in their schools, in their community, then the same co-operation and attendance should be given it as your athletics.

The C. H. S. debating team will meet the Boyne City debating team in the high school assembly room on Friday evening of this week. Plan to be there.

ICE SAMPLES TO BE TESTED

City's Source of Supply to be Protested

Charlevoix's Board of Health took a step Monday, that is to be commended by all citizens. This is in regard to our ice supply. This action taken will require every person engaged in the ice business, either locally or for shipment, to submit samples of the ice for chemical analysis.

The order calls for the submission of two samples, and will be rigidly enforced. This means that Charlevoix's ice supply, and will be rigidly pure source, free from all contamination, and of a kind that can be used in any manner.

THE VEXING PROBLEM OF A PURE WATER SUPPLY

Charlevoix As Well As All Leading Michigan Cities, are Facing the Same Problem

Few people of Charlevoix are aware that practically every city in Michigan are confronted with the same problem—a pure water supply. Charlevoix has had its troubles in this respect during the past year, and is doing or has done practically the same as every other city—chlorinated their water.

The Courier has been requested to publish a series of articles on the water question. These articles will cover a period of several weeks. Chlorine, its use and where used; Michigan cities whose water supply is chlorinated, and several articles on water supply from ancient times to the present will be published. Readers of the Courier are requested to follow these articles closely as they contain information that all should know and will be of benefit to everyone.

The question of a pure water supply is of vital interest to Charlevoix and every citizen should be well informed on the subject and be able to talk intelligently on local conditions. Conditions here are identical to those in many cities, not only in our immediate vicinity, but over the entire state. All realize that our drinking water must be pure, but how to accomplish this is the question confronting us.

This week's article covers chlorine, amount used locally up to the present time, and Michigan cities where water is chlorinated:

Chlorine
Its medicinal value and its value as a disinfectant.

Chlorinated lime or hypochlorite of lime is made by combining chlorine gas (liquid chlorine) with slaked lime. This will ordinarily form a combination containing about 35 to 35 per cent chlorine.

Chlorinated lime is widely used as a disinfectant and when properly used is one of the most efficient disinfectants known. (See Calcium Hypochlorite U. S. Dispensatory.)

Probably the first successful use of hypochlorite of lime for disinfecting a public water supply in the U. S. was at Bonton, N. J., in 1903, and since this time it has been widely used in the U. S. and foreign countries.

Chlorine or hypochlorite of lime when added to water even in very small amounts may at times cause objectionable tastes. Usually when tastes occur water consumers believe that a sufficient amount of chlorine is being used to be injurious to health. These tastes however are not the taste of active chlorine but of some harmless compound formed after the chlorine has been added to the water. Such tastes are objectionable but the compound causing the taste has never been known to be in the least harmful to health.

When used as an internal medicine the average dose prescribed by the U. S. Dispensatory is four grains. This amount if added to 20 gallons of water, from any of the Great Lakes, would cause very objectionable taste. Ordinarily in treatment plant four grains of hypochlorite of lime or its equivalent of chlorine is used for about 40 gallons of water. This is more than an average person drinks in three months.

Aside from this it should be considered that the chemical change which takes place immediately after chlorine is added to water changes practically all of the active chlorine to common table salt (sodium chloride) or some other harmless salt and rarely if ever is active chlorine present in water delivered to consumers in amounts of one medicinal dose in the amount of water which the average person drinks in two years.

Amount Used Locally

The first tank of Chlorine was emptied at the pumping station in connection with the purification of the city's water supply last week. The inside dimensions of this tank are about eight inches in diameter by three feet high. When we consider that this tank has lasted from the latter part of July, some idea is obtained of the small amount of the disinfectant required to keep the Charlevoix water up to the requirements of the State Board of Health.

32 PERSONS DIED DURING YEAR 1921

Such is Death Record for Charlevoix
the Past Year

Thirty-two deaths are recorded as having taken place in the city of Charlevoix during the year 1921. Among this number are included many who were brought to the local hospital for treatment, in many instances being almost at the point of death on their arrival.

Among this number but three were under 20 years, three between 20 and 30 years, and three between 30 and 40 years of age. No deaths among the 32 are reported to have resulted from contagious diseases—a most remarkable record.

The ages of those who have passed on are as follows, being taken from the city records as they were recorded: 28, 87, 90, 61, 66, 40, 67, 40, 22, 81, 88, 13, 50, 54, 31, 47, 77, 74, 11, 82, 69, 84, 12, 67, 76, 82, 84, 50, 66, 53, 23, 62.

Contagious diseases are a rarity in Charlevoix. No case of typhoid fever has developed here for more than 15 years. Cases of diphtheria, scarlet fever, or diseases of a like nature will not average one to every 500 inhabitants. We especially call the attention of our summer residents to the above, which can easily be proven by investigation of the records kept at the city clerk's office.

NORTHERN MICH. ROAD MEN MEET

BIG MID-WINTER SESSION TO BE HELD AT CADILLAC

County Commissioners, Engineers and Foremen to Meet State Department Heads

Highway huddlers from all over Northwestern Michigan held a mid-winter conference with District Engineer C. M. Zeigler at Cadillac Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. Other state highway officials are also expected to be present at this conference.

The session will be in the nature of a round table conference for the road commissioners of thirteen counties, the superintendents of maintenance and the county engineers.

There are fourteen counties and part of another, Roscommon, in the district handled from the Cadillac office of the state highway department. One of these, Benzie, is not yet working under the county system, however, and will not be represented. It votes this spring on the adoption of the state plan.

Those who were represented are: Emmet, Charlevoix, Antrim, Kalkaska, Grand Traverse, Leelanau, Manistee, Wexford, Missaukee, Chtre, Osceola, Lake and Mason.

The road men will go over and lay out the county road system, take up problems of maintenance for the coming season and discuss construction questions. The program of construction has largely been adopted for the coming season.

One of the important things to be done at the conference is to bring together the representatives of adjacent counties.

Road Commissioners House, Byers and Courier left Monday to attend this meeting.

PARENTS' MEETING FRIDAY EVENING

Dr. Poole and Miss Hutzell to Speak at Congregational Church

We are fortunate in having secured two lecturers, Dr. Poole and Miss Hutzell, from the Michigan Department of Health, to speak at a parents' meeting at the Congregational church, Friday, January 27th, at 2:30 o'clock.

Since the war and its disclosures the state has felt that public instruction along the line of personal and public hygiene has been much needed and is providing lecturers for our benefit with the entire expense paid by the department.

Dr. Poole and Miss Hutzell have been lecturing through the state and many very fine reports of their excellent work have come to us.

The Charlevoix Circle of the Child Conservation League of America urge all parents to make a special effort to be present at this meeting as we feel sure that you will gain much that will be beneficial in the care and training of children.

LOCAL SCHOOLS ASKED TO HELP

IN K. OF P. BETTER CITIZEN-SHIP CONTEST

Prize Winning Papers Will Be Read by Thirty Thousand Pythians in Michigan

In these days of unrest, every good citizen will welcome any plan that will arouse a greater interest in America, and help to make this the ideal land as well as the land of ideals. The ordinary man, or woman, does not take sufficient interest in the affairs of our city, state and country. We are all stockholders in a great corporation—the greatest in the world—and we ought to evince more interest in the conduct of the city, state and national affairs than we do.

Realizing this to be true, the Grand Lodge Knights of Pythias has arranged for contests to be held in all the junior and senior high schools in the state, on the subject of "American Citizenship, its Aims, Ideals, and Responsibilities." Students in our junior and senior high schools will be asked to write essays on the above topic. The best paper submitted will be forwarded to the Grand Lodge, and will be passed upon by judges chosen by Superintendent of Public Instruction T. E. Johnson, who has given this movement his hearty endorsement. The judges will select the two best papers. The writers of these will be invited to attend the session of the Grand Lodge Knights of Pythias in Charlevoix the first week in September, and give their papers before that body. They will have all expenses paid, and in addition will be awarded beautiful trophies by the Grand Lodge. In addition, the two in our local schools who are selected by judges to be appointed by the superintendent, will receive a beautiful silver medal for the first prize, and a duplicate in bronze for the second prize.

The local lodge of Knights of Knights of Pythias is "fathering" the contest in this city, and will present the two prizes to be awarded to local contestants. With this incentive, it is certain that our high school students will exert themselves to the utmost. And aside from the satisfaction of winning, this contest will result in much benefit to the students who participate, and to all of us who may find it possible to attend the exercises, if such are to be public, which we trust will be the case.

The prize-winning papers will be printed in the Michigan Pythian, the official paper of the Knights of Pythias, and will be read with interest by the thirty thousand members in Michigan. The Pythians claim to be a truly American order with a million members in all the domains, and Michigan Pythians are to be commended for this movement which has in view the instilling of higher ideals of citizenship in the student body in our public schools. The medals may be seen in the display window of Priest's studio at an early date.

Superintendent of Schools C. A. Rice is also to be commended for staging this contest in our city, and following the recommendation of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, who has given it such a hearty endorsement.

JANUARY 31ST ENDS HUNTING SEASON

Season on Duck and Water Fowl Ends on This Date

January 31st is the last day on which wild ducks and geese, coots, gallinules and Wilson snipe or jack-snipe may be hunted anywhere in the United States under the federal law which prescribes seasons on migratory game birds. This law, which is administered by the bureau of biological survey of the United States department of agriculture, provides however, that the carelessness of birds killed during the open season may be possessed for an additional period of ten days following the end of the season if state or local laws do not prohibit it.

The possession of carcasses of wild ducks, geese and other migratory game birds in cold storage plants after February 10th renders the owners subject to prosecution in the federal courts.

Love's Tragic Path.

When I was sixteen I met a handsome youth two years my senior. I cared for him and, apparently, he cared for me. At this age I was very sensitive and shed tears over every thing he said. For my birthday I received a package which I knew was from him because of his handwriting. I ran to my room to open it, and when I did, what did I behold but an onion placed in the middle of a square box with a card saying "Now cry." I did, but not from the effects of the onion, but of a broken heart. That was enough—Exchange.

Why "Colonel" Is Popular.

Another reason why the grand old title of Colonel lends all the rest is, it is so democratic that it spreads its nobility and honor alike in war and peace.—Houston Post.

Interesting Calculation.

It is estimated that if a single grain of electrons (in pea weighs a grain) could be isolated at the South pole, they would repel each other with a force of 112,000,000 tons.

A Different Gamble.

Few people seem to be bothering themselves over whether there is or is not a future life. The reason probably is that there's no chance to cash in on bets that might be made on it.

True to His Nature.

"I was right," said Uncle Eben, "but de man who got his wealth by gambling a crooked policy game is de one dat's most anxious to put on airs about how much money he's got."

Why Leek Is Welsh Emblem.

While marching to battle against an English army in A. D. 640, Welsh soldiers plucked leeks to place in their caps to distinguish themselves from the enemy. They won a great victory that day, and the leek was chosen as the emblem of Wales.

Physician Snared Him

A Battle Creek physician claims that by starving a patient for six weeks he can cure him of certain germ diseases. Between the sixth and seventh week, we presume, the germ comes out to get something to eat, and then the physician snared him.

New Use for a Tractor

On an up-state town the hotel, in which the heating apparatus has broken down, is being temporarily heated by a tractor. We shivered all day once in one of those small town hotels while it was entirely without heat after the electric toaster had broken down.

Traverse Sportsmen Busy

Though it is a dull season for northern Michigan's sportsmen, an unusually large number of them are finding diversion this winter in fox hunting and fishing through the ice, says a Traverse City dispatch. Dr. Judd and Austin Ross of Honor have killed six red foxes in front of their hounds during the last four weeks, while from all lakes some reports of large catches of fish are received. Immense perch, some of them weighing two pounds, have been brought in from Lake Ann and Boardman lake. On Silver lake the fish house colony is catching wall-eyed pike. H. S. Anderson, of this city, hooked 12 in one day last week, the largest weighing more than five pounds.

Increases Equipment

Pere Marquette railway has ordered 500 automobile box cars from the Western Steel Car & Foundry company, of Pittsburgh, Pa. These cars are being built at the company's plant at Hegewisch, Ill. They are wood upper frame and steel under frame, double sheathed, 40 ton capacity cars. Their inside measurements are 40 feet 6 inches in length, 8 feet 6 inches in width and 6 feet 2 1/2 inches in height. They have side doors with a width of ten feet and a height of 8 feet 5 7/8 inches.

Book Saved His Life

A story is going the rounds of the press of a Michigan detective whose life was saved by the memorandum book he carried in his pocket. The book, it seems, saved him by deflecting a bandit's bullet—not merely by reminding him to mail that package to his mother-in-law, entrusted to his care by his wife.

We are Modest, But—

A Vicksburg physician, acquitted on a charge of manslaughter, was the guest of honor at a celebration given by the citizens. We are almost painfully modest, and don't like to hint at anything, but if our friends feel they would like to show us a little attention—why, we haven't slain any one for a quite a while now, either.

An automobile ran over a dog in Traverse City one day and the victim says the Record Eagle recounting this instance of almost incredible cruelty, "was left in the snow until picked up and placed on the side walk by those who saw the affair. There it was allowed to remain, suffering untold pain, until a Samaritan carried it to the police station, where it died after a veterinary was called.

"Later, Reports of the dog's death was lightly exaggerated, as the last seen of the canine he was seen leaving the police station under his own power."

CHARLEVOIX PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Charlevoix vs. Boyne City debate Friday evening in the high school assembly room. Of course you are planning to come. It will be a very exciting affair as we defeated the Boyne City team a few weeks ago. Your presence is needed to encourage the home team. The question for debate is: "Resolved that the principal of the closed shop in American industry should receive the support of public opinion." We have the affirmative side of this question. Our debaters are, Helen Mason, Kay Gaskia, and Marcella Quant. Admission to the debate is 25¢.

The senior English class gave a very interesting Riley program in assembly room Tuesday morning. Gladys Livingston acted as chairman the program being as follows:

Song—"When the Frost is on the Pumpkin," by the Glee Club.

Paper—James Whitcomb Riley, the Man," by Ida Curtis.

Reading—"Our Hired Girl," by Marilla Quant.

Solo—"O, Heart of Mine," by Miss Oliver.

Reading—"Envoy," by Helen Mason.

Roll Call—Class responded with quotations from Riley's poems.

Victrola record—"There Little Girl Don't Cry," sung by Evans Williams.

Reading—"An Old Sweetheart of Mine," by Mrs. Rose.

Quartet—"Mountain Maids Invitation," by Helen Mason, Marilla Quant, Alys Smith and Jean Swinton, accompanied by Eleanor Finnean.

Charlevoix vs. East Jordan, Basketball Friday evening. The debate at the high school will begin promptly at 7 o'clock. After the debate waste no time in getting to the rink, for the game will start at nine o'clock, sharp. Don't miss it.

Semester exams begin Wednesday morning. Blue books and blue looks are in great evidence. Let us all unite and sing:

Blue book man, blue book man,
Ghostly blue I see,
Tell me who told you to Come here haunting me.
For that bad, bad, exam,
I must grind and cram.
Let me through, you imp of blue,
O, blue book man.

OUR SKATING RINK

Fannie Bell Siminow

5th Grade Training Room

We, the children of the training room are very thankful to the city council for giving the children of Charlevoix a permit to have a nice skating rink.

Mr. C. Marshall, a member of our local fire department is very kind to us. He gets up in the wee hours of the morning and floods the pond, he also floods it at night. When the weather man gives us snow, Mr. Marshall never complains but goes in his task of sweeping and scraping off the snow without any complaining. We are glad to help him when we can.

The ice rink is located on the corner of Mason and State streets. One thing we are very thankful for is that when we are skating we do not have to be afraid of drowning. There are three electric lights strung across the rink to light it so that we may skate at night.

The skating rink is for all boys and girls under sixteen years of age, who can live without quarrelling and fighting.

This gives us plenty of good fresh air and out door exercise after we have worked hard in the school room all day.

In skating we exercise every muscle in our body. This rink helps to keep the children off the lake. Last Saturday afternoon we enjoyed races on the rink. We had three races. One for the little boys, one for the small girls, one for the big boys and one for the big girls. The prize for the little boys' race was given to Tom Finnean. It was a package of gum. Clara Hamilton received a pound of candy. Billy Pants received a pound of peanuts.

Why should we not be thankful?

They must be sold—our line of mackinaws, sweaters, underwear, pants, gloves, and mittens. Benj. Brown. 4tf

Character.

Character is the hardest problem to solve. Lives of promise easily get flattered down to commonplace. When pleasure substitutes for obligation character takes wings for the burrhead and the future collects scraps from the bank heap. When will-power becomes amulets it takes orders from environment and vies with others in constituting to folly. This "one-of-the-crowd" conduct has left many a well-endowed life wrecked on the rocks of circumstances.

"My dear! This is Saturday night and you know how you hate to be late for the first show and you're favorite seat."

Daddy ntsacks his mush and milk in silence.

"Since you're so terribly abused, I'll give you a piece of raspberry pie. Mildred, put daddy's collar buttons in his best shirt."

And ten minutes later.

"Now girls, take good care of Darlie and maybe you can go tomorrow night."

"All right, mother, we'll be good."

"There's just a handful of dishes. Do them now and play afterwards."

The Fandoms round the corner of the house and Mrs. Fandom raps on the window.

"Fill the kettle, Mary Lou."

They are off.

"Oh, look who's here!" whispers Mrs. Fandom a few minutes later.

"Mrs. Jimmie Block with a bunch of tuneless melodies. Isn't that nice?"

One of the smallest movie fans is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Miller. This little lad laughs at every thing, and is not above stealing a nap on occasions.

"His name is Teddy, and there's no Theodore or Frederick about it," insists the pater.

That's all right, Merritt. But how will this look on a campaign banner 50 years hence?

For President of the United States:

Teddy LeRoy Miller.

Little Betty Jean Cartier usually accompanies her mother to the shows. Betty Jean doesn't always follow everything on the screen, but she is quick to understand when her mamma is pleased, and shares the enjoyment accordingly.

Another very small patron of the Palace is Bobbie Emrey, son of County Treasurer Charlie Emroy. His voice rings clear from boyville. When Tom Mix is threatened by a dozen bandits, Bobbie finds time to turn and give his mother an adoring look and pat her cheek reassuringly. That helps a lot.

"The Love Charm" with Wanda Hawley was very well photographed and fairly subtitled. It is really a romantic comedy with the leading male parts by half-brothers, dividing your sympathy. Ruth in her gown of old brocade was quite lovely, and you like the entire cast so well that you smiled with the "villains"—if there were any.

"Look, George! There's Mrs. Nifty," confides Mrs. Boob. "She's a splendid housekeeper, and they say her meat hill last month was only $4.50. She pays her bills with cute little pink checks and signs them herself."

Mrs. Boob sighs.

"I wish you'd let me have a bank account, George. Will you?"

"I'll let you have Snub Pollard if you'll put him in a bank vault and keep him there. But leave Harold Lloyd!" answers Mr. Boob.

"Well of all things! There's Mrs. Woody wearing her daughter's red tam. Isn't she ridiculous? I suppose poor Elsie had to stay home and mind the baby."

It would be pretty hard to improve upon Thomas Morgan in "The Love Charm." And when Tom finally got wise and dolled up, all the girls from flappers to grandmas sighed: "Isn't he dear!"

Even the gay young blades who park in the northwest corner conceded the show "got by aw' right."

Come again, Wanda.

WHY SUFFER SO?

Why suffer from a bad back, from sharp, shooting twinges, headaches, dizziness and distressing urinary ills? Charlevoix people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Ask your neighbor. Could you ask for stronger proof of merit?

Mrs. W. L. Cowan, 210 Antrim St., Charlevoix, gave the following statement October 25, 1911: "I had been subject to severe backaches and pains through my kidneys. I was also annoyed by the irregular action of my kidneys. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they brought much relief."

On May 4, 1920, Mrs. Cowan said: "I always recommend Doan's Kidney Pills for they certainly are a fine kidney medicine. Doan's rid me of kidney complaint years ago and I always keep them in the house and use them occasionally when I feel any attack coming on."

PROFITEERS WANT ANOTHER WHACK AT THE PUBLIC

The print paper trust is at it again. This mogul of profiteers is now fighting hard in Congress for "protection of its infant industry"—for a tariff to prevent us from using some other nations' forests instead of using up our own forests.

Some two or three years ago, these profiteers discovered that there was a shortage of print paper in the United States and at once they ran their prices up to undreamed of heights. As much as 18 cents per pound was paid for paper that ought to be no more than 3 cents per pound.

American print paper manufacturers are rapidly using up our forests containing the sort of lumber that can be ground into paper pulp. If they had replanted where they slashed and devastated, the people of the United States might think twice when it came to the question of giving them a prohibitive tariff against forest importation. But they didn't care whether their country was deforested or not; they didn't even have foresight enough to provide for their own future business. Now that their supplies are getting low, they want to use up the last spruce stick and keep out the spruce trees that grow up on foreign lands.

In our opinion, it is better to cut down foreign spruce trees and save the few that are left in the United States.

The publisher who buys print paper does not buy it for himself. He buys it for the hundred millions of American people who read. The paper only hesitates in his plant, while he impresses some words in black ink upon it. Then the ultimate consumer gets it—that is, the people who buy billions of newspapers in a year.

If the public does not want to pay anywhere from 10 cents to 25 cents apiece for their newspapers in the coming future, they had better protest against granting a tariff for the sole benefit of the American print paper makers who are proved profiteers of the worst kind.

Now they want to rob Michigan county fairs of their horse racing. Where with low prices and no trotting races, is the back-to-the-farm movement left?

"CUT IT OUT"

Editor F. L. Baldwin of the Escanaba Journal heads his editorial on the game warden controversy.

"Cut It Out" and proceeds to discuss the affair of which the following is the last paragraph:

But all this "rag-chewing" about game and game laws makes us un- speakably weary. The sooner the game gets killed off and the sooner the game laws are wiped off the statutes of the state the sooner will the annual killing of hunters be stopped and the sooner will be stopped the annual exhibition of dumphoolishness of some twenty to twenty-five thousand men who spend two or three weeks' time and a lot of money for the sake of chasing around the woods looking for a chance to shoot a deer.

THOSE "FLAPPERS"

A good many people think that the name "flapper" referring to young girls of a certain boisterous type, came from the fact that these none too sober misses left their overshoes unbuckled, with the tops flapping around as they hop along. Not so, an exchange rises to remark, and points out that the name flapper was used in England with reference to these girls long before the old-fashioned overshoe became the up-to-date "galosh." The dictionary defines the flapper as a young bird which has not yet learned to fly, and probably it was sportsmen who first applied this term to girls whose early blundering resembled the actions of young birds.

DIED AT RIPE AGE OF 98 YEARS

Moses LaLonde, a Pioneer Resident of Charlevoix County

"Uncle" Moses LaLonde, a pioneer resident of Charlevoix county, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Stanley Bush at Ann Arbor, Saturday morning, January 14th, with whom he had made his home for several years.

"Uncle" Mose LaLonde was one of the earliest settlers of Charlevoix county coming from Canada with his wife and a large family in the early 70's settling on a farm near East Jordan where his children grew to maturity. There were seven girls and five boys who grew up to make homes in and around East Jordan, several still are residents and some have gone to other locations and some have passed on. For several years Mr. and Mrs. LaLonde lived in Advance and kept a boarding house. After the death of his wife some 25 years ago "Uncle" Mose went to the Northwest and took up a homestead and proved up on it. "Uncle" Mose lived until May 1922 he would have been 99 years old. He lived an honorable, useful life. The body was brought to East Jordan and laid to rest in the Catholic cemetery Tuesday of last week.

AROUND THE CORNER

Around the corner I have a friend, In this great city which has no end; Yet days go by and weeks rush on; And before I know it a year is gone. And I never see my old friends face; For life is a swift and terrible race. He knows I like him just as well As in the days when I rang his bell And he rang mine. We were young-er then;

And now we are busy, tired men—Tired with playing a foolish game; Tired with trying to make a name. "Tomorrow," I say, "I will call on Jim"

Just to show that I'm thinking of him." But tomorrow comes—and tomorrow goes;

And the distance between us grows and grows. Around the corner—yet miles away—

"Here's a telegram, sir," "Jim died today."

And that's what we get—yet deserve in the end—

Around the corner a vanished friend.

FALL PIGS ARE PROFITABLE

Feed Sows Sparingly at First, but Bring to Full Portion in Ten Days—Give Exercise.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Two litters of pigs a year from one sow is usually practicable, and adds materially to the success of the farm project, the United States Department of Agriculture has demonstrated. Spring pigs should be farrowed early in March in order to finish for market in the early winter. Fall pigs usually are timed to arrive in September, which gives them a chance to get well started before cold weather arrives. After farrowing and before placing the pigs with the sow to nurse, cut out the eight small tussock teeth at the sides of the mouth. These are very sharp and might tear the sow's udder or cause pigs to hurt each other at nursing time. They can be broken with house forceps, wire pliers, or a knife, but should never be pulled out. As a rule the sow should not be fed for the first 24 hours after farrowing, but should be given a liberal drink of water. If the weather is cold the water should be slightly warmed. A thin slop of bran and middlings may be given if she shows actual signs of hunger. The feeding for the first three or four days should be light and the time consumed in getting the sow on full feed should be from a week to ten days.

It is of the greatest importance to raising pigs for the market that they gain weight as rapidly as possible. The first opportunity to force the pigs comes when they are a few weeks old. Up to this time they have been living solely on their dam's milk; for which no perfect substitute has been found. After about three weeks the young pigs begin to develop an appetite for some necessary feed to supplement the sow's milk, and they should be given some additional food.

The pigs will eat from the sow's trough, but it is better that a pen or "creep" be arranged adjoining that of the sow, allowing the pigs to have access to a self-feeder in which shelled corn alone is fed for a couple of weeks and afterwards shorts or wheat middlings.

Pigs should be castrated while they are young, preferably when six to eight weeks old, and before weaning. Detailed information on this subject is given in Farmers' Bulletin 789, which may be had on application to the Division of Publications, Department of Agriculture.

GIVE BROOD SOW VARIETY

Judicious Mixture of Foods and Proper Amount of Exercise Will Get the Best Results.

The brood sow needs a variety in her food and exercise. An experiment conducted at the North Dakota Agricultural college under the direction of Professor Shepherd it was found that sows will readily eat alfalfa hay, and that when this is fed with a mixture of about half barley and half shorts at the rate of 2½ pounds daily for a 200-pound sow, splendid results have been secured. Equal parts of barley, oats and bran or shorts also makes a very good feed. Exercise is also very important. It was found that the best way to give the grain feed was to sweep the floor clean and scatter the grain on it. This results in the sows spending hours on their feet getting their feed. Observations indicate that sows fed a variety of foods and given plenty of exercise are not likely to produce hairless pigs.

PROFIT IN FEEDING STEERS

Excellent Authority Asserts It Can Be Done This Winter—Higher Prices Next Spring.

That steers can be fed at a profit this winter is the belief of H. H. Kildee of Iowa State college, formerly chief of the dairy husbandry division, Minnesota College of Agriculture. There are 50 per cent less cattle in Iowa feed lots, he says, than a year ago. Since fewer farmers are feeding he believes that meat prices are bound to be higher in the spring. After remarking that feeding is the surest way to get the greatest output out of the grain crop, he gives this assurance: "There is no reason for anxiety at this time over the feeder question, since cattle purchased now will come out all right."

Circulation counts—we have it.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH NOTES

The recent storms with impassable roads, etc., compels the thought of Whittier's "Snowbound":

"A smooth white mound the brush pile showed,
A fenceless drift that once was road.
The bridge post an old man sat
With loose flung coat and high cocked hat."

And this whiteness covering park and pedestrian suggests the scripture "Wash me and I shall be whiter than snow," and the fee mountains, now beyond the pier piled up by the incessant break of the waves reminds one that success is inevitable for those who undauntedly continue in any noble task.

Friday evening will see the gathering on the floor of the auditorium of the church of the Ladies of the Literary and Sewing Club with their husbands for the annual meeting, election, eats, entertainment, etc., will be the diversions.

WHY PERCHERON IS POPULAR

Breed Adapted to All Kinds of Farm Work, and Exceptionally Docile and Sensible.

The modern Percheron is very popular with the American farmer because he is a heavy worker and an early maturer, is hardy and vigorous, but docile and sensible, strong, active and well adapted to all classes of farm work and city use. America had a preference for a black horse which has led to the production of darker colored horses, but, as is evidenced by some of the leading shows of recent years, there is a tendency to revert back to the original color, that beautiful iron gray. It is a good thing that this is true, for a inferior point like color should never detract from the value of an otherwise good horse.

PREPARING FOR SPRING PIGS

Good Idea During the Winter to Arrange for New Pasture and Lots—Practice Rotation.

It is well to plan new pastures and lots for the spring pigs. For next to disease, worms probably cause the greatest losses. The larvae of the various types of infectious worms lie over in the grass and on the ground for months. A mudhole may be full of them. Rotation of pastures and lots is a good practice in raising healthy pigs.

The Old Post Road—1788.

The old road between New York and Albany was, for the greater part of the way, but a rough belt through a virgin forest. Occasionally a farmer had cleared a few acres, the lawns of a minor house were open to the sun, the road was varied by the majesty of Hudson and Palisades for a brief while, or by the precipitous walls of mountains, so thickly wooded that even the wind barely fluttered their somber depths. —Gertrude Atherton.

TRUCKS AND GOOD HIGHWAYS

Farmers Almost Unanimous in Declaring Principal Advantage Is Poorly Built Roads.

Vast increase in use of automobiles is now to be depicted with motor-trucks. Their complete utility is testified to by 95 per cent of the farmers replying to the latest government inquiry.

Those same men agreed that the principal disadvantage of motor-trucks is poor roads. For about eight weeks of the year, mud or snow is so bad that trucks cannot be used. When all-the-year good roads are established, agricultural use of motor-trucks will be universal.

Motor-trucks involve problems new to highways. Their tremendous loads utterly destroy roads which under horse-drawn vehicles were permanent.

Big Road Program.
 The state highway commission in New Mexico has launched a big road building program with six new federal aid projects, one to cost $46,707.02, a second to cost $63,505.67, a third $58,382.87, the fourth $41,624.73, a fifth $89,844.40, and the sixth $74,104.47.

Dixie Highway Leads.
 Of the 9,630 miles of roads to be constructed throughout the United States through the aid of federal appropriation, the Dixie Highway leads the list with 500 miles.

The low prices continue on all winter clothing until all of it is sold. Benj. Brown.

In Memoriam
 In loving memory of our dear mother, Ernestine A. Gall, who departed this life one year ago today, January 25th, 1921.

How very lonely have been the hours we have spent since Mother has gone. Could she know how we have missed her.

In our hearts and in our home. Everywhere the deadly silence. As we to our duties go, But the one who called Mother from us.

Has been our strength and guide, And we hope again to meet her. When our days of life are over And up there we will greet her. Then we hope to understand.

Lake township for 10 years and 19 years in Banks township selling his farm to his son, August, a couple of years ago. He had always been an unusually active man, taking great interest in the community in which he lived, and everybody feels a personal share in the grief which his death has caused in taking such a fine citizen and loving father and husband.

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon from the West Holland church, of which he was an active member, and had served as elder for a number of years.

SOUPS AND OTHER DISHES

Soups may be either nutritive or stimulating. A nutritive soup like cream of potato is a meal in itself, while a stimulant is simply stimulating and attractive as to seasoning.

Beef Broth.—Cut two pounds of lean beef into small dice, break the bones and put them with the meat into a saucepan, cover with two quarts of water; when boiling add one carrot, one turnip, one onion, all diced, and one bunch of herbs. Simmer for three hours, add two tablespoonfuls of cooked rice and serve hot with croquettes.

Nourishing Soup.—Take one cupful of lentils, one-half cupful of barley, one onion, two cloves, one grated carrot and two quarts of water. Wash the lentils and soak them over night in water to cover. In the morning put them with the barley, the onion stuck with the cloves and the grated carrot, into a saucepan; simmer for two hours, add salt and pepper to taste. Thirty minutes before serving remove the onion and add two cupfuls of milk and four tablespoonfuls of butter.

Corn Chowder.—Cut one-fourth of a pound of salt pork into small dice and cook in a sauce pan until brown, then add two chopped onions, cook until slightly colored, add two cupfuls of diced potatoes which have been par-boiled for five minutes, one can of corn and four cupfuls of water or stock; cook thirty minutes. Add two tablespoonfuls of butter, stir in one tablespoonful of flour and when well blended add two and one-half cupfuls of milk; cook five minutes, add the corn mixture, salt and pepper to taste and three tablespoonfuls of rolled cracker crumbs. Serve hot.

To Clean Varnished Paint.
Never clean varnished paint or enamel with soap or with soda and water. This makes the varnish dull, and it may even cause it to peel away from the wood. A better plan is to use a solution prepared with tea leaves. Collect the leaves and put them in a bush. Pour hot water over them and allow them to soak for ten minutes. Use the liquid cold for washing over the varnished surface. Finally dry and polish with a soft cloth.

The Proper Word.
A lawyer always speaks of "our" property when speaking of the possessions of his client, and if must be admitted that he speaks advisedly.—Arlinson Globe.

Piano and Organ Keyboard.
The keys of an organ require light, sun. They go yellow because this requisite has been denied them. The keyboard should not be covered, except when the room is being swept. A cloth dampened with milk is good for keeping the keys in proper condition. Care should be taken that there is not too much liquid on the cloth, which should be used to cleanse the keys and then rubbed dry with any smooth white cloth.

POULTRY

STANDARD BREEDS OF FOWLS

Poultry Keeper Should Select Breed Best Adapted to His Purpose and Locality.

Leaving out of consideration the breeds kept as novelties, all the standard American breeds of fowls have been made and developed on the general principle of practical quality as the foundation of breed character and value. In harmony with this principle, the common classification of breeds according to their places in the general scheme of poultry production divides them into three principal classes: laying breeds, meat breeds and general-purpose breeds—that is, breeds that are not as ready and persistent egg producers as the laying breeds, and not as meaty and as easy to fatten as the meat breeds, yet combine in one individual fowl very good laying capacity with very good table quality.

The Leghorn, Minorca, Andalusian, Ancona and Chukline are well-known breeds of the laying class; the Brahma, Dorking, and Cornish of the meat class; the Plymouth Rock, Wyandotte, Rhode Island Red and Orpington of the general-purpose class.

The breeds of the laying class, with the exception of the Minorca, are relatively small, very energetic and lively, mature early, and are easily kept in good laying condition. The Minorca is of larger size and modified somewhat in the other particulars mentioned, yet has more the character of the laying class than any other.

In the meat breeds there is not the same uniformity of type that is found in the laying breeds. The three mentioned differ decidedly. The Brahma is most popular because it is at the same time the largest and most rugged in constitution. The Dorking excels in quality of meat, but is generally considered somewhat lacking in hardness. The Cornish is rather hard headed but, being very short feathered, has its special place as a large meat-producing fowl in southerly sections where the more heavily feathered Brahma does not stand the summer well.

Among the popular breeds of the general-purpose class there are also differences in type, adapting breeds to different uses. The Plymouth Rock is generally regarded as the type meeting the widest range of requirements in the general-purpose class.

The Wyandotte is a little smaller and earlier maturing, but still very well mated and easy to fatten. The Rhode Island Red has nearly the same standards of weight as the Wyandotte, but is a more active bird, not putting on fat so readily. Consequently, it approaches the laying type and is most popular with those who want eggs and meat, but want eggs most.

The Orpington is at the other extreme in the general-purpose class, being a heavier, meatier fowl than the Plymouth Rock.

Such a list of breeds affords so wide a range of choice that poultry-keepers can always select a standard breed better adapted to their locality and their purpose than any non-standard stock they can procure, say poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. A flock of standard-bred fowl will have the further advantage of reproducing true to type.

MAKE PROGRESS WITH FOWLS

Select Best Individuals for Breeding Whether for Table, Show or Egg Production.

Whether the purpose of poultry breeding be for the show, for table stock or for egg producers, the best progress will be made by picking out the best individuals in the flock as breeders rather than by breeding from the flock as a whole.

COMPEL FOWLS TO EXERCISE

Thick Litter of Straw, Leaves or Something of That Kind Will Keep Birds Scratching.

In all henhouses there should be a thick litter of straw, hay, leaves or something of that kind into which the fowl can be put to compel exercise. When the fowls are confined to the house or the house and yard, they need exercise to keep in good health.

CANE AND BEET SUGAR COMPARED

REPEATED TESTS SHOW LITTLE DIFFERENCE

One About Like Other With a Small Margin Favoring Sugar Made From the Sugar Beet

Every once in a while something occurs in this mundane paradise of professional propagandists to give us the gladsome assurance that the cold truth is still able to hold its own against hot air.

A few years ago when the question as to the relative merits of beet and cane sugar became really of paramount concern in California owing to the rapid increase of the state's fruit growing and canning industries the state authorities adopted a very sensible plan of creating a commission to conduct an investigation that would determine once and for all whether either kind of sugar had any advantage over the other in preserving fruit.

This commission was composed of disinterested technical experts, who spent a year and a half in making exhaustive analytical comparisons and tests. The results of their labors are set forth in a state document. The conclusion unanimously reached by the commission was that there was no distinguishable difference between the two kinds of sugar and that they are equally valuable for canning purposes.

Among the highly illuminating statements contained in the commission's report is one to the effect that beet and cane sugar were used in an equal number of cans of the same kind of fruit and that these cans were kept the same length of time and then opened; whereupon it was found that one more can had spoiled where cane sugar was used than where beet sugar was used. However, this proved nothing against cane sugar, as in every case of a spoiled can the trouble was traced to improper sealing of the can.

It thus appears that in this most trustworthy series of tests the domestic beet sugar fully held its own with cane sugar—that it proved itself in every instance the equal in chemical purity and utility of its imported competitor. Similar authoritative tests have been conducted in Europe—where people use beet sugar almost exclusively and where the prejudice against cane sugar is even stronger than is the prejudice here against beet sugar—and always with the same fifty-fifty result.

These repeated demonstrations of the groundlessness of the artfully inculcated belief that one kind of sugar has "got it all over" the other kind for fruit preserving purposes calls to mind the story of the Chicago judge who was once saluted on the street by a confidence man, who said: "I believe that you are Mr. Charles Johnson of Denver." The judge simply answered: "If you believe that, you will believe anything." Hereafter when you hear anyone asserting his or her belief that beet sugar is inferior to cane sugar, just put it down that such a person is capable of believing anything.

DISPOSITION OF BAKER HOLDINGS

Business to be Continued Under Efficient Management

Charlevoix people, as a whole, are interested in the disposition of the property of the late Mrs. Martha R. Baker, the universal sentiment being the hopes that it would be continued as in the past.

In an interview with Mrs. F. Irene Boice Sears, who has been so closely identified with the Baker interest for the past five or more years, we have obtained the following statement:

"The will of Mrs. Baker provides that the Troy Laundry and equipment and the Riverside cottage become the property of her husband, John S. Baker, at her death, and that the Charlevoix Beach Hotel, and the remainder of cottages become the property of her daughter, Doris, now Mrs. Arthur L. VonDolcke. Executors of said will are Mrs. F. Irene Boice Sears, Judge F. W. Mayne and Doris Baker VonDolcke. It was also the request of Mrs. Baker that Mrs. Sears act as business manager."

The Beach hotel will be conducted by Mrs. Sears along the same line of policies established by Mrs. Baker, and will open June 15th, as in former years. The usual number of bookings have been made for the coming season, and under the efficient management of Mrs. Sears will, without doubt, continue in its role as the leading summer hotel of the hundreds who visit Charlevoix each year. Nothing will be overlooked in the form of entertainment, and service, which in the past has been a great asset to this popular hostelry.

COST OF HIGHWAY VEHICLES

Government to Determine Expense of Operating Surplus War Road Building Material.

What it costs the government to operate motor vehicles engaged in road building is shortly to be determined through a system of operative records recently installed by the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture.

Out of the surplus war material turned over to the War department for distribution among the states, the bureau has retained a large number of motor vehicles, which are used principally on forest road work in the West. These motor vehicles are kept at various central points where shops are maintained for repair work.

Complete records will be kept of all oil, gasoline and supplies of every kind used by each vehicle. Even the number of tube patches will be kept. Record will also be kept of the number of hours of shop work required; of days idle, and why; of distances loads are carried and the character of the loads; and the gross income from the operation of the vehicles. The information thus obtained will be combined with similar information from some of the states operating the surplus war equipment turned over to them, and will form a valuable addition to the knowledge of the cost of highway transport.

Total Surfaced Roads.

The total of surfaced roads in the United States is now greater than the railroad mileage, being 206,230 miles or twelve per cent of the 2,733,234 miles of highways in the country as against 230,000 miles of railroads.

Circulation counts—we have it.

NATION TESTING REINFORCED ROAD

Will Determine How They Stand Up Under Heavy Traffic

How a reinforced concrete road holds up under heavy traffic is to be determined by the bureau of public roads, United States department of Agriculture, through experiments to be conducted on such a road now being built in the suburbs of Washington in co-operation.

The road is being reinforced with many different arrangements of wire mesh and round steel rods embedded in the concrete. The joints will be either a crack left in the road to be filled with tar, or simply a sheet of corrugated metal set on edge with the concrete run around it. Some sections are to have joints running along the middle of the road, some across it, and some will be built without joints.

Of especial interest in the construction of the ribbed sections. Instead of placing the concrete on a nearly flat subgrade, trenches will be dug in the subgrade running parallel to the edges of the road and also across the road. These trenches will be filled with concrete, giving the slab downward projections of concrete and presumably strengthening it. Experiments also will be conducted to determine the strengthening effect of treating the earth under the concrete. On one section the earth for a depth of six inches will be mixed with cement, to 20 parts of earth. In some places where there is a grade a trench under the concrete will be filled with gravel. These trenches will slope toward the edges of the road and draw away any water that might otherwise accumulate under the surface.

WHEN THE PAPER DOESN'T COME

My father says the paper he reads ain't put up right. He finds a lot of fault, he does, perusin' it all night. He says there ain't a single thing in it worth while to read. And it doesn't print the kind of stuff the people need. He tosses it aside and says it's strictly on the bum— But you ought to hear him holler when the paper doesn't come.

He reads about the wedding and he snorts like all get out. He reads the social doings with a most derisive shout. He says they make the papers for the women folks alone. He'll read about the parties, and he'll fume and fret and groan; He says of information it doesn't have a crumb— But you ought to hear him holler when the paper doesn't come.

He's always first to grab it and he reads it plumb clear through. He doesn't miss an item or a want ad—that is true.

He says they don't know what they want, the darn newspaper guys. I'm going to take a day sometime an' go an' put 'em wise; Sometimes it seems as though they must be deaf and blind and dumb— But you ought to hear him holler when the paper doesn't come.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY ORGANIZED

Legion's Best Asset Gets Away to a Flying Start

A few of the eligibles for the American Legion Auxiliary, have not forgotten the dark days of 1918. That much was evidenced at the club rooms of the Leslie T. Shapton Post, American Legion, Tuesday evening, when a number of women and girls met to organize an American Legion Auxiliary for Charlevoix.

This new organization inside of a year should have not less than 160 members. The eligibility runs much higher than does that of the American Legion. The high ideals and purposes which brought into being the American Legion and its Auxiliary ought to be sufficient to rally everyone who can be a member. Anyone not sure of their status will be doing a favor by calling Edward Edwards, local post adjutant or Leo Powers, post commander. Big things are in prospect and the Leslie T. Shapton Post, wants the backing of every girl and woman to help make a "Better Charlevoix".

Officers are the making of any organization. That the women present saw the light is evidenced by those elected to head the American Legion Auxiliary of Charlevoix for the coming year:

President—Miss Mary Finucan.
Vice-president—Miss Isabel Mitchell.

Secretary—Miss Bessie Hunsbaw.
Treasurer—Mrs. R. L. Lewis.

The next meeting will be held in the Post's club rooms in the Muskegon block on Thursday evening, February 9th. At this time committees will be selected and yearly dues will be decided upon. Your presence is earnestly desired.

PROF. WM. C. HOAD TAKES UP WORK

Well Known Engineer Investigates Charlevoix Water Supply

Prof. Wm. C. Hoad, of the firm of Hoad & Decker, consulting civil, hydraulic and sanitary engineers, of Ann Arbor, arrived in the city Tuesday and met with the council in the evening.

During the day Mr. Hoad made a hurried investigation and his talk to the council and those present was enlightening. The facts brought to light were that neither the present council nor any person or group of persons are responsible for the present condition in our city. It is the result of a combination of circumstances extending over a period of years and can be remedied without undue excitement or a lowering of the present high degree of health enjoyed by this community. After a thorough investigation, Mr. Hoad will present a written report with recommendations to the council.

Reports from the local laboratory and from the State Board of Health show our water perfectly safe for drinking purposes. Mr. Hoad's report will enable us to put our finger on the trouble and eliminate it, if there is any. The council is on the right track. Conditions are not in any way alarming and those that do exist are being remedied as fast as possible. Let's quit talking and go to work.

MAN MURDERED AT BOYNE FALLS

STEVE DUROSKI'S BODY BADLY MUTILATED

Charley Gerow Held for Killing—Affair Started Over a Poker Game

Steve Duroski, Russian, was murdered Monday evening at about 9:45 in Boyne Falls and his body left in a mutilated condition. Severe blows on the head, presumably made with some blunt instrument crushed the skull and left an opening about four inches in length as well as a blow over the ear, both arms broken, one hanging only by the skin and the other a clean bone break. The murdered man was a workman in the Mitchell camp No. 48, and had gone to Boyne Falls where he met his death on the street between the depot and the hotel.

The affair seems to have started with a poker game on Sunday when Steve had bet 50 cents and Charley Gerow had ruined the ante to $2.00. Steve said he would "get" Charley for that. On Monday morning Steve had worked only two or three hours when he quit, went back to camp and it is supposed gathered Gerow's clothing and watch valued at $200 and $76 in cash and burned them in the stove. Then upon leaving camp Steve was overheard to say that he was going to get a gun and shoot Charley and then himself. He took the noon train to Boyne Falls. When Charley returned to camp at noon he missed his clothes. After asking the chore boy if he had seen them he started poking up the fire and found the handle of a razor and suit case straps in the ashes. Steve was the only one gone so suspicion pointed to him. Charley then went to Boyne Falls about nine o'clock on Monday night probably with the purpose of "getting" Steve and returned to camp only in time for breakfast and work according to the camp foreman.

Joe Stevenson, deputy sheriff of Boyne Falls, after discovering the murdered man phoned to the camp and learned that Charley Gerow was the only member absent on the fatal night. Sheriff Weaver was then called to Boyne Falls and returned about 8:30 Tuesday night with Charley who was placed in the county jail on a charge of murder and bound over to circuit court.

A coroner's inquest held in Boyne Falls decided that Steve Duroski had met his death from the blows of a heavy, blunt instrument presumably and iron bar of some sort.

At the inquiry held in the office of the sheriff Wednesday afternoon, the prisoner affirmed that he had never known Steve previous to their working in the camp together. He had gone to Boyne Falls on Monday night to have Steve arrested for burning his clothes. He did not report to the deputy sheriff. He further stated that he had returned to camp at about 12:30 o'clock. He also stated that he returned to camp without seeing Steve.

Charlevoix As Well As All Leading Michigan Cities, Are Facing the Same Problem

The fact that the state board of health has full control of all water supplies, when even the slightest degree of contamination is reported, is not generally known to the average citizen. However, such is the case, and during August of last year, when our local trouble arose, the matter was placed in the hands of the state board of health, who now have it in hand and are in absolute control of the situation.

Every recommendation of this board has been fulfilled, and while the supply of raw water is not as yet entirely free from contamination, as desired, the situation has shown a marked improvement and indications are that within a short time this will be eliminated, as a report from the state board of health anticipated during the present month will indicate.

Charlevoix has received a great amount of unnecessary publicity regarding its water supply which has and will prove harmful to our city. Instead of working as a unit to overcome the difficulty, it appears to us that there has been an effort on the part of a few to handicap those in charge. Such actions should receive the severe condemnation of every citizen who has the welfare of Charlevoix at heart. The trouble and its final outcome, good or bad, will effect all alike, regardless of financial condition. Why not work together?

The Courier's articles under the caption, "The Vexing Problem of a Pure Water Supply," covers the powers of the state board of health in all such instances, and is followed by an excerpt from Turneure and Russell on "Public Water Supplies," Laboratory Control of Chlorination Plants.

Chlorination, as applied to public water supplies, is not a process which, once started, can safely be left to the attention or non-attention of any laborer who happens to be employed at the water works plant. Variations in the character of the water to be treated must be met with changes in the rate of chlorine application. An overdose of the chemical may cause disagreeable odors and tastes in the treated water, while an underdose means that the proper elimination of harmful bacteria is not being effected. Frequently laboratory tests on both the raw and treated water are necessary to insure the proper and efficient operation of the chlorinating apparatus.

A regulation of the Michigan State Board of Health, requiring monthly reports from water purification plants, adopted in July 1914, was further supplemented by a resolution of the Board passed in January, 1916, which reads as follows: "Resolved, That after January 1, 1916, all corporations, both municipal and private, partnerships and individuals, engaged in furnishing water to the public for household or drinking purposes, which are now operating, or may hereafter operate, any filtration or sterilization plant or any other means of purifying water before it is delivered to the consumer, shall be required to submit monthly reports of the details of operation and the tests of efficiency of such plants on the blanks, prepared by the State Board of Health, for these purposes.

"Resolved further, That any corporation, partnership or individual not having facilities for making the tests required by the State Board of Health, which may be outlined on the blanks from time to time, shall be required to provide the necessary facilities for these purposes, or to engage some competent person having suitable equipment to make the prescribed tests.

"Resolved further, That it shall be the duty of the person or officer having in charge the operation of the water department or company, as the case may be, to fill out the monthly blank, and certify to the truth of the statements contained therein, and forward the same to the Secretary of the State Board of Health within ten days after the close of each calendar month.

"Resolved further, That the Secretary be authorized and instructed to send a copy of these resolutions to each municipality or company operating water treatment plants within the state at the present time, as a notification of the action of this Board."

A further regulation of the State Board of Health is, "In case the flow of the sterilizing agent is discontinued for more than 24 hours, it is obligatory that this department be notified immediately, stating the reasons therefore, and giving an estimate of the time that the apparatus will be out of commission."

Under these regulations the operation of water chlorination plants in Michigan has been under general control of the State Board of Health since January 1916 and the Charlevoix plant is under this control.

Water Supplies in Ancient Times

The earliest method of artificially obtaining a water supply was doubtless by the digging of wells. These were naturally at first mere shallow cavities scooped out of the ground in moist places, such as are used at present times by savage tribes; but as necessity arose and the use of implements developed, these wells were gradually deepened.

The digging of wells dates from a very early period. In the vicinity of the pyramids there still exist wells which were in use when those great works were constructed. Joseph's well at Cairo is perhaps the most famous of all ancient wells. It is remarkable work and exhibits in a high degree the skill of the people of ancient Egypt in matters pertaining to construction. It is excavated in solid rock to a depth of 297 feet and consists of two stories or lifts. The upper shaft is 18 feet by 24 feet, and 165 feet deep the lower is 9 feet by 15 feet and reaches to a further depth of 130 feet. Water is raised in two lifts by means of buckets on endless chains, those for the lower level being operated by mules in a chamber at the bottom of the upper shaft, to which access is had by means of a spiral pathway carved in the rock and winding about the upper well.

Frequent mention is made by the old historians of important wells in ancient Greece, and remains of such works are numerous in Assyria, Persia, and India. Probably the deepest wells were dug by the Chinese, depths of 1500 feet or more being reached by methods almost identical with those now in common use.

Besides the digging of wells, the ancients executed many works for the storage and conveyance of water. In Jerusalem underground cisterns were built for the storage of rain-water and other reservoirs were constructed near the city to store the water which was brought thither in masonry conduits. Aqueducts were also built to supply the city of Samos being still in good preservation. Some of these ancient aqueducts included inverted siphons of cut-stone blocks. Ruins of extensive underground reservoirs are to be found on the site of ancient Carthage, which it is believed were constructed prior to the capture of the city by the Romans. Works for irrigation in Egypt, Assyria, and India were established on an immense scale, one reservoir in Egypt, Lake Maeris, having had it is said, an area of 30,000 acres. In the Presidency of Madras, India, the English found at the time of their occupation about 50,000 reservoirs for irrigation purposes, the construction of which had involved the building of 30,000 miles of earth embankment. Many of these reservoirs were doubtless of ancient construction.—Excerpt from Turneure and Russell, "Public Water Supplies."

DIRECT CIRCUIT FROM CHICAGO

SUCH IS PLAN OF MICHIGAN STATE TELEPHONE CO.

Northern Michigan to Have Improved Telephone Condition by First of June

Believing that closer business and social relations should exist between the upper and lower peninsulas of the state and that the telephone should build ahead with a view to helping expand the industrial centers scattered throughout the far-flung commonwealth of Michigan, officials of the Michigan State Telephone Co. have announced a program for the building of additional long distance circuits through western and northern Michigan this year that will mean the expenditure of close to $150,000.

The plans include the building of additional circuits from Grand Rapids to Petoskey and their connection at Grand Rapids with the Chicago circuit, which will give a direct circuit from Chicago to the great Michigan resort region and will benefit many points along the western side of the state. In addition, the Petoskey-St. Ignace circuits will be added to, benefiting practically every point in the upper peninsula.

Other lines to be added to are the following: Grand Rapids to Cadillac, Cadillac to Petoskey, Kalkaska to Mancelona and Boyne Falls to Petoskey. The work is being pushed and it is anticipated that it will be completed by June 1st, in time to handle the anticipated increased summer business this year. Circuits were provided last year between Grand Rapids and Reed City, and work has been undertaken this year between Reed City and Cadillac and between Petoskey and Mackinaw City. The remainder of the work will be gotten under way as quickly as the weather moderates sufficiently.

Each of these new links, according to Local manager H. J. Johnston, will be another addition to universal service and improved telephonic communication through which more than 70,000 points in this country can be reached.

The company has, in Michigan, approximately 900,000 miles of wire in use, 400,000 miles of which is overhead and 500,000 miles underground in cable form. The company has approximately 300,000 subscribers, served by nearly 10,000 telephone people, many of the latter being shareholders of the telephone utility while more than 4,000 others are buying stock. The Michigan lines connect with more than 13,000,000 telephones in the country.

BRIDGE TO JOIN TWO PENINSULAS

SOME WOULD CONNECT MACKINAW CITY AND ST. IGNACE

Others Advocate South End Bridge—Bo at Cheboygan Because of Water Depth at Mackinaw

A bridge across the Straits of Mackinac, connecting the lower and upper peninsulas of Michigan is now being given serious consideration according to John A. Doelle, member of the state board of agriculture and deputy commissioner of the state department of agriculture.

A company to be known as the Mackinac development company is now in process of formation. This company says Doelle will take active steps to have a thorough investigation and report prepared on the feasibility of bridging the straits.

Mr. Doelle, himself a resident of the upper peninsula was instrumental in forming the company and is actively engaged in pushing the project.

The matter of crossing the straits of Mackinac by bridge or tunnel to carry both highway and railway traffic has been the subject for much thought and inquiry for many years past.

Now, however, it has advanced so far that the Mackinac Development company has commissioned Charles Evans Fowler, consulting engineer of Detroit and New York to report on the feasibility and cost of crossings at various points and of various types, both bridge and tunnel. Fowler is the engineer who has carried the great Detroit-Windsor bridge project to a successful culmination during the past two years, and active work on the construction of this $30,000,000 structure was begun in December of last year. Fowler's work previous to this was the reconstruction of the Niagara Railway arch bridge.

The advisory board of the Mackinac crossing investigation consists of Prof. H. E. Riggs of the department of civil engineering and Prof. M. E. Cooley, dean of engineering, both of the University of Michigan; George H. Pegram, chief engineer of the Interborough Rapid Transit Co., and Prof. Wm. H. Burr, consulting engineer, both of New York City.

Preliminary studies have already been made, according to Doelle and a more definite announcement will be given after the annual meeting of the development company in March.

Bridging of the straits will be of inestimable value to all of Michigan and particularly to the upper peninsula. Navigation across the straits, especially in the winter, is particularly hazardous. This winter, probably more than any other, the car ferries have had a trying time crossing the straits. The ferries have been stuck in the ice, reported to be 35 inches thick, for several days at a time.

When the subject of bridging the straits has been mentioned heretofore, it has been ridiculed, the scoffers pointing out that no bridge would be able to withstand the ice pressure in winter. This probably is true to a certain extent. But, it is thought, the way to get around this is to build the bridge from Cheboygan to St. Ignace, using the islands as stepping stones.

No bridge, it is believed, from Mackinaw City to St. Ignace, a distance of approximately eight miles with no intervening islands, could withstand the ice pressure. Another drawback to a bridge between these two cities, it is pointed out, is that in some places the water is over 200 feet deep. The bridge span would have to be about 100 feet above the water, making it necessary for supports to be over 300 feet in height. This would be an expensive proposition and even though Cheboygan to St. Ignace would be longer, it is believed to be the most feasible and least expensive.

Feasted on Porcupine
 A family of Indians, residing at Camp 35 of the East Jordan Chemical Co., were much mystified one day recently when, upon returning to their home after a brief absence, they found a much-alive porcupine had proceeded to occupy their home. How it secured entrance to a closed house was a mystery until it developed that some of the camp men had cut down a tree expecting to find coons, only to find a porcupine. The Indian family being absent, the men opened the door to their dwelling and chased the animal in, closing the door. The Indian family immediately dispatched the "porky" and proceeded to have a feast.

Apples Bring a Fancy Price
 Word comes from Grand Rapids that a carload of boxed apples from the Grand Traverse region was received this week by a commission merchant in that city and the fruit is moving readily at $3.25 to $3.50 per box. While trade is not in the habit of handling Michigan apples in boxes the deal is said to be working quite satisfactorily, which indicates the possibilities for packing in this manner.—Traverse City Record Eagle.

New Dance Ordinance
 A proposed dance hall ordinance in Grand Rapids will permit people in that city, if they so desire, to dance all night, six nights a week. "Be sure to wake me up mother, in time to get dressed before 9 o'clock," the young folks will request as they retire to rest each morning.

Fish Unusually Wild
 A Muskegon game warden says the boys who have been spearing fish through the ice report that the fish are unusually wild this year. It is said that the fish save become all the more shy, due to the attempted deception of some sportsmen who feigned to stroke them on the back a bit before striking.

Entire Family Ill
 The entire family of Joseph Solovitch, in Riggsville, near Cheboygan, is reported ill from diphtheria. Because of the fact that the first child ill from the disease was thought to be suffering from croup and that neighbors came and went freely, it is believed many people have been exposed to the disease. The father, mother and three remaining children are ill, and one child has died.

Suitcases Were Mixed
 E. C. Lowing, local traveling salesman, had hardly agreed to sell lingerie to the grocer trade, nor could a young lady school teacher comfortably wear a can of corn or order blanks. The two left their suitcases, identical in appearance, in the Pere Marquette station over night. Both have returned, to this city, the teacher to report that when she got home the only clean clothes she found in the suitcase she was carrying were some order blanks, a can of corn, a box of raisins, and a package of Peerless. Mr. Lowing, too, reported that what he displayed when he opened his case before his first prospect was a blush.—Central Lake Torch.

Farmer Loses Barn and Contents
 Tuesday forenoon of this week Central Lake was the scene of excitement when the fire alarm sounded. Upon inquiry, the local fire department was called to the home of John Cameron whose barn was all ablaze. The barn was beyond saving when the fire fighters arrived on the scene. Two automobiles valued at several hundred dollars and a number of chickens, also a quantity of hay went up in smoke. The fire spread rapidly to the barn owned by E. B. Gill and before the fire could be extinguished the building was destroyed.

Mr. Cameron had no insurance on the building or contents and we are without information as to whether Mr. Gill had insurance or not.

Given Long Sentences
 At Gaylord last week, Harley Kennedy was sentenced to a term of 2 to 15 years in the state prison at Ionia for breaking and entering a store in the night. Lewis Taylor was sentenced to from 1 to 15 years in the same prison for breaking and entering a warehouse; John Taylor Austin Harrington and Hugh Weaver, charged with breaking and entering a store and warehouse were placed on probation for three years.

Tractors Draw Heavy Loads
 The caterpillar tractor drawing the big pulp wood sleighs for the paper company are lugging some mighty big hauls of pulp wood through the city since they have the road well broken out to their mountains of pulp wood on the lake shore. One day this week one of the little bugs started for town with a sleigh loaded with fifteen cords of eight-foot pulp wood, but as it would not pass under some of the wires on the way up town four cords had to be taken off. The railroad cars only carry twelve cords of pulp wood when loaded to their biggest. The average load of the sleighs is about twelve cords.—Cheboygan Democrat.

AT THE MOVIES

Dorothy Gish's latest comedy, "The Ghost in the Garret," which will be shown at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday is a gloom chaser from start to finish. The little comedienne is excellent as the girl, who to save her sweetheart from a false charge of stealing a pearl necklace, follows the real thieves to a haunted house and after many adventures, recovers the jewels. The situations are not only comical, but they often are highly dramatic. Miss Gish's leading man is William E. Park and he heads a capable supporting company, not to speak of the bulldog "Mike" and talking parrot.

Local admirers of the country boy characters portrayed by Charles Ray will welcome the news that this popular star is coming in another rural screen comedy to the Palace Theatre next Wednesday. The picture is "A Village Sleuth," presenting Mr. Ray as a small-town youth with ambitions to become a famous detective. He is unexpectedly given an opportunity to shine in the sleuthing line and succeeds. "A Village Sleuth" was produced by Thomas H. Ince for Paramount release. Also the last chapter of "The King of the Circus."

Here's Help!

A new food with a 'Spendthrift' flavor and a 'Penny-wise' cost

AS we go around the country talking with women on household subjects we find this question in the very front of their minds:

"With purses shrinking the way they are this year, what can help us to give our families wholesome delicious foods?"

Brednut gives real aid in one important direction.

It provides a delicious economical spread for bread. Its flavor is so fresh and delicate that even mere men become enthusiastic about it.

It's made from pasteurized milk and rich tropical nuts.

Can you resist Brednut when you know its delightful ingredients. The richness of tropical nuts—brought from far off islands! Pasteurized milk from healthy cows! Blended under careful supervision in spotless rooms. These ingredients make Brednut—the most delicate bread spread you ever tasted.

We certainly wish that every woman could see Brednut made. Every household then would have a new idea of bread-spread purity. All would understand, even without reading the Government bulletins, why such a food is so high in energy value; why it is so highly digestible. Why children love it.

Remember this about Brednut. It comes to you in a pound pat of purest white. You can not only taste but actually see its perfect purity. You can quickly color Brednut to a golden yellow with wholesome vegetable materials which your grocer gives you.

Delicious!

MICHIGAN

Eighty-five years ago, January 26, 1837, Michigan, known as the "Wolverine" state, was admitted into the sisterhood of states making up the United States of America.

The fight for admission was a long hard one with such eminent debaters as Calhoun, of South Carolina, and Clay, of Kentucky, as opponents. The southern delegation in the United States senate were desirous of keeping Michigan from statehood until a slave-holding state should be admitted to keep the balance in the legislature. When Arkansas was ready for admission, Michigan was vainly "kicking against the pricks" of a change of boundary. A portion of Ohio and Indiana, known as the "Toldeo strip," had been taken from the territory and assigned to the aforementioned states. This caused great dissatisfaction in Michigan, notwithstanding the addition of the tract of land known as the "upper peninsula," which was at that time a wilderness and whose vast mineral wealth and resources were unknown. It was twenty years before the canal was built, which connected Lake Superior with the lower lakes.

The sentiment in the house of representatives was not in opposition to the admission of Michigan as a state. John Quincy Adams, of Massachusetts, in speaking on the subject said, "Never in the course of my life have I known of a controversy, of which all the right was so clearly on one side and all the power on the other."

On January 5th, 1837, by a vote of 23 to 10 in the senate, and January 26th, after a brief debate in the house, Michigan was made a state. On the same day John Novell and Lucius Lyon took their seats as senators and the following day Isaac E. Craig was sworn in as a member of the house of representatives.

Michigan with 56,243 square miles of area, had in 1840, four years following her admission as a state, a population of 212,267 in her 27 counties. In 1920 Michigan had 81 counties with a population of 3,668,412. The western part of Michigan and the northern peninsula which were only Indian country or wilderness, have developed their resources surprisingly and in the state where one of the hottest contests for statehood was fought, stands one of the most promising commonwealths of the Union, with some of the foremost industrial centers of the world located within its boundaries.

THANKFUL FOR SCHOOL

A true story, told him many years ago, has just been retold by a writer for the Boston Transcript. A teacher asked her roomful of youngsters to write a list of the things they were thankful for. A little lad who had come to this country from Russia wrote the single statement that he was thankful for the opportunity to go to school. No other child in the room thought of that, yet it was something all of them would have been consciously thankful for if they had had any way to measure the greatness of that blessing.

Americans have many good things that other people do not have, and sometimes they know it. Frequently they know it boastfully and with vain pride instead of thanksgiving. Occasionally they need the revealing light of the foreigner's thoughts about them, both to show them their faults and to make them aware of their advantages.

HOLD YOUR LIBERTY BONDS.
Many prudent workers have held on pretty well to their Liberty bonds. Richard Spillane, the financial writer gives some figures that are peculiarly significant. The Philadelphia Saving Fund Society, which Mr. Spillane describes as one of the oldest and biggest institutions of its kind in the world, comes nearer to representing the great body of working people than perhaps any other bank in America. For that reason these facts are significant:

The highest total of Liberty bonds held by the bank for its depositors was $10,558,000. The holdings on December 1, 1921, were $10,074,000 of the Liberty bonds held by the bank to the credit of its depositors. The bank, as a work of service clips the coupons, credits the amount to the depositors, and looks after the details of bookkeeping entitled.

What is true of Philadelphia is, or should be, true of all America.

What has been said many times before may be repeated now.

Hold to your Liberty bonds. There is nothing better, nothing safer in the form of a security in all the world.

"OLD WHITEY" SHOT BY LANCE NEFF

Big Owl With Five-foot Wing Spread Killed at Loeb Farms

"Old Whitey," the big owl that has preyed upon the partridges at Loeb Farms for so long was killed last week by Lance Neff with a single shot from a 30-30 rifle at a distance of 65 yards. The bird measured 5 feet from tip to tip.

While Lance is a modest hero, the boys thought they should show their appreciation in some way, so have ordered W. G. Parker to design a suitable medal. It will be composed of the lid of a baking powder can and bits of an old shoe.

70 COUPLE AT MASONIC DANCE

First of Series of Dances a Great Success

The first of a series of dances to be put on by the new Masonic House Committee took place Monday night and proved a brilliant success, 70 couples attesting to their appreciation of the efforts of Messrs. Kibbie, Nordrum, Carey, Henshaw, and Hlecheek comprising the committee.

The music was furnished by Tuneser's orchestra of Bay City, which is at present touring northern Michigan. The quintet comprising the orchestra includes Ange Lorenzo, W. E. Huek, C. Blakely, Stephen Misner, and Burt Trombley, leader. Under their own canopy they are an exceedingly good looking and very affable five, performing with skill on piano, violin, banjo, drums, xylophone, saxophone and cornet. They were prodigal with fox trots.

Before leaving they were signed for a return engagement for Monday, February 20th. We'll be there of course, but our best girl will have to dance in blinders if she goes with us, for she confessed on the way home that the snare drummer and pianist had "rather upset her with their glances."

COUNTY NORMAL NOTES

The public is invited to come and enjoy the program.

The entire class observed the first grade reading at the Washington school last Tuesday. It was interesting as well as instructive.

WHO KNOWS ABOUT LOUIS NELSON?

May Be Heir to 'Large Estate in Denmark

New York attorneys are conducting a world-wide search for one Louis Nelson, who is thought to be the heir of a large estate in Denmark. The inquiry contains the following:

"One Louis Nelson, born in Denmark about 1850, is dead leaving an estate in excess of $100,000, and no known heirs. It is believed he came to this country about 1855 with his mother, then a widow, and a younger brother. The family appears to have settled in either Michigan or Wisconsin. Mrs. Nelson married again, probably an Irishman, by whom she had a daughter and probably a son.

"Louis Nelson worked as a sailor on Lake Michigan and as a lumberman on the Embarras river, about 1870.

"A liberal reward will be paid for information concerning this family should communicate with the undersigned."

If anyone has information regarding this man Nelson, the address of the attorneys in charge can be obtained at this office.

EDWARD G. LOWRY

A Writer of Recognized Authority on National Government's Business Methods.

No Washington correspondent is better known or more highly esteemed than Edward G. Lowry. That in itself means that he has broad and deep knowledge of national and world affairs; that he is skillful in getting the news and tactful in writing it, and that he has the confidence of the public men with whom he comes in contact. But Mr. Lowry has more than that. He has the really patriotic feeling that the intimate knowledge of the nation's affairs, which he acquires through his work in Washington, should be imparted to the people of the country who have not his privileges. In such a way that they will be led to take that personal interest in the doings of the government, which alone will result in good government. He wants the people to realize that it is their government, answerable to them only, and that they are responsible for its good qualities and its bad qualities. It is this feeling that has inspired much of Mr. Lowry's best work. Born in Atlanta in 1876, Mr. Lowry was educated in private schools, the Georgia Military Institute and by private tutors, and began his journalistic career at the age of twenty-four. In 1904 he was sent to Washington and has been there almost continuously ever since. He has been the political correspondent of Harper's Weekly, has written many articles for the periodical press and since 1913 has been the Washington correspondent of the New York Evening Post, and for a considerable time the managing editor of assistant military attaché at London and on the British front in Flanders, and was with the American Army of Occupation in Germany. For his valuable work he was awarded the British Military Cross. Recently he wrote "Washington Close-Ups," a series of character sketches of eminent figures in the national capital, which the country is reading with vast enjoyment. For two years Mr. Lowry has been making a close study of the business of the government. He is given credit in congress for his aid in passing the budget bill and in bringing about the naming of the joint committee of the house and senate to investigate and report upon the administration and organization of the government executive departments. He now wants the people of the United States to know the details of the United States government, which is their business. He believes the knowledge of these details will make of them better Americans and give them a better government.

No man not imbued with Mr. Lowry's high ideal could have carried out this study of the government business so exhaustively and painstakingly as has he. Probably he now knows more about it than any other man in the world. With extraordinary perseverance and dogged persistence he went after hidden facts and multifarious details—and got them. Nothing was too big for his comprehension or too small for his attention. At one time he went to a member of the cabinet with the statement that the government had on its payrolls, exclusive of the officers and men of the army and navy, one employee for each 68 people of the United States ten years of age and over engaged in gainful occupations. It took that cabinet officer, with the assistants he had at his command, a considerable time, and considerable effort to verify Mr. Lowry's statement, but he found it to be true.

As the result of his careful studies Mr. Lowry has written a series of articles on the business of government income and expense; where the money comes from, and how and for what it is spent; whether the organization of the business side of government is efficient or inefficient; whether the government wastes the money we give it. The series is not in any sense political. It is not an attack, not a muckraking expedition. It recites facts, conceded, acknowledged facts. These facts come from the men in the government—from the government itself—and they are all facts that every American citizen is entitled to know and should know.

The series of articles on this subject of "Where Your Taxes Go" will be carried in these columns. They should be read by every American who is interested in the welfare of the nation.

Where Your Taxes Go

How Uncle Sam Spends Your Money in Conducting Your Business

By EDWARD G. LOWRY

WHY YOU'RE INTERESTED

I wish you would take what is written here as a personal report addressed directly to you from me about your business. Don't think of it or read it as an article about "politics," or remote public affairs at Washington. It is not that at all. It is what I ask you to think of, a personal business report to you relating to your individual concerns, your pocketbook and your welfare. I have no other interest than to tell you the exact truth.

Assume that you have sent me to Washington to find out for you what your agents are doing, how they are managing your affairs and spending your money. I call them your agents for that is all they are—the President, the members of the cabinet, the senators and all the members of the house of representatives. You hire them, you pay them, and you can fire them.

You may think of them in deference and awe as a group of eminent statesmen, or you may call them in flippancy and too hasty contempt "a lot of politicians." But whatever you call them, they are your hired men. They attend to your collective business, which is called the public business.

Query: Are they doing it efficiently and with a single-minded devotion to your interests?

Perhaps the largest item in the high cost of living is the high cost of government. And far away the largest item in the high cost of government is the high cost of armament; preparation for war. About 90 per cent of all government revenues, and that means the money taken from you as taxes, goes to pay for wars, past, present and future.

Before I have concluded this series of articles I expect to show you conclusively that the impelling motive that induced President Harding to call the present conference in Washington to consider limitation of armaments was financial. The pressing need of considering a proposal for a reduction or limitation by agreement of war expenditure was not made entirely on the ground of morality or righteousness, but as a plan for cutting down the operating expenses of the government.

If the United States government were an individual we would say that it was broke, for its expenses exceed its income.

Your interest is simply this: that whatever decision is made you will have to pay the bill. If today we didn't have these army and navy expenses you would have to pay in taxes less than $1,000,000,000 a year instead of $5,000,000,000. That means we would have about $4,000,000,000 more a year to spend on our private needs and pleasures. I frankly confess that I would enjoy having four-fifths of my taxes knocked off. Wouldn't you?

Secretary Weeks of the War department gave public warning a little while ago that the government would require of us about $17,000,000 in the next thirty months to meet current expenses and other obligations. Persons who have given close study to that possibility say that the need will be nearer $20,000,000 than $17,000,000. The great bulk of that is for past and prospective war expenditures. For this, you and congress and the executive departments at Washington are responsible. You more than anybody else, for it is your money that is being spent and you can stop it. In its simplest terms the procedure is this: You earn the money, congress takes it away from you in the form of taxes, and then congress and the executive departments spend it.

A great part of it is wasted. This is established, conceded, confessed, and acknowledged by congress, which authorizes the expenditures, and by the executive officers of the government, who do the actual spending. It is your money that you have earned in your business, on your farm, or by the labor of your hands, that is being expended and wasted at Washington.

BELLAIRE DEFEATS ELLSWORTH QUINTET

County Seat Five Shoot a Wicked Basket

Last Friday night the high school basketball team went to Bellaire and succeeded in getting it where the chicken got the axe—in the neck.

The Bellaire bunch was a little too fast for the Ellsworth boys and girls, but both teams did game and are looking forward to the time when Bellaire comes to Ellsworth and are going to do their best to beat them.

So remember the date, February 17, and come prepared to see a good fast game—and give us your support.

The girls game was played first. The first half ended with a score of 2 to 6 in favor of Bellaire and the last told a tale of 10 to 1 in favor of the county seat team.

The boys' game followed with a tally of 7 to 23 in favor of Bellaire the first half and wound up with a total of 14 to 37 points in favor of the Bellaireites.

Don't forget the date of the return game, February 17th.

THE AD ON THE FENCE

I love my country's rocks and hills and feign would move from off her hills the billboard ads for liver pills.

I love to gaze on some old barn that stands by wood or rock or turn. I love its curves and graceful lines, its weathered boards from oaks and pines. I love its silo, cribs and mows; its Plymouth Rocks and brindle cows; my farm-born heart with pleasure swells when I inhale its rich, ripe smells. But O I hate to see its back exposed to road or railway track, in glaring paint give doubtful dope on someone's double action soap, or urge relief from human ills by cheating sixteen-horsepower pills. Around you curve the engine scoots, and way-worn travelers press their snoots against the dusty windowpanes, while tired eyes and weary brains drink in the peace of hills and plains. Forgetting cares and lack of cash, they gaze on fields of succotash. Green growing groves where dryads roost and babbling brooks their spirits boost. To keep these haunts for nymphs and Pan, the bilious billboard let us ban.

Card of Thanks

We desire to express our sincere appreciation to our relatives, friends and neighbors for assistance and sympathy extended us in our bereavement of our husband and father.

We wish to mention the kindness of the Sunday school and Mr. Nelson for the beautiful floral offerings, also Rev. Schroeder and Rev. Beute and singers for services rendered.

World Press Exhibit at Prague.

A novel exhibit was staged recently at Prague under the auspices of the Charles Tichal newspapers. A large hall was set aside for the display of newspapers from all principal cities of the world. Of these there were more than 4,000, from China, Japan, Palestine, Australia, czarist and soviet Russia, India, Africa, Turkey and from every country of Europe and America.

More than 300 papers from France were shown. As a matter of fact, the exhibit comprised only a minute proportion of the world's newspapers, but, from the viewpoint of the Czechoslovak public, it was very instructive and successful.

BUILDING OF PUBLIC ROADS

Federal Government and States Have Completed 7,469 Miles in Past Five Years.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

On June 30, 1921, the close of the fifth fiscal year since the passage of the federal aid road act, which is administered by the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, the states and federal government had completed 7,469 miles of road, and 17,977 miles were under construction. Including the work completed on projects still under construction, the states have completed work which entitles them to draw on the federal treasury for $118,915,515.

There is also a balance allotted but not yet earned on projects now under construction amounting to $36,375,036.

Of the two appropriations which have been made for federal aid there is now only $18,763,544 remaining unobligated. Twelve of the states have obligated their entire allotment and several others have only a small amount to their credit.

During the last fiscal year the total of completed projects jumped from 1,077 to 7,469 miles, and the projects under construction increased from 14,910 to 17,977 miles. The money earned by completion of work has grown from $40,657,881 a year ago to $118,915,515 at the end of this fiscal year. The amount earned during the year was $78,817,631, or nearly twice as much as the amount earned during the four years preceding.

The new projects submitted during the year bring the total amount of federal aid obligated up to $247,256,136, as compared with $109,830,366 which was the amount obligated on June 30, 1920. At this rate it is expected that the small balance of $18,000,000 still unobligated will be taken up in a very short time.

The month of June was a record month in every way. The mileage of completed projects increased by more than 1,200 miles, more than twice the amount reported for the month of May. Funds allotted to work actually under construction increased by $13,670,025.

TO RESTOCK BRITISH FORESTS

Importations of Fir and Spruce From Canada Are to Be Made for That Purpose.

The British Isles are to be reforested with Douglas fir and Sitka spruce from British Columbia. To obtain the necessary seed, a seed extracting plant will be established at Westminster by the dominion forestry service.

Shipment of green cones has been found impracticable. The new plant will handle a ton and a half of cones every six hours. The cones will be dried under hot air blast and as they open, the seed will fall from the drying cylinder of fine mesh into a hopper. Present requirements call for 3,000 pounds each of fir and spruce seed annually for which it will be necessary to gather 120 tons of cones.

Sitka spruce cones will be collected on the Queen Charlotte Islands where the tree flourishes in abundance. The cones of the Douglas fir will be gathered on the western slopes of the Rocky mountains tributary to the Fraser river.

This is far country of the Hudson's Bay company, now closing out its lands in the prairie provinces to farm settlers. The company's posts are still dotted through this region of primeval wilderness.

Investigations of the British commission working out the vast reforestation scheme have shown Douglas fir and Sitka spruce best adapted for the purpose.

Centuries of tree cutting have left the islands of the British group depleted of forests and reforestation is necessary to replenish the timber.

FRANK TUBBS TO TWIRL FOR INDIANS

GOES SOUTH WITH CLEVELAND AMERICANS

Signs Up with Speaker's Outfit Now Getting Ready to Go Into Training in Texas

Frank Tubbs, who last year pitched the Loeb Farms team to the baseball championship of northern Michigan, has been signed by the Cleveland American League Club and will probably report to the Indians about the middle of February. The matter was handled by W. G. Parker for Tubbs, Parker and Joe Wood of the Cleveland team being old friends.

"I am greatly pleased with the opportunity offered, and expect to report in good condition," said Tubbs last night. "Of course it's now entirely up to me, and I believe I'll show enough to eventually land a berth with Speaker. It's the very club I've always wanted to sign with and when I got that long envelope it seemed too good to be true. But I guess it's all O. K., and we'll soon be rolling south."

Tubbs is doing road work and now weighs 165 pounds. He is 5 feet 8 inches tall, a sure fielder and fast base runner. He will be 22 years old in March.

Tubbs' many friends in this section were glad to hear of his good luck, many predicting a brilliant career for him.

"I have been well treated at Loeb Farms and feel especially grateful to the management," concluded the budding big leaguer. "I hope to be a credit to the organization at all times, on and off the field. You'll hear from me often."

A lot of advice is being shot at Tubbs, which is natural at this time, and we quote a few wisenhamers:

"Don't try to tell 'em how you done it at Loeb Farms."

"Lay off the poker games."

"Don't lamp the cigar counter girls—they're wise."

"Don't eat the side out of a turkey every time you sit down."

"Take a double roll in your pants and play the Rube."

"Lay off the old heads—it makes 'em crusty to see the young birds comin' on."

"Wow!" shouted Tubbs. "Thassnuff!"

ARE YOU A PATRIOTIC AMERICAN?

If so, Aid in Seeing That Laws are Enforced

During the year 1922 every patriotic American citizen should be concerned regarding "law enforcement" particularly with reference to the prohibition laws.

Anyone can help and without extra work, other than attending to the duties of good citizenship. Prove your approval of law and order by your daily conversation. Remember that humor is often more powerful than cold reason and it is well to refrain from making anti-prohibition jokes or countenancing them.

When someone attempts to prove that the 18th amendment should be repealed because it is being disregarded so often, just remind them that a great wave of lawlessness has followed in the wake of the war and not only prohibition but all other laws are being broken.

Try to find out the facts of the benefits of prohibition and talk about them. By daily conversation help to put the true facts before the public. There is a real fight ahead and everyone can help. The subtle, untruthful propaganda now being distributed by the "Wets" should be shown up in its true colors.

To keep the dry legislation in the majority in Congress, returning those who so nobly stood by the prohibition cause and sending new dry legislators to take the place of the "Wets" will require great effort.

Let the real sentiment of the nation be heard. Let the good law-abiding element shout and be heard, from now on and every day until it makes the mightiest noise ever heard next November.

GIVES LIFE TRYING TO SAVE WIFE

George Gardner of Bellaire Sacrifices Self in Double Drowning

While skating Saturday afternoon on Torch lake, George Gardner, 24, popular school teacher of Bellaire, and his wife, 21, broke through the ice and were drowned. Gardner refused to save himself when he saw that he could not save the life of his wife and clung to her, both drowning under the ice in a current where they broke through.

Alfred and Paul Berg, brothers of Mrs. Gardner, were with them at the time of the tragedy. Rushing to his home, Alfred called to his wife and returned to the lake to search for the bodies.

While Mr. and Mrs. Berg were away from their home, their four children left in the house, the house became a mass of flames. Fire started in upstairs rooms where three of the children were playing. The oldest daughter was downstairs taking a bath when the flames were discovered. The children were saved but the house and contents were destroyed. Damage amounted to $4,000.

That George Gardner sacrificed his life in a vain effort to save his wife and that he preferred death with her to life without her was the accepted belief Sunday. Gardner, born and reared upon the shores of the lake which claimed his life, was one of the ablest swimmers along the intermediate chain of lakes.

The two Gardner children, Ruth 18 months old, and George, two months old, are being cared for by their grandmother.

C. A. C. MEMBERS PLAN FOR A FRUITFUL YEAR

Heads of Committees Tell of Activities and "Five-Minute Talks" Are Greatly Enjoyed

The regular monthly meeting of the Association of Commerce was held Friday evening in the Masonic Temple, being preceded as usual, by an excellent supper served by ladies of the O. E. S.

President Ward called on different committees as they appeared on neatly printed folders which were distributed to members and guests.

After Charles E. See, Archie Livingston and Charles H. Emrey had reported for their respective committees, Andrew Ross put everyone in the best of spirits by making a humorous response on behalf of public welfare. Andrew frankly confessed that he was a bit puzzled at first as to his duties, but now understood them thoroughly, and that oversized families, over which he had no control, were being cared for wherever reported. He said a considerable supply of goods remained on hand for distribution to the needy.

W. E. Byers spoke interestingly of good roads and told just what could be expected in the way of appropriations. He described the condition of some roads and outlined plans for the coming season.

S. M. Rose of the Harbor committee gave one of the best talks of the evening. He deplored the condition of our harbor, mentioning several points that required strengthening. Mr. Rose believes that Charlevoix should make an effort to interest the chief engineer and bring him here as a guest. He also advocated stirring things up in Washington, sounding a note of warning relative to harbors that are allowed to go back. He was given a generous hand.

Following Leo. Carey, who made a brief talk for the entertainment committee, Judge F. W. Mayne rose to represent the reception trio.

Judge Mayne assured the chamber that he was glad to be back home again. He complimented the intelligence of Charlevoix county residents as judged by jury verdicts and said other nice things. The Beach Hotel property would be operated as usual, he believed, and he generously offered an airship, a probable part of the Baker estate, "at a liberal discount, if agreeable to his co-executors." Thanks, Judge.

Secretary Campbell read some correspondence from the Chicago Yacht Club and Mnnager Creamer of The Inn, the latter making significant inquiries regarding the light and water situation. It is probable that a regatta will be held on Pine Lake and that various aquatic sports will be added attractions.

The association went on record as endorsing fully the plans of the American Legion for the erection of a Community Memorial Building. The conveying of the city owned property at the corner of Belvedere avenue and Bridge street to the Leslie T. Shapton Post for the above purpose will come to a vote of the people at the March primaries.

The Argo Milling Co. of this city has closed a deal whereby they become the owner of the Central Lake mill, owned by A. F. Wallbrecht, and which they have operated for, the past five years under lease.

The Central Lake Roller Mills were built the summer of 1893 by A. Wallbrecht, who operated them until leased to the Argo Milling Co. in January 1917. Charles E. Box is now manager of the mill.

The mill under the Argo management has proven to be a paying proposition and completes a circuit of mills for the company at Enat Jordan, Central Lake and Charlevoix.

FRANK TUBBS A LUCKY MAN

Will Have Every Chance to Make Good with "Indians"

Joe Wood of the Cleveland American League Indians, writes to Gordon Parker under date of February 1st as follows:

"Friend Parker: Saw by the paper a few days ago that Tubbs was signed. Glad to hear he is so enthusiastic about his tryout. Will be only too glad to do all in my power to make him make good with a vengeance from the wire.

"I am sure he will be given every chance to make good, as pitchers are what we need most.

"Hoping this finds yourself and family in good health, I am Always your friend, Joe Wood."

It is evident from the above letter that Tubbs is very lucky in landing with the Indians at this time. "Smoky" Joe, formerly a leading American League pitcher, will be a great help to the Loeb Farms rookie. Wood and Speaker are close friends.

Good luck, Tubby!

SENT THE SCORE UP BY JUMPS

C. H. S. DEFEAT EAST JORDAN ON HOME FLOOR

Go Down Under Superior Playing of Catholic High at Traverse City—Coming Games

Friday night, January 27th, at the old roller rink, Charlevoix met and defeated (once again) the East Jordan basketball team. The game was fast and scrappy, but the East Jordan gang couldn't solve our five man defense, and so when our forwards did locate the basket they sent the score up by jumps.

This game saw a new man in the line-up. Mayne has a better eye for the basket than any man on the squad, but lacks experience to seem to be in a fair way to overtake him to fit into the team. He came that handicap, however.

Line-up and scoring:

Charlevoix	East Jordan
Mayne	R. F. Bowen
Marshall	L. F. Hockstad
Ackert	C. Jones
Todd	R. G. Dieken
Jones	L. G. Sumner
	C. Hegerburg
	F. Molpus

Field goals: Jones (E. J.), Hegerburg, Marshall 4, Mayne 3, Ackert 2. Free throws missed: Hockstad 6 in 6, Bowen 1 in 1, Mayne 2 in 5. Score at end of half, East Jordan 2, Charlevoix 4. Referee Craig.

February 3rd, the team went to Traverse City to meet the best Catholic high aggregation, one of the snappiest teams in this section. We led, by superior team work and dash at the end of half time, 12 to 9.

The story is soon told. The Catholics came back the second half with so much dash and fight that they completely bewildered our boys, who began taking desperate chances at the goal from center floor. Instead of working for close-in shots as they did the first half. They were able to score only twice by this means, while T. C. was dropping them in close-in to the tune of six field goals. It was a good fast game, but the local team needs experience to steady them in the pinches. They are in process of acquiring it now.

Line-up and summary:

Charlevoix	Traverse City
Mayne	R. F. Horton
Marshall	L. F. Zeits
Ackert	C. Denoyer
Todd	R. G. Moblo
Jones	L. G. Wood
	G. Pauls

Field goals, Horton, Zeits, 4; Wood, Moblo 4; Mayne, Marshall 4; Ackert 3. Free throws missed, Horton 4 in 8, Mayne 2 in 3.

There is no game this week but next week, Thursday, February 16th, the team meets the heavy Pellston bunch on our floor, and Friday, February 17th, Mancelona on our floor. Turn out and encourage the boys to greater effort by your interest.

THE VEXING PROBLEM OF A PURE WATER SUPPLY

Charlevoix as Well as All Leading Michigan Cities, is Facing the Same Problem

Water-works of the Romans

Among ancient systems of water-supply the works of no other nation equaled those of the Romans, either in point of size or number; and no city in the Roman Empire was more abundantly supplied than the city of Rome itself. Previous to about 312 B. C., Rome obtained its water from the Tiber and from springs and wells in the immediate vicinity, but this water finally became so badly polluted that a purer supply was sought from distant sources.

The conveyance of water from these new sources necessitated the construction of long conduits or aqueducts. These were often led through the hills in tunnels, or carried over valleys on long lines of arches that are to this day the object of wonder and admiration. The Romans, and indeed the Greeks, well understood the principle of the inverted syphon, and used it on occasion; as, for example, in the works of Lyons, France, where they constructed a siphon consisting of nine miles of lead pipe from 12 to 18 inches in diameter, working under a 200 foot head. The only materials, however, which could be used for this purpose were stone, lead, and pottery, iron pipes being unknown; and the engineers of that time adopted what was doubtless the most economical method of crossing depressions, that is, by carrying the conduit on arches.

The first aqueduct built to supply Rome was called the Aqua Appia, after its builder, Appius Claudius. It was constructed about 312 B. C. and had a length of about 11 miles. A second was built about 270 B. C., with a length of 39.5 miles, 1080 feet of which was supported on arches. Others were constructed from time to time until, with the completion of the Anio Novus about 52 A. D., there were nine aqueducts furnishing water to the city of Rome. These are described in detail by Frontinus, a Roman surveyor and water commissioner, in a work written A. D. 97.

The Romans not only built works for supplying their chief city but also executed many works of great importance in all parts of the Empire, as at Paris and Lyons in France, Metz in Germany and Segovia and Seville in Spain. One-half of the aqueduct at Metz is still in use, although built in the year 130 A. D.

The distribution of water in this age was by no means general. In Rome the water from the aqueducts first passed into large cisterns, and from these was distributed through lead pipes to other cistern, and to the fountains, baths, and various public buildings, and to private consumers. The last class was very limited in number, most of the people being obliged to get their supply from the public fountains. Each service required a separate pipe leading from the distributing-cistern. At the time of Constantine there were in Rome 11 great thermae, 926 public baths, 1212 public fountains, and 247 reservoirs.

The amount of water supplied to ancient Rome was very liberal. After a careful study of the evidence, and allowing for the fact that usually some of the nequeducts were out of repair, Mr. Herschel estimates the probable quantity delivered within the city at about 50 million gallons daily, or about 50 gallons per capita. Even at the latter figure the supply must be considered as very liberal.

The ancients had some clear notions concerning the quality of water-supplies. In his time, Hippocrates knew something of the danger of drinking water which had passed through lead pipes, and even recommended the boiling and filtering of polluted water. At Rome the different aqueducts brought water of quite different qualities. The best was used for domestic purposes, and the other for baths and various public purposes, the water from one aqueduct being of such poor quality that as a rule it was used only for irrigation and for supplying the basin of a marine circus. In some cases water was passed through artificial reservoirs to purify it by sedimentation.—Excerpt from Turneure and Russell, Public Water Supplies.

Early Water Supplies in Europe

The fall of Rome brought with it the destruction of the aqueducts and the general neglect of the entire subject of water-supply. The Popes maintained with various interruptions a supply to the city of Rome, and a few other important cities were scantily provided with water.

The terrible ravages of pestilence during the Middle Ages were doubtless due in large measure to the use of grossly polluted water, and it was not until about the end of the sixteenth century that general improvement began to be made in sanitary matters.

Paris depended entirely on the river Seine for its water-supply until a small aqueduct was constructed in 1183, but as late as 1550 the supply amounted to only one quart per head daily. In London small quantities of spring water were brought to the city as early as 1235 by means of lead pipes and masonry conduits. The first pump was erected on the old London bridge in 1582 for the purpose of supplying the city through lead pipes. In Germany water-works were constructed as early as 1412, and pumps were introduced in Hanover in 1527. Mention should here be made also of the aqueduct of Zempola in Mexico, constructed by a Franciscan monk between 1553 and 1570, which for two centuries served to convey water from Zempola to Otumba. It had a length of 27.8 miles and included three arch bridges of a maximum height of 124 feet.

During the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries progress was slow, and confined mainly to the cities of Paris and London. Pumps operated by water-power were erected in Paris in 1608. The aqueduct of Arcueil was completed in 1624 and delivered about 200,000 gallons per day, but at the end of the seventeenth century the supply to Paris was as yet only 2 1/2 quarts per head. In London various pumps were erected on the bridge from time to time which drew their supply from the river and were operated by the current. In 1619 the New River company was incorporated and laid its pipes throughout the city. It received its supply from the New River, and for the first time the general principle was adopted of supplying each house with water. This company still supplies a part of London.

WHY DO MEN SPIT AND WHY DO WOMEN REFRAIN?

Did you ever see a man who doesn't spit on the street or a woman who does?

This question may seem trivial at first sight, but it has a big social significance and is worthy of the attention of health officials and public authorities, the Michigan Tuberculosis association believes. It is a curious thing, this habit of the male of the species to expectorate from time to time while walking along the highway. No well bred woman would ever think of doing such a thing, while a vast majority of the men do it, well bred as well as ill bred. What is the answer to the mystery? It cannot be laid entirely to tobacco chewing, because comparatively few men indulge in this habit, and even non-smokers frequently have the habit of spitting.

It is probably purely a matter without rhyme or reason, one of those things that are indulged in because they are somehow sanctioned by custom—and that in spite of numerous anti-spitting signs to be seen in every town. Until now these chewing, because comparatively few powerless to lessen this habit, and anti-tuberculosis workers are looking for some bright genius who can find a way of so changing the fundamental ideas of men as to the indecency of spitting on the street that it will be as rare to find a man who expectorates on a public highway as it now is to see a woman indulging in this practice.

While laws against spitting help and are to be encouraged, a law can seldom change a habit. What is necessary, the Michigan Tuberculosis association thinks, is the development of a powerful public opinion against the habit that will make it universally recognized as bad form to spit on the street.

FIREMEN PLAN FOR SIREN WHISTLE

Will Purchase and Establish One at Their Own Expense

Charlevoix fire laddies have for a long period of time been dissatisfied with the city's method of sounding fire alarms, the big bell on the tower not answering the purpose it was intended for.

At their annual meeting held Tuesday evening steps were taken for the establishment of an electric siren whistle, to be placed either on the water tower or on the tower at the rear of the fire hall.

The fire boys expect to raise the purchase price of this siren whistle from proceeds of dances and entertainments. They already have a small fund laid aside which will be used, and would gladly accept any donation for this purpose.

It is anticipated that the establishment of this form of alarm will greatly increase the efficiency of the department, especially in sounding the alarm and thereby making possible for the members of the department to reach the scene of the fire in the shortest possible time.

AUTO ACCIDENTS KILLED 397 IN '21

STATE REPORTS SAME NUMBER AS YEAR PREVIOUS

Because of Increase in Population the Percentage is Slightly Less. A Death to Each 1210 Drivers

Automobile accidents killed 397 persons in Michigan during 1921, the same number as was killed the preceding year, the state department of health reported January 30th.

Of the total killed 129, practically one-third, were children under 16 years of age; 281 were males and 116 females. Detroit reported 131 deaths, Grand Rapids 15, and the upper peninsula 23. June is credited with the largest number of deaths, 48 being reported during the month, contradicting the theory that most of the accidents occur during the months of low visibility.

In 1921 the death rate from automobile accidents averaged 10.4 per 100,000 population, in comparison to 10.7 in 1920, increases in population being responsible for the slight reduction. The 1921 rate is higher than the death rate from smallpox, whooping cough, measles, scarlet fever, or infantile paralysis. The latest U. S. Census report, 1919, gives a rate of 9.4 for the registration area and comments that "automobile accidents have become the second most important cause of violent deaths."

With 412,717 motor vehicles owned in Michigan in 1920 there was one victim to every 1,039 drivers. Though the number of autos increased to 477,037 last year, the ratio of accidental deaths to the number of drivers dropped to 1 victim for every 1,210 motor vehicles.

K. OF P. DANCE WELL ATTENDED

Over Seventy Couples Enjoy Evening at Bank Hall

The Knights of Pythias dance held Friday night at the Bank hall was well attended and thoroughly enjoyed by members and guests. Durance's orchestra furnished the music, which included many old familiar airs. There were several waltzes, two steps and quadrilles which proved more popular than the modern fox trots. A lot of fun was had in a circle two step, the final charge being greeted uproariously. Light refreshments were served at midnight.

Now is the time to buy winter clothing. Benj. Brown.

FOUR CANDIDATES FOR ALDERMAN

SECOND WARD HAS A SURPLUS OF CANDIDATES

Two Candidates for Mayor and Contest in Second and Third Wards For Supervisor

Up to 3:49 p. m., Wednesday, the last day for filing of nominating petitions for city offices, one was forced to imagine that little if any attention was being given this most favorite winter pastime. But the last few minutes before the closing hour soon changed this and petitions came in from every source, with the result that Charlevoix voters will probably make their selections from a list of one or more.

For mayor, two good citizens filed, Arthur Bergeon and Frank M. Glassford. Both men have served as councilmen and are acquainted with the workings of city government. For City Clerk, treasurer and member of park commission, but one candidate filed, as will be seen below.

In the second ward four filed for the office of alderman and two for supervisor. One candidate appears for this office to fill vacancy. Without doubt the contest in this ward will be a warm one.

In the third ward, E. B. Ward, the present supervisor, will be opposed by Geik C. Geiken. This is the only office in this ward where the names of two candidates appear.

The line-up for the city ticket and wards is as follows:

City Republican Ticket
Mayor—Arthur Bergeon, Frank M. Glassford.
City Clerk—Charles H. Lamphear.
City Treasurer—Elma H. Cook.
Member Board of Park Commissioners—Simon M. Rose.

CIRCUIT COURT NOW IN SESSION

Review of Cases Tried So Far This Week

The February term of circuit court opened Monday, Judge F. W. Mayne, presiding.

Citizenship papers were granted to Faris Nikola, Frank Nekvasil, J. N. Rickers and Duncan Livingston.

The attention of the court was given to the case of John Rickard, charged with violation of the liquor law. The jury returned a verdict of guilty, and Rickard will be disposed of later.

Today the case of The People vs. John Robb, for embezzlement is being tried.

LOCAL FIREMEN ELECT OFFICERS

At Annual Meeting Held Tuesday Night in Fire Hall

At the annual meeting of the Charlevoix Fire Department held in the fire hall Tuesday evening, the following men were elected to fill office for the ensuing year.

President, Nnt Burns.
Secretary, E. M. Geer.
Treasurer, G. W. Lusk.
Chief, H. D. Marshall.
Foreman Company, Sam Hamilton.

Asst. Foreman Company, Charles Hyers.

Foreman Hose, G. W. Lusk.
Asst. Foreman Hose, Dan Bassett.
Chemical Men, Harry Gregory, Dan Bassett.

Under the guidance of these men the work of the department will be carried on in its usual efficient manner. Few cities of the size of Charlevoix has suffered as low a fire loss as Charlevoix-the-Beautiful, due to the efficiency of our fire department.

There are 2,000,000 more men than women in this country. But you'd never know it by watching the crowds coming out of church.

UNCLE SAM AS EMPLOYER

The United States government is the largest single employer of men and women in this country. At the present time in the executive civil service of the Federal government, and exclusive of the army and navy, there are employed approximately 850,000 workers, or one in 73 of all residents on American soil, tea years of age or over, engaged in gainful occupations. A little while ago, when the number of federal employees was even larger than it is now, one person out of every 68 in the United States who had any sort of a job at all was working for the government. These calculations are based on recent estimates of the bureau of the census in anticipation of the results of the fourteenth general census.

Prior to the outbreak of the war, in 1914, the number of men and women in civil positions in the executive service was approximately 355,000. In 1916 it had grown to 398,832. In 1917, after our entry into the war, it was 450,708. On June 30, 1919, the number was 707,448. The number on July 31, 1920, was 691,116.

These figures are confessedly approximations. Since the signing of the armistice the number of federal employees has been decreasing. Undoubtedly the decrease in force will continue to be made for months to come, but the growth of the government business in the past few years has been such as to make it a larger employer in the post-war period than it had ever been in the pre-war period.

These thousands of men and women working for the government comprise every type of ability and intelligence. Their duties cover a range of activities that far exceeds that exercised for other public or private employers; for, besides its task of lawmaking and law enforcing, of national defense and national finance, the government is charged with promoting the health and welfare of its people, of promoting their home interests, their agricultural, mining, manufacturing, shipping, fishing and transportation interests.

To do this it must investigate, control and eradicate diseases that attack persons, plants and animals. It must inspect livestock, foods and drugs. It must study conditions and progress in education, labor and commerce. It must prevent individual men or groups of men from using unfair business methods, whether in banking, transportation, trade or manufacture.

The government must administer public lands and the affairs of the Indians, and educate children in Alaska. It grants patents of invention. It sets the clocks of the country; forecasts the weather, and makes observations of the stars and heavenly bodies. It constructs buildings, docks, roads, bridges, irrigation works, builds canals and aeroplanes, makes ordnance and ammunition, clothing and other supplies for its soldiers and sailors. It makes all its own money and does all its own printing. It distributes all mail and many packages.

The government does everything that any employer in the United States does, in addition to a great many things that no other employer does. How does it treat its people? Is it a good employer or a bad employer? Are its employees contented? These are questions that I should advise the railroad men, the miners and other workers who seek nationalization of industry, to look into before they commit themselves.

Let them find out for themselves what government ownership would mean, to them.

The first thing they will discover, as I discovered when I began the present inquiry, is that nobody knows, and nobody in the government service is charged with knowing, the exact number of employees in the service from day to day. Even more astounding, nobody knows, or is charged with knowing, even approximately, the sum of the payroll of the United States.

It is not possible to find out within hundreds of thousands of dollars how much the United States pays yearly or monthly in salaries and wages. I went to the Treasury department, to the appropriations committee of congress, and elsewhere where I thought the information might be lodged, but nobody knew. I was told vaguely that the government was not run on an asset and liability basis, and therefore

It was not necessary to know the exact number of employees on the payroll. If the average compensation is $1,100, the federal civil service payroll now amounts to more than seven hundred million dollars annually. The largest single branch is the Post Office department, with nearly 300,000 employees. The War department has more than 125,000 civilian employees, the Navy department about 60,000, and the Treasury department about 40,000. No other branch has as many as 25,000 employees. Any institution that employs one in seventy-three of all this country's workers and calls for the expenditure of such a large part of our annual revenues is entitled to your serious consideration. You and you alone put up the money.

WARS EAT UP THE TAXES

When I set out to discover for you where the money you pay as federal taxes goes I did not have far to look. It goes for wars, past, present and prospective. Last year a little over 90 per cent of the national income went that way. In the report of the secretary of the treasury submitted to congress in December, 1920, he remarks:

An analysis of government expenditures for the fiscal year 1921, on the basis of daily treasury statements, develops the striking fact that of the net ordinary disbursements of $6,920,000,000 about 90 per cent consisted of expenditures under the following heads:

Purchase of obligations of foreign governments	$1,210,000,000
War department	1,100,000,000
Navy department	750,000,000
Shipping board	531,000,000
Federal control of transportation systems and payments to the railroads under the transportation act, 1921	1,037,000,000
Interest on the public debt	1,220,000,000
Pensions	210,000,000
War-risk insurance	115,000,000
Purchase of federal farm-loan bonds	30,000,000
Total	$6,710,000,000

Substantially all the expenditures entering into this total, and a large share of the expenditures on various minor accounts, represent burdens directly traceable to the war, to past wars or to preparedness for future wars. These figures serve to indicate the direction which sincere efforts to reduce the cost of the government must take.

Then I found Mr. Gilbert, the under-secretary of the treasury, saying: "There has been much idle talk to the effect that the excessive cost of government is due to inefficiency and extravagance in the executive departments. Without doubt there has been waste and inefficiency in the various government departments and establishments, and much can be accomplished, and has already been accomplished, by the introduction of efficient and economic methods of administration and the elimination of duplication and unnecessary work. It might well be possible to save as much as $20,000,000 or $30,000,000 by careful and systematic reorganization of the government's business."

The figures show that over 90 per cent of the total annual expenditures of the government are related to war. Out of total expenditures during 1920 of about $6,920,000,000, about 90 per cent represented expenditures directly traceable to the war, to past wars, or to preparedness for future wars. Of this, about $2,500,000,000 went for the army and navy, over $1,000,000,000 for the shipping board, over $1,000,000,000 for interest on the public debt, almost $500,000,000 for purchase of obligations of foreign governments on account of their war expenditures, and the remainder for pensions, war risk allotments and miscellaneous items related to war. An analysis of the expenditures of the first six months of the fiscal year 1921 gives similar results. The figures also show that the total cost of running what may be termed the civil establishment proper, that is to say, the various government departments, boards and commissions and the legislative establishment, have not much exceeded $500,000,000 even in the abnormal war years.

I sought details. If more than 90 per cent of the entire disbursements of 1920 went for past and prospective wars, how much had we been spending to keep the world safe for democracy? We are all familiar with the argument that the best way to prevent war is to be prepared for war. I thought I might find out whether that was true. I went back into the records and found that year by year, from 1834 to 1919 inclusive, the treasury department had kept an account of the actual disbursements—not appropriations, mind you, but actual money expended—of the War department, the Navy department and for pensions. When I got all the figures before me I couldn't add them up.

In the bureau of internal revenue they loaned me a machine and an operator, and so I know and can tell you that from 1834 to and through 1919 the War Department actually disbursed $23,002,800,000. In this same period the Navy Department spent $3,907,909,032.34, and pensioners of past wars got $5,834,070,004.23.

That is a thundering total of $29,909,750,041.40 for the army and navy alone, leaving out of account the $5,834,070,004.23 for pensions.

I will let you decide whether any part of the twenty-nine billion dollars spent for preparedness and for war prevented our going to war or found us prepared when we went to war. The three items I have enumerated are only ribs of the skeleton of the cost of war preparation and activity. I have not been able to excavate any other detail figures. But it is known that the war of 1812 cost about $133,703,890.

The cost of the Mexican war is estimated to have been $63,005,621.

The total cost of the Civil war, taking the period from June 30, 1861, to June 30, 1865, may be figured closely at $3,500,000,000.

The treasury in the winter of 1920-21 estimated in a report sent to congress through the secretary that the cost of the World war to us to that date had been $24,100,000,000, exclusive of our loans to the allies and other foreign nations.

So you see the cost of wars is going up, no matter how much money we spend by way of preparation.

Circulation counts—we have it.

pumping in the eighteenth century gave a great impetus to the development of water-works. Probably the first use of steam for this purpose was in London in 1761. A steam pump was also erected in Paris in 1781, and another in 1783, and a second in London in 1787. In all these instances the supplies were taken directly from the adjacent rivers.

The water supply of London was brought under municipal management in 1904, previous to which time the city was supplied by eight separate companies. About 55 per cent of the supply is from the Thames, 25 per cent from the Lea, and wells in the chalk. All river water is filtered. The total population supplied is about 5,000,000 and the rate of consumption is about 40 gallons per capita daily.—Excerpt from Turney and Russell, Public Water Supplies.

The introduction of Pipe In the United States, as in Europe wooden pipes were first used. These pipes were made by boring out logs in a diameter of six or seven inches with a bell shaped recess on one end and a spigot on the other. Often as many as ten lines of pipe were laid side by side to form a single main. Copper water mains about three inches in diameter with lead joints were laid over two hundred years ago to supply the fur trading station of John Jacob Astor on Mackinac Island.

When water first began to be supplied to each house it was not thought practicable to furnish a continuous supply. Instead, the water was turned on for a few hours only in each twenty-four, at which time the consumers were obliged to lay in a supply for the day. As late as 1891 a third of London's water supply was on the intermittent system.

The first public water supply in the United States was the gravity system supplying spring water to Boston in 1652. The first pumps used for water supply in the United States had cylinders of lignum vitae wood. It pumped spring water to supply the city of Bethlehem, Pa. The first general use of steam was about the colonies of Southern England and its introduction for pumping into the United States at Philadelphia in 1800 marked the dawn of a new era in water supply. With the perfection of cast iron pipe and the improvement of pumping machinery the number of water supplies has increased from about a hundred in 1855 to several thousands at present.

As regards the improvement in the quality of water not so much progress has been made as in increasing the quantity, and in this respect this country is far behind Europe. A large proportion of our largest cities (1910) use water taken directly from streams more or less polluted by sewage, and as yet few of these supplies are subjected to any purification process. The problem here is rendered especially difficult by reason of the enormous quantities of water used by American cities as compared with those of other countries.

From this statement of present conditions it is evident that the engineering work of the future lies principally in the development of new and better sources of supply, in providing increased quantities for our rapidly growing cities, especially in the improvement of the quality of existing supplies. In the management of water works also, much needs to be done in the direction of waste prevention, both to reduce the immediate cost of operation and in many places to render it possible to install purification works at a reasonable expense.—Excerpt from Turney and Russell, Public Water Supplies.

Romance Had Sad Ending: My first love affair was when I reached the age of fifteen. A young fellow in my class invited me to attend a party with him the following week. I accepted and was thrilled. My family were excited and mother was going to make me a new dress. I hardly slept that night thinking of the good time I was going to have, but I was doomed to a great disappointment, for the next day the young fellow kindly informed me that his regular girl had changed her mind, and he was taking her instead. I was not only heartbroken, but mortified when I had to tell the family of my spelt romance.—Exchange.

It will be very surprising if the perfectly delicious flavor of Brednut doesn't please your husband and your children.

For "new-idea" women

A "smart" food.

It adds flavor and subtracts expense three times a day.

IMPROVEMENTS and new ideas constantly come along. Certain women—natural leaders—are always quick to adopt such betterments.

Today you may be among the first in your neighborhood to try a new food—a new spread for bread. Brednut is its name. It has a delicious flavor and is as wholesome a food as you can imagine.

It's made from rich tropical nuts and pasteurized milk.

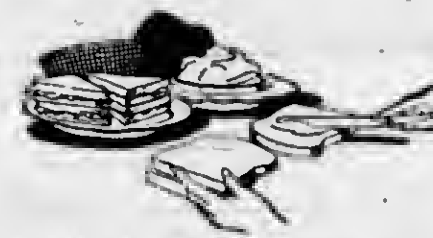

In far off tropical islands prodigal Nature grows a luscious nut with a pure white meat. These nut meats are brought to America. Here these snowy nuts are blended with pasteurized milk—under careful supervision. The result is Brednut—the new bread spread. Serve it three times a day.

Do you wonder now that the children so love Brednut, that Government bulletins speak so highly of the digestibility and energy value of such foods; that men quickly notice the delicate flavor of this new bread spread?

White, you know, is the color of purity. It is also the color of Brednut—made from rich nut meats and pasteurized milk. So you can actually see by its whiteness how pure your Brednut is. To color it to a golden yellow with the wholesome vegetable material given by your grocer is quick and easy.

Has Big Lumber Job

The Sands company of Manistee has a big lumber job southeast of town this winter. They have a regulated grade road six and one-half miles long through the woods, over which two big gasoline tractors haul big sleds of logs and load sixteen cars a day. It would require 25 teams to haul what the tractors do daily.—Mancelona Herald.

The Boyno City Chemical company has finished hauling approximately 4,500 cords of chemical wood, which has been placed on the banking grounds and is ready for shipment to Boyno City. About 40 teams have been on the haul for some time.

Petitions Sent to Washington

The petitions for the opening of navigation through the inland lakes for boats of five feet draft by placing locks at Bellaire and Elk Rapids now have approximately more than 2,000 names, attached and will be taken to Washington by a delegation of those most interested in the scheme. It is maintained by supporters of the plan that this action would open up thousands of acres of good land in Antrim county and permit an outlet for the produce of the country besides attracting thousands of summer visitors.

FAST ROAD-BUILDING

Road-building, once a reproach in this country, seems to be developing into a leading occupation. In the last five years there have been undertaken, as a result of federal aid, more than 28,000 miles of new highway construction, of which more than half has been completed and the rest was 70 per cent completed on January 1st. The cost of all this is estimated at $500,000,000. It does not include the rapidly increasing amount spent by states and counties without governmental co-operation.

The outlook for 1922 is more remarkable than anything yet done. One official estimates that there is available for road-building this year nearly $1,250,000,000, from federal, state and county appropriations, and that more than 700,000 men will be employed in road construction and patrol work.

Here will be a big start at direct reduction of unemployment as soon as the weather permits road work to go ahead on the scale contemplated. The supplies required will provide work for another army of employees. It may well be that this highway extension business will be the real opener of the good times desired.

A great deal of improvement and extension is planned for the railroads, too, which are now able to obtain money again for such work. But highways take the lead.

There was a time when the nation was chiefly concerned with developing its railroads. Now that interest has passed to the public roads, the result should be, within a few years, a vast network of excellent highways covering every section of the United States.

SPEAKING ABOUT TAXES

An exchange comments as follows:

"Taxes come in a lump; the benefits therefrom are spread through the whole year.

"When you so willingly voted for the soldier's bonus, which forms $2,356,250 of this year's taxes, you did it willingly and cheerfully. And had you stopped to think that indirectly, if not directly, you received a benefit from this money, some $25,000 of which came back to this county and went into the channels of trade?"

"And $3,000,000 goes to the University of Michigan and was favored by public opinion. We, in keeping with the whole state, have expressed ourselves in favor of good roads and therefore should help pay our portion of the state tax of $1,200,000 that will have to be paid this fall. There is also the county tax for good roads. Would you be without them for the price? You enjoy them, more or less, the whole year; you pay for them in a bunch. You take a railroad or steamboat trip and pay the fare and forget it. For the use of these improved streets and highways you pay but once a year. Be fair, now. Would you go back to the dirt roads if you could save the little it cost you?"

The Detroit News editorially thus touches the question:

"The rural taxpayers who are making the most of the complaint against high taxes, will find the causes if they examine their local government expenses. The district school teacher, who formerly drew $40 or $50 a month now receives $75 or $100 a month. Workers who serve the township or the county were formerly hired at $1.50 to $2.50 per day; their compensation now is several times that. And all expenses of the routine kind have advanced proportionately. In addition the people by direct vote have authorized extensions of governmental power which have required large expenditures. There is a simple way for people to call a halt. They can vote 'No' for awhile when these money proposals are up. It may not be a good thing to do, but it is the surest way to reduce taxes."

REPUBLICAN POLICIES BOOST BONDS

A comparison of present prices of Liberty bonds with those prevailing eighteen months ago is a fair index of what has taken place in every line of business and credit since the Republican victory at the elections in November 1920. It was in the summer of that year that the low point of the Liberty and Victory issues was reached. They were sold on the stock exchanges at the following prices: 3 1-2, 86.00; 1st 4 1-4s, 84.00; 2nd 4 1-4s, 81.00; 3rd 4 1-4s, 85.60; 4th 4 1-4s, 82.00; Victory 3 3-4s, 94.64; 4 3-4s, 94.70.

All of the Liberty issues are now selling close to par. The republican National Platform did not promise to restore Liberty bonds to par, not wishing to hold out hopes to the people which it might be impossible to fulfill, but President Harding in his speech of acceptance promised to bring back the price of our war securities to the figure that their owners had been compelled to pay for them. The president adopted the only practical plan for bringing that about, namely, the restoration of business confidence through the passage of sound economic legislation and the practice of the most rigid economy on the part of the federal government. The recuperation of Liberty bonds, came as a natural consequence of those policies.

The low prices continue on all winter clothing until all of it is sold, Benj. Brown.

Enlightening the Ignorant.

A large, cultured woman sat in an alcove seat for one of the Pay-lux performances at the Manhattan opera house. She was the type who read all the captions about in the movies. Her eyes twinkled with the fun of interpreting the pantomime for the benefit of the man with her, and those around who could not escape. "Aw," she would exclaim deeply and curiously. "Her toes!" Her best remark, however, was on the occasion of Pay-lux's final scene in "Amarilla," where she is dancing near the stone sent in the count's garden. "Now," she said, "she is Versilping where he sat."—New York Evening Post.

Truly Mathematical-Prodigy.

The mathematical prodigy, whose case is reported in the Lancet, was able to give the square root of any number running into four figures, in an average of four seconds, and the cube root of any number running into six figures in six seconds. He gave the cube root of 455,474,375 (which is 775) in 13 seconds. These feats, and others even more remarkable, he performed without resort to writing as he was blind from birth.

DOES YOUR BACK ACHE?

It's usually a sign of sick kidneys especially if the kidney action is disordered, passages scanty or too frequent. Don't wait for more trouble. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills. Read this Charlevoix testimony: Mrs. John Hill, 102 Lincoln Ave., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have done me a world of good. I suffered from an attack of lumbago. I tried various remedies but got no relief until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. In a short time they entirely removed the trouble." (Statement given October 26, 1911.)

On October 5, 1916, Mrs. Hill said, "I can speak just as highly of Doan's as I did when I recommended them before; I use this medicine occasionally as a tonic and it keeps my back and kidneys in good condition." 60c at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

AT THE MOVIES

Kit Carson is still alive! John C. Fremont is again with us! Gold has been rediscovered in Sutter's Creek California.

A new departure in motion pictures will enable the boy and girl of today to see the glorious "Gold Rush of '49," the Indian fights of the early plainsmen, and the activities of the "Molly Maguires," "The Avenging Angels," and "The Vigilantes." The "Old West," with its glamour, the "Bloody Frontier" with its picturesque costumes—these are not dead they have not passed on.

Kids who have wished that they could have lived in the good old days when headed buckskin and furs would have been their "uniform of the day" will be able to see the same heroes they worshiped in the pages of their history books and it must be admitted, "dime novels." The filming of a "serial," "Winners of the West," wherein are narrated the exploits of John C. Fremont and Kit Carson, will give the American lads an opportunity to see these courageous pioneers in "real life."

Not only will children be shown inspiring characters on the screen in such a way that they will take additional pleasure in pursuing their studies and become cognizant of the word "Americanism," but the so-called "serials" will be abolished. Statistics presented by the various censorboards indicate that 85 per cent of the present censorship activity and agitation is engendered by the fact that children see motion pictures. It is with a sincere desire to present only worth-while subjects for the consumption of minors and to reduce censorship to a minimum that this novel departure in "serials" has been launched.

The first of these "historicals" will narrate the adventures of John C. Fremont, soldier and explorer, whose excursions across the Rocky Mountains and into the West beyond form one of the brightest pages of American history. Particular care has been taken to cast in the leading role a person whose appearance, character and general experience fit him to portray so distinguished and important a character. Art Acord, winner of the world's rodeo championship, an experienced plainsman, and typical of the true pioneer, has been chosen to enact the leading part in this new departure in "serials."

Included in the "serials" are all the picturesque activities of the "forty-niners" during the gold rush period and all the stirring adventures of the Indian-infested wilds. We are taking every precaution to assure the authenticity and accuracy of every incident narrated in this production. Costumes will be "right," the settings will be accurate, and we shall sacrifice none of the glamour of the "Roaring Forties" to any conventional motion picture technique.

The names of John C. Fremont, Daniel Boone, Israel Putnam, Marlton on the Swamp Fox, Paul Revere, Ethan Allen, Nathan Hale, Kit Carson—to mention only a few of the conspicuous figures of our early days—certainly suggest the daring deeds of fine spirits which are suitable for reflection on the screen; and Washington, Franklin, and Alexander Hamilton not less definitely offer themselves as heroes for treatment in moving pictures which would amply supply the interest aroused by the clash of high purpose and intellect against opposing will and circumstances.

First Chapter starting at Palace Theatre, Saturday, February 18th and 19th.

William D. Taylor, whose great picture specials have for several years been among the big picture events of screen history, directed May McAvoy, the little Realstar, in "Morals," her latest release, which will open a two day run at the Palace Theatre next Saturday.

Simplicity and charm stamp the Vitaphone production "The Little Minister," which will be shown at the Palace Theatre on next Tuesday as one of the biggest pictures of the year. It is to the screen what James M. Barrie's story is to literature, and seldom does the spectator find a film version of a famous book that adheres so closely to the story as outlined by the author, as does this Vitaphone production—nor could a cast he selected which was better suited to the characters described in the story than that engaged for this production.

Nothing has been left undone to give the production the atmosphere of the Scotch hamlet of Thrums. The thatched roofs, the whitewashed walls, the simple country folk, and even the red coated soldiers are all true to life.

David Smith has achieved great success in pictures of this kind, and adds another gem to his long string of successes by his work with the "Little Minister."

This special attraction will be shown for the benefit of the Congregational church.

Saving His Eye.

A man was sharpening his ax on an emery wheel when a piece of steel lodged in his eye. He tried to remove it with a handkerchief, but it had gone right in and would not budge. The man was 12 miles from the nearest doctor.

The man went to his telephone, took off the cap of his receiver, removed the dialing ring, exposing the electromagnet below. Taking a needle he held it against the iron magnet. With the other hand he turned the generating crank, thereby sending electricity into the wires surrounding the core. The core became magnetized, and so did the needle which he held against it.

The rest was simple. He held the needle to his eye, and it promptly drew on the piece of steel, just as a horseshoe magnet will draw up nails.

The Secret of Death Gulch.

Death gulch, in the Yellowstone park, is a narrow, rocky, steep-bottomed ravine, with comparatively level floors or shelves, one above another. It was discovered in 1888 when the bodies of five beggars, one elk, many small mammals and numerous insects were found lying on the bottom. Visitors have often seen many dead animals in the gulch, and one counted no less than seven hours.

The place where these victims are found is a level shelf about twenty feet long. Last summer a scientist visited the spot with apparatus designed to analyze air. He found outside in the rock at the sides from which poured air poisoned with more than 1 per cent of sulphureted hydrogen and more than 50 per cent of carbon dioxide.

Aunt Mae Should Have Known.

Junior enjoyed having tales read to him, after which he would open the book and relate the stories, guided by the angle illustrations.

There was one near the back of the book of which he was especially fond. One day, seated on the floor, with the book open in front of him, he was lustily turning the pages to get to his favorite story.

Aunt Mae, knowing his favorite, had warned him three times, without response, to turn to the back of the book, when Junior summoned the book to with disgust and exclaimed: "Aunt Mae, don't you know this book are got two backs?"

Reminded Him.

DISPLAY IS PERIODIC

"Aurora Borealis" Has Its Manifestations at Intervals of From Ten to Sixty Years.

The name "aurora borealis" was first used by Cassiodorus, who in 529 observed one in France and wrote a description of it. The "aurora" is a periodic in its manifestations, the most displays being at intervals of 60 years, and less marked ones at intervals of 10 or 11 years.

It is assumed that the greater and lesser displays correspond with the increase and decrease of spots on the sun.

This phenomenon is generally manifested in the following way:

A dim light appears on the horizon shortly after twilight and gradually assumes the shape of an arch having a pale yellow color with its concave side turned eastward. From this arch streams of light shoot forth, passing from yellow to green and then to brilliant violet.

The name, "aurora borealis," while generally referring to the northern lights, is applied to a similar phenomenon visible in the vicinity of the South pole.

Love.
Into the world for others we can take nothing greater than love, for love is a wonderful guide and teacher. Skill and experience are worth little without it, and true and sacrifice never could make up for its lack. There is courage and healing, strength and inspiration in the mere fact that some one loves us and cares for what we are doing.

Best Way to Fall.
If one must fall there is less likelihood of serious injury if one relaxes than if one tightens the muscles and offers too great a resistance. A drunken man or a child offers less resistance than is usual in other cases.

EVERY DAY GOOD THINGS

Pistachio nuts are so rich in food value and so tasty that they make a most delicious addition to any dish. The pretty green is also a valuable asset to any combination.

Apple, Celery, and Pistachio Salad.—Quarter three bright skinned apples without removing the peeling. Cut into thin slices. Cut one bunch of celery into small pieces and place in cold water with a little lemon juice. Prepare French dressing, call all the ingredients, adding enough paprika to the dressing to give it color. Mix one cupful of blanched pistachio nuts with the other ingredients and serve on lettuce. The combination of the white of the celery, the red of the apple and the green of the nuts making a very pretty combination.

Arrowroot Jelly.—Beat one cupful of any good flavored fruit juice, like raspberry, strawberry or any other well liked, to the boiling point, add one cupful of water and enough sugar to sweeten. To four tablespoonsful of arrowroot add a little cold water and when mixed stir into the hot fruit juice. Stir and cook for twenty minutes. Remove from the heat and pour into molds. Serve cold with whipped sweetened cream.

Rice Snow.—Place one cupful of rice and a teaspoonful of salt in a clean salt bag, tie at the top to allow plenty of room for the rice to swell. Drop the bag into boiling water and keep boiling for an hour. Then empty into a serving dish. A hot chocolate sauce is enjoyed by those who are fond of chocolate. Serve with the sauce as a dessert or with butter as a vegetable.

Carrot Pudding.—Take one cupful each of finely minced suet, grated raw potato, grated raw carrot, granulated sugar, seedless raisins and currants. Add molasses to flavor and enough flour to make a soft dough. Place in a buttered pudding dish, then in a steamer and steam two and one-half to three hours. This pudding takes the place of plum pudding.

MOST HAZARDOUS OF SPORTS

Participants in Irish Wild Goose Chase Always in for Danger Real and Thrilling.

The etymology of streptichese is too obvious to need explanation. Followers of the sport merely fixed upon a distant strep and rode straight to it, crossing gallantly, leaping, ditch, palling, turf or timber, pastures, crops, moorland or ridge and furrow—whose riding straightest, came in first and was winner.

But there are few, indeed, to whom a wild goose chase bears any implication of sport, yet the phrase derives from a sport hazardous, indeed. It is said to have begun in Ireland, where a chosen leader took mounted men across country, but whose always the roughest, wildest going to be found. If misadventure befell the leader—some other took up the office—occasionally there was a change of leaders if the first proved thorough. For danger real and thrilling was the spice of the wild goose chase.

The winner was not he who came home first, but he who had flunked nothing in the route, even, possibly having gone further around to negotiate an extra hazard.

Knowing this I have wondered a little if the Wild Geese—the Irish legions who, fighting for alien kings, have shown themselves prodigies of valor—did not take their name from the sport nearest the heart of their homeland.—New York Herald.

The Life of a Psarl.
"The psarl resembles man in that it is born to die. Care for it as you will, its life can no more be prolonged indefinitely than ours can, because it has an organic constitution. If you tell me that specimens have been found in the tombs of the ancient Egyptians, I ask, what became of them? Those relics of a bygone civilization crumble into dust on exposure to the air."—Exchange.

A Chance for Annie

By ROSE MEREDITH

It began the night Annie Smith introduced Roger to Lucile Barton, the new milliner, who had had a birthday party in her rooms and invited all the girls in the shop and their men friends.

"She's pretty, isn't she?" asked Annie as they went home at midnight.

"Pretty?" repeated Roger Gray, dreamily. "More than pretty—she's beautiful—like a picture."

Annie's married sister found her crying herself to sleep that night, and that is the way she learned that Roger had almost, "not quite," asked Annie to be his wife. And here was beautiful golden-haired Lucile, come just in time to stretch out her long white arms and bar the door to happiness against quiet little Annie, whose arms were not white, but plump and pinkish, with little capable tanned hands, whose eyes were hazel and whose hair was soft and misty black.

"I haven't a chance beside her, she is so clever and handsome; but she wouldn't make a good wife for Roger; she palates and powders and doesn't seem real," sobbed Annie.

"You should worry," comforted Lucile. "I'll fix that near-vamp lady, honey. I've got to think it up."

"Can you, Louise?" asked doubting Annie.

"Can I?" Louise smiled mysteriously. "You know what a homey kid I am?"

"Well, didn't I walk in and marry Gene Fraser, the superintendent of the whole place, when every other girl was fishing for him and each one a Venus compared to poor me? I did."

There is no more important piece of machinery on the farm than the Cream Separator. A poor machine will cost you more than the price of a new one within a few months' time. They all trailed after her with hungry, expectant faces. Annie, pale and

Annie was the queen of the occa-swallowed the idea of peeling an out of the window, and it was then that Roger caught up Annie's little

BOOZE CASES TO U. S. COURT

State to Have Many at Marquette For Spring Term

The extent to which moonshine operations are being carried on in Michigan, and the upper peninsula in particular, is shown by the fact that the state department of public safety will have 122 liquor violation cases to take before the United States district court, northern branch, when it convenes at Marquette, February 7th.

These violations have all been found in the last three months and are in addition to a large number of prosecutions brought in the county courts. In nearly every instance the arrest resulted from either the manufacture or sale of moonshine whisky.

That the moonshiner is slowly putting the bootlegger out of business, at least the peddler of so-called bonded whisky, is the assertion of Major Robert E. Marsh, deputy commissioner of public safety. Moonshine whisky has become so plentiful that it is now being sold for as low as $2.50 a quart.

COUNTY TO SPEND $200,000 ON ROADS

Twenty Miles of Paved Roads to Be Added in This Section

According to the road building program outlined at the recent meeting in Cadillac of the state highway department and county road commissioners of this district, we have been assured by the state department that approximately $200,000 would be expended on highways in Charlevoix county, thereby adding 20 miles of paved roads to this county.

Under this program practically all of the bad pieces of trunk line roads will be closed. An outline map for counties was also worked out which compels counties to finish their roads outlined, before the state will accept for reward any further extensions of the county's system. This may compel many counties to slow up on construction work in 1922, Charlevoix county included.

The upkeep of roads is getting to be a large item of expense and therefore some means will have to be devised to pay this expense. A tax of two cents per gallon on gasoline was recommended, and the matter will be placed before the next legislature. The proceeds of this will be utilized for upkeep on roads if made a law.

Bay View now has a splendid new artesian well with a natural flow of 160 gallons per minute and with a pumping flow of 220 gallons per minute. Superintendent Ditto reports the water pure, soft and pleasant, and that the capacity of the well is sufficient to supply all of the water needs of Bay View, Edgewater and the golf course.

The twenty-four-hour pumping capacity of the new well, using the present equipment is 316,800 gallons, and it is estimated this is 60 per cent more than will be needed, even at the height of the tourist season.—Petoskey Evening News.

WINNERS OF W.C.T.U. CONTEST

PRIZES AWARDED TO THREE BEST ESSAYS WRITTEN

Winners Were the Misses Eva A. Ostrum, Margaret Krulik and Jean Swinton

The W. C. T. U. essay contest on the subject, "Reverence and Respect for Law," which closed last week, resulted in many taking part and the production of papers thoroughly covering the subject.

The essays written by Eva A. Ostrum, Margaret Krulik and Jean Swinton were pronounced by the judges as being the best and were awarded first, second and third prizes.

All three of the prize winning essays were exceptionally good, and the writers deserve full credit for the time and study given them.

For the benefit of Courier readers, we publish below in full the three essays awarded prizes:

First Prize

by Eva A. Ostrum, Bay Shore

We have no longer before us the question of prohibition as that has been settled for all time. The question today is that of law enforcement and obedience to the law.

To refuse to obey the law of the land simply because you do not like it is downright anarchism and bolshevism. Defiance of laws shows a lack of patriotism for law is the foundation of government. Many people consider that the biggest issue before the American people today is "law enforcement."

Anyone can help settle the issue by honestly obeying all the laws of the city and state, by standing by law enforcement and by informing the officers of the law of its violators.

Lack of reverence and respect for law and authority is one of the most dangerous of our national sins and not only the prohibition law but all laws are in danger at the present time.

Many people believe that wine is a good tonic and that brandy is a medicine. They should be taught the true nature of alcohol so that they will lose their resentment and be willing to give obedience to the prohibition laws.

In Rome, during the time of Caesar, people feared the law and obeyed it to the best of their ability. Why don't people today who are breaking the prohibition and anti-cigarette laws fear these laws and obey them?

The crime in the United States is due to the laxity of law enforcement and cannot be entirely made rid of from the former period when anarchists plied their trade without molestation from the street corners of the large cities.

We cannot permit the open violation of any specific law without at the same time breeding a spirit which will hold all law in contempt. Every sign that points to the evasion or disregard of the eighteenth amendment is on the high road of lawlessness.

Marshal Foch is from a land of wine but he says that while in America he proposes to respect our prohibition laws.

By laws that we pass our morals are measured indirectly rather than directly. The laws that we have to pass clearly show the steady abuses that we have to meet. The laws of a period are enacted not to give satisfaction to an immediate impulse of the human mind to legislate, but rather to meet a condition.

That it is difficult at this hour, to enforce prohibition laws we do not deny and that there are violations of law we do not doubt. Laws against murder have been known for centuries and yet we have many times awakened to find that human life is seemingly held lightly in our land. Shall we therefore, for the good of the land repeal the laws against homicide?

The liquor traffic was the greatest evil afflicting modern society. The only way to get rid of it was through prohibition and we had to get rid of it as a measure of self preservation.

Second Prize

by Margaret Krulik, 204 Lewis St.

"Let reverence for law be breathed by every mother to her lapping babe; teach it in college; write it in primers; spelling books and almanacs; preach it in pulpits; proclaim it in legislative halls; enforce it in courts of justice. Let it become the political religion of the nation, and let men and women of all tongues and colors sacrifice unceasingly upon its altars." These were the words of Abraham Lincoln.

The lax enforcement of some of our laws—for example the child labor and prohibition laws and the one dealing with the sale of cigarettes to minors, is a subject of daily comment; if these rules of conduct are not enforced a contempt is bred for other laws.

Americans have a reputation for devotion to law, yet men will come to officials and say, "I can give you information but I'd rather not have my name brought into it." Information of this type does not help as it ought, because of lack of witnesses. If men only had the backbone to stand up and speak against the lawlessness that exists it would greatly help the officials in their efforts to enforce the law.

A law is a promise. If you, the people, make a promise to yourselves are you going to, calmly stand by, scoffingly, and see this promise broken? Not if you are a true American citizen, and a good citizen is a law-abiding citizen.

Law is the foundation of our nation. What happens if the foundation of a building crumbles to ruin? Does the house stand erect and as beautiful as ever? No, nor will our nation, beautiful building that it is, stand erect and independent if law, its foundation, is allowed to decay.

During the war there was a road near Washington, which was temporarily closed. As a foreign official of high rank approached, the guard forbade his passing. The official said, (Continued on page eight)

NEXT NUMBER LECTURE COURSE

ADRIAN M. NEWENS, MONOLOGIST TO SPEAK

Entertainment to Be Held in M. E. Church Saturday Evening at Usual Hour

Adrian M. Newens, monologist, will be heard here on the Lyceum course at the Methodist church Saturday evening, February 18th.

Mr. Newens does not need much introduction in many cities or towns in this country. He has built up for himself all over the United States a reputation for being an entertainer of the highest rank. He is a master of the technique of his profession and adds to his superb technique a vitality and sincerity of motive that makes his characterizations live before the minds of his hearers.

Mr. Newens has attained fame by his rendition of "A Message from Mars." This has practically attained the position of a Lyceum classic. As many actors are known by certain famous plays with which they have closely identified themselves before the public so Mr. Newens is known on the Lyceum by his "Message from Mars."

But Mr. Newens is not a man of only one program. Besides the "Message from Mars" he gives a number of other programs each of which constitutes a splendid evening's entertainment.

Mr. Newens has just recently returned from an extended tour of the Pacific slope where he gave his "Message from Mars" to many audiences. One part of this tour lay in a virgin country just opened up to travel by a new railroad. To make some of these towns he even had to leave the railroad and go by stage. In one instance he made a stage journey of 120 miles.

QUIETLY WED FRIDAY EVENING

Central Lake Young Couple Married by M. E. Pastor

A quiet wedding took place at the Methodist Episcopal parsonage, Friday at 7:30 p. m., when Harold Meggison, son of Hon. and Mrs. Thos. D. Meggison of Central Lake and Miss Martha Burns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Burns, also of Central Lake, were united in marriage by Rev. H. R. E. Quant. There were attended by Miss Marian Meggison, sister of the groom and Clayton Eschleman.

Both of the young people are well known in Charlevoix. Mr. Meggison having held the position of assistant druggist at the Metcalf Drug Store for the past year, and Mrs. Meggison that of stenographer at the Abstract & Engineering Co.'s office.

Mr. and Mrs. Meggison left Saturday for a few days' visit with relatives in Central Lake after which they will return to Charlevoix.

THE VEXING PROBLEM OF A PURE WATER SUPPLY

Charlevoix as Well as All Leading Michigan Cities, is Facing the Same Problem

Facts About Chlorine That All Should Know

From Public Health Exposition, New York, November 14-19, 1921.

Over 2,000 American communities protect their water supplies with chlorine at a cost of less than 1c per capita per year.

Half the population of North America drink chlorinated water.

New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Detroit, Albany, Atlanta, Salt Lake City, Buenos Ayres, Durban, S. Africa (over 3,000 cities in all) chlorinate their water supplies.

In 1908 the typhoid death rate in cities was 27 per 100,000. In 1920 it was 5 per 100,000.

Chlorine has saved more lives in the United States during the past year than we lost in the world war.

Typhoid in cities per 100,000 population:

Year	Cities	Rural

1900	25.3	25.5
1901-05	24.5	25.4

Ice Pollution

There has been some recent discussion relative to the quality of our ice. The following excerpt is from the report of Theodore Horton, chief engineer, on Hudson River ice pollution.

I. Principal Sources of Ice Infection

1. Polluted rivers and other polluted bodies of water from which ice is taken.

2. Exposure of ice to contamination during harvesting.

(a) Exposure to polluted air.

(b) Handling and housing of ice by ice men.

(c) Depositing ice in streets or on sidewalks.

(d) Insufficient rinsing of ice, together with handling, just prior to placing in ice coolers.

II. Influence Active in the Purification of Natural Ice Harvested from Polluted Sources

1. The effect of subsidence and oxidation upon suspended matters and bacteria in bodies of flowing water is in general to remove from 50 per cent to 100 per cent in a run of from ten to fifty miles. With bodies of quiet water this removal is much greater.

2. The effect of freezing produces a phenomenon equivalent to filtration by which there is eliminated a large proportion of the suspended bacteria as follows: Of the chemical compounds about 25 per cent are eliminated. Of the bacteria about 90 per cent are eliminated according to different conditions.

3. The effect of time interval between season of harvesting and season of distribution of ice to consumers results in death of bacteria according to Whipple, Jordan, Fuller, Sedgwick and others to be more than 99 per cent in from thirty to sixty days.

4. Effect of freezing temperature (not "freezing filtration") is to destroy bacterial life, and especially pathogenic bacteria accustomed to body temperature, in proportion to the time of exposure. In general this destruction is about 50 per cent in one hour, 90 per cent in twenty-four hours and 99 per cent or more in 14 days.

In other words, within two months we would expect to find 5 bacteria of 1,000,000 bacteria assumed to be originally present in the ice. This is better purification than is obtained upon water with the best slow sand filters.

III. Infection from Artificial Ice

Owing to the "filtration effect of freezing" the process of manufacturing ice results in an unequal distribution of suspended matter; chemicals and bacteria are concentrated into the central core of the ice cake; and anyone using this central core will receive a stronger dose of infection than may be present.

Again, owing to the fact that artificial ice is generally used very soon after manufacture, the germicidal effect of time and freezing does not exert as great an influence as it does with natural ice. Therefore, infection from artificial ice, unless manufactured from absolutely pure water may be many times greater than from natural ice.

IV. Question of Investigation and Supervision of Ice Supplies

In regard to the question of whether steps should be taken to determine the quality of certain ice supplies already harvested this winter and to prevent the sale of any food to be contaminated and whether the framing of rules and regulations for the protection of ice supplies supplemented by systematic inspection would be practicable and, if so, whether it would be wise to inaugurate them, we beg to say:

1. That without any inspection and investigation we have no conclusive proof that ice is not collected from fields located in too close proximity to sewer outfalls nor that, in exceptional cases, the ice is not seriously or even dangerously contaminated.

2. There is an aesthetic objection to the appearance of organic and other discoloring filth associated with polluted waters.

3. That with care in selecting the ice fields the polluted sections such as in the vicinity of sewer outfalls could be reduced to a minimum, if not practically eliminated.

4. That a code of rules, involving perhaps the issuing of permits, which would allow cutting of ice only within certain limits supplemented by an inspection either directly through the inspectors appointed for the purpose during the ice season, or indirectly through the officers of local boards of health, and further supplemented by executive authority to prosecute violations of such rules, we consider to be perfectly practicable.

Quantity of Water We Use

One of the first questions to be answered when a new or enlarged water supply is under consideration is that relating to the quantity which will be required when the works are completed, and for a certain period of the future.

To be of any value, estimates must be based upon a careful study of the circumstances affecting increase in population and the use of water.

Consumption of water is usually stated in average gallons per day per capita. This figure where the population is so variable as in a resort town, has no great significance. The pumping plant is expressed as, thousands or millions of gallons per day, or year. For fire streams the unit is gallons per minute. The engineer computes in cubic feet per second.

The nature of the industries of a town is a large factor in determining the amount of water used; also the wealth and habits of the people, and the extent to which water is used for fountains, watering of lawns, street sprinkling, and other public purposes. Climate has also a very considerable influence, especially as to the amount used for sprinkling purposes and that which is wasted in winter to prevent freezing. It is probable, however, that the most important factors in determining the consumption is the degree of care taken to detect leakage or waste, and the fact as to whether the water is sold by meter or otherwise. Good quality, abundant quantity and high pressure tend to increase the consumption by encouraging a more liberal use and often, at the same time, greater wastefulness.

The different uses of water may conveniently be divided into four general classes: (1) Domestic use; (2) Commercial use; (3) Public use; (4) Loss and waste.

1. The domestic consumption per capita varies from 7 to 60 gallons per person per day for the lowest and highest class of dwellings respectively; and the average for a town varies from 11 gallons for Fall River, a manufacturing city, to 44 gallons for Brookline, a wealthy suburb of Boston. 30 gallons per capita per day is a fair average.

2. Commercial uses: Under this head is included all uses for mechanical, trade, and manufacturing purposes. Large users of water for purposes are office buildings, and stores, hotels, factories, elevators, railroads, breweries, sugar-refineries, and a few other industries. 25 gallons per capita per day is about the average.

3. Public use includes the water used for schools and other public buildings, street-sprinkling, water-towers and fountains, sewer-flushing and the flushing of water mains, fire-extinguishment, and a few other occasional uses. Water for such purposes is seldom measured, but the amount is not likely to exceed on the average five gallons per capita.

4. The enormous quantities of (Continued on page 3)

LEAVE SOME SNOW ON THE SIDEWALKS

Charlevoix Mothers Make Request to Business Men

Charlevoix mothers have registered a kick against merchants on Bridge street, and are justified in so doing. They ask that a narrow strip of snow be left on the outside of the walks, that they may be able to push their baby cutters instead of dragging them.

Many merchants clean the walk in front of their place of business while others do not. Bridge street at places is bare of snow and ice and at other places is not, especially in front of unoccupied stores.

The mothers ask that a strip of at least three feet in width be left on the walks the entire length of the street. When they are on a shopping trip many are obliged to bring the little ones with them. And the little ones cannot walk, so must make the trip in the baby cutter.

For the ordinary mother, unaccompanied, a trip down or up Bridge street is a hardship—in fact almost a physical impossibility, when compelled to push or drag a baby cutter over bare sidewalks.

They have appealed to the council for relief and ask that the matter be taken up with each business place.

Leave a little snow on the walk and give these mothers a chance to enjoy weekly shopping the same as those who are not compelled to bring the little ones with them.

BONUS MEASURE MUCH IN DANGER

HARDING UNDERSTOOD TO OPPOSE BOND ISSUE

Tax Plan Also Held Unworkable and Congress May Dump Overboard Entire House

The soldier bonus problem may be taken up by President Harding and his cabinet immediately.

While congress waited for some guiding word from the president on the question which has stumped it, Harding was expected to seek advice from his cabinet provided he deems insufficient the information already received from Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

There was a growing belief that Harding will tell the conferees that the bond plan is impracticable. With the tax plan held unworkable and a possible frown from Harding on bonds, congress would have a pretext to dump overboard the whole bonus.

The president is known to be very much in doubt that it would be possible to raise the required sum without running up interest rates and disturbing the financial tranquility of the country.

While under the stress of wartime conditions bond issues are warranted, the president feels that such an issue now would only upset business conditions.

BOOZE LANDS MEN IN JAIL

OFFICERS LAND TRIO FROM BOYNE FALLS

Justice E. S. Stacks Hands Out Stiff Fine and Prison Sentence for Offenders

Boyne Falls and vicinity just at the present time has the edge on all other parts of the county for keeping the county jail filled with law violators. The eighteenth amendment and its limitations are seemingly unknown in several places in that section.

On Wednesday of last week there was a strike at the Cobb & Mitchell, camp No. 47 and a number of the men visited Boyne Falls, among whom were Adolph Martinkus, Benny Yerks and Peter Rings.

The trio became noisy and boisterous, their actions resulting in the officials of that seemingly quiet little hamlet becoming suspicious that some cause other than ordinary good fellowship was the reason for their actions. Someone suggested moonshine, and the village officers proceeded to make an effort to place them under arrest. Moonshine affects people in various ways. Sometimes it makes them ugly, other times hilarious. In this instance it made them fleet of foot, and but one of the trio was apprehended.

Adolph Martinkus was placed in the village bastille and the following day appeared before Justice Stacks and pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication. He told where he got his booze and gave all the particulars. At the conclusion of his testimony he was asked if he had any friends present. It was then that Benny spoke up declaring himself a friend of the prisoner. Benny was called to the stand and not having heard Adolph's testimony, emphatically denied that his friend was drunk or that he had had anything to drink. Then, Peter, the avowed friend of the two was brought forward, and searched and a perfectly lovely bottle of moonshine was discovered, after which Justice Stacks imposed sentences as follows:

Adolph, ten dollars and costs and thirty day in the county jail; Benny and Peter, each five dollars and costs and ten days in the county jail.

"Miss Dingman, who is the principal of the Lakeview school in Pueblo, is the sister of Mrs. C. A. Hammond of this city and has made many friends in Ludington through her many visits here. She spent last summer as a guest of Mrs. Hammond."

THE BURDEN OF TAXES

Before the war the government of the United States spent about one billion dollars a year for all purposes, including interest on the public debt. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, the first full fiscal year after fighting stopped, the government spent in round figures six billion four hundred million dollars. In the fiscal year 1921, that is, up to June 30, 1921, it spent $5,115,927,689.20, and in the fiscal year of 1922, which will end on June 30, 1922, it will spend more than four billion dollars, says Secretary Mellon of the Treasury Department.

These figures include interest on the public debt which amounts to about one billion dollars, but include nothing for sinking fund or other debt redemption. Including both interest and sinking fund, the government will spend more than four times as much the fiscal year 1922 as it spent yearly before the war.

These expenditures and these heavy charges are a part of the price of victory. Your whole present problem is to curtail them. It concerns you to know just how these immense sums were gathered and how much you paid and are paying toward them, for of course we, the tax payers, the men and women with jobs, the men and women who have what the census calls "gainful occupations," paid every cent of it. It was our money until the government took it.

Let us examine the fiscal year 1920. I have not the detailed account for 1921, but it was slightly less than the year previous, as the year ending June 30, 1922, will be a slightly less burden on us than the year preceding. According to a careful analysis made by the late Dr. E. H. Ross, of the United States bureau of standards, a government scientist who was deeply and intelligently interested in the subject, every man, woman and child in this country contributes an average of fifty-three dollars in taxes to the support of the national government. Actually it is nearer fifty-four than fifty-three dollars, but I am taking the smaller sum for the sake of the round number. That is, the average family of five persons pays $265 a year out of its earnings to the federal government alone, in addition to what is paid for state, county and city taxes. The estimated average yearly income of a family of five is something more than $700. But before any of that $700 is spent $265 must be turned over to the general government to run the business of the United States.

The actual amount that each one of us paid was $53.77. We paid it through the medium of internal revenue taxes and customs duties on imported articles divided as follows:

	Per Capita
Income and excess profit.....	$37.20
Cigars and tobacco.....	2.77
Transportation and other utilities.....	2.72
Ants, candy, furs, jewelry, etc.....	2.52
Beverages.....	1.83
Special taxes on capital stock, etc.....	.99
Estate inheritance.....	.97
Stamps on legal papers, etc.....	.79
Admissions to amusements, etc.....	.77
Insurance and miscellaneous.....	.23
Total.....	$53.77

The taxpayer is next of kin to the treasury. At any rate he is the first person notified when the treasury needs money, and he always has to dig down into his jeans for whatever is needed. Taxpaying, even more than charity, begins at home. The boy's best friend is his mother, but the taxpayer's only friend, is himself. The only thing that can be done for him is to disclose as vividly as possible how much his government is costing and let him decide what he will do about it. It all comes down to this: The more money the government spends through defective organization or extravagance, the less you have to spend or save.

So much for the cost of the national business we support. We are all minority stockholders. The concern has no other source of revenue than our contributions. It doesn't make any money. In times like these, when almost everybody feels that he gets too little for what he sells and has to pay too much for what he buys, it seems to me the least we can do is to take an active and intelligent interest in this great common enterprise of ours and make sure that it is well organized; that it doesn't waste or spend extravagantly; that the employees are paid an adequate wage and have proper working conditions; that their morale is kept high and their enthusiasm in our interest unabated; in fine, that as a business it shall be conducted as efficiently and economically and on as modern scientific principles as any large private business.

Is it? That is a question you must answer for yourself after I have acquainted you with the actual situation and condition.

MAGNITUDE OF BILLIONS

I have been throwing the incredible figures at your head. Neither you nor anybody else has the faintest conception of what one billion dollars really is. We speak familiarly of billions as a commonplace, but most of us live our lives in terms of hundreds.

I have shown you that every one of us, man, woman and child, in this country, paid last year $53.77 each toward the support of the government. Of course, every person does not pay exactly $53.77. A great many pay more and some pay less; but those who pay the most try to take it out of those who pay the least by increasing the prices of what they have to sell, or of services rendered or work performed, so that it averages out at $53.77. Some pay more than their share, others pay less. This is called an incident of taxation. The whole point is that we all pay; that we pay now more than we ever paid before; and there is no present prospect of our paying less for some years.

In this way we have all paid our share in the World war. The net cost of that enterprise to date has been $24,100,000,000, or, including our loans to foreign governments, which have not been repaid, $33,475,000,000. These are official treasury figures. Do not let your eyes run over them lightly. Thirty-three billion four hundred and fifty-five million dollars is an almost incomprehensible sum. The cost of running the national government is now around $5,000,000,000 a year. The experts say that for the next two or three years the cost of the government will not descend below about $1,000,000,000 a year.

I want you clearly to understand the magnitude, the enormity, the overwhelming size of such sums. We chatter about billions nowadays without in the least knowing what is a billion. Let me try to bring it home to you. It is now, roughly speaking, 320 years since the birth of Christ. We do not know precisely and accurately at what hour and on what day Christ was born. But under the Gregorian calendar, according to which we now reckon time, we have a record of the days since January first of the year one, Anno Domini. From the beginning of the year one to January 1, 1921, there elapsed about 701,207 days, or, to reduce it further, 16,890,408 hours, which being reduced again, means 1,009,824,480 minutes.

I will ask you to remember that the whole history of the modern world from the first second of the year one to the last second of the year 1920 has been compressed into 1,009,824,480 minutes.

Now let us suppose that with the permission of the Roman authorities the United States had established a disbursing officer at Jerusalem on the first day of the year one with instructions to pay out $5 a minute day and night, Sundays and holidays included, right down through the centuries to New Year's day, 1921.

Suppose he had been given $5,000,000,700 to start him on his long spell of spending. That is one estimate of the sum that it cost to run this government in 1920. On the morning of January 1, 1921, this mythical disbursing officer, giving money away at the rate of $5 a minute, would have spent only $5,049,122,400, and would still be one of the richest men in the world, for he would have left on hand $936,883,300 of the original sum. Paying out at the rate of $5 a minute for more than 1800 years, he would not have kept pace with the cost of upkeep of this government for the one single year 1920.

Suppose this imaginary government spender had been authorized to pay out at the rate of $23 a minute through the centuries. He would not have finished, on January 1, 1921, paying for our share of the cost of the World war by some $784,000,000. He would have that much left over after paying out $23,225,003,040. He would have been paying out nearly 40 cents every second the clock ticked for more than 19 centuries without being able to discharge our share of the World war cost.

Do you ever bother your head about these hundreds and hundreds of dollars that you contribute to the support of the government? You earned them. You know whether they came easily or not. Do you know where they go after they leave you, how they are spent, whether wisely or foolishly? It's all your money, contributed for the proper and economic conduct of your business. There is no such thing as government money. The government never earned a cent.

You own the government and you support it, and it is merely administered by men of your selection. I have always been puzzled about why you do not take an active and eager interest in what becomes of your money that you pay in taxes.

But let's go on and get down to cases.

water (150 to 300 gallons per day) used by some of the large cities of the United States, when compared with the foregoing data from metered supplies, indicate that a very large percentage of the water furnished is lost through leakage or is wasted by the consumer. The chief causes of such waste are bad plumbing, leaky mains waste to prevent freezing, and willful or careless waste. With metered supplies, water may still be badly wasted by the consumer, but such being paid for at regular rates, it must be considered as legitimate consumption. But when all services are metered and a liberal allowance is made for public uses, there is still a large amount of water apparently furnished which is not accounted for.

This discrepancy or loss is due to three causes: errors in meters, errors in estimating the pumpage due to slip of the pumps, and actual loss through leaks and breakages. Meters, when old, will tend to register less than the true amount, especially when measuring small quantities.

Leakage from mains has been directly determined in several cases. Tests of comparatively new pipe systems indicate a leakage of from 500 to 1200 gallons per day per mile. Certain tests of pipes in several German and Dutch cities showed leakages of less than 300 gallons per mile, showing more care in construction.

The total amount of water lost or unaccounted for in metered supplies may be placed at 25 gallons per capita per day.

Total consumption per capita: Recapitulating the above estimates for various purposes, we have 85 gallons per day per person, as reasonable average values for those supplies having a fairly good meter system.

It has been found that the greatest quantity of water is used about 8 to 10 o'clock in the morning with a small increase after each meal which may be attributed to dish washing and the return of the men to their work. Monday morning is clearly wash day and some studies have shown a Saturday night maximum. The yearly consumption curves show the dry summer periods when sprinkling is done and cold winter nights when running water prevents frozen pipes. Fire consumption does not average high but may require for a short period two times as much water as the ordinary uses. It is for fire protection that small city water works were designed.

Man With Horns

"A native with horns like those of a springbok, has been brought here from the Rand," writes a Johannesburg correspondent of London Tit-Bits. "The horns began to develop when he was nine years of age, and, despite frequent cutting, continue to grow. In every other respect the man is normal. It is highly probable, in view of the medical interest in the case, that he will be sent to Europe."

When you have tea with your friends ask them if they are using Brednut. It will be surprising if some of them do not speak with enthusiasm of the fresh wholesome flavor of this new bread spread.

The Surprised Mr. C!

How Mrs. C. pleased his appetite and her purse

MRS. C.—a clever young housekeeper of Flint, Michigan, related the following amusing incident:

Mr. C., rather boasted of his epicurean tastes. Extravagant by nature, he had the notion that a fine food was necessarily an expensive food. Now Mr. C.'s spendthrift appetite continually exhausted Mrs. C.'s slender purse.

But he admits it now—the laugh is on him.

Mrs. C. discovered this new bread spread sold at about half the cost of the one she was accustomed to using. Incognito, it was introduced to Mr. C. He remarked—"Well this certainly has a fine fresh flavor. Where did you get it?"

Yes, Brednut will please the most exacting husband. And as for children—just watch yours go for it.

It's made from pasteurized milk and rich tropical nuts

Thank generous Nature for Brednut. In far off tropical islands she grows a rich nut—with a white meat. These we bring to America. We secure pasteurized milk from healthy cows. Blended together in spotless surroundings under careful supervision these ingredients make Brednut—the new fresh flavored spread for bread.

You'll find Brednut is a real treat. Try it today. When your grocer delivers your first pound, notice how white Brednut is—so white you can actually see its purity.

You can quickly color Brednut to a rich golden yellow with the wholesome vegetable material which your grocer will give you.

THE WRONG BOTTLE

Little Evelyn Hale, whose home is in one of the middlewestern states, is alive, but that is because a hospital is near her home, so that doctors and nurses and a stomach pump could be got into action quickly. Otherwise she would be dead. Her father got up in the dark to give her some cough medicine. A bottle containing a poison solution was on the same shelf with the cough medicine. Father grasped the wrong bottle—that was all.

It hardly seems necessary to point a moral. Much has been written about the wickedness of keeping any kind of poisonous drugs where they can be taken or administered by mistake. Much has been written, too, about giving any kind of medicine in the dark, because of the likelihood of giving an incorrect dose, as well as the danger of giving entirely the wrong thing.

The trouble is that no amount of saying or writing ever seems to be enough to protect the little Evelyns and Jimmies and all their generation from the carelessness of their parents.

Could you tell a stranger what your schools are doing?

Could you mention the studies your child is pursuing?

Do you know the teachers of your children, or must some one point them out to you?

Do you know whether your child is doing excellent, mediocre, or poor work in school?

Could you name the branches in which your child is doing excellent work?

"With the multiplicity of demands upon us, it is necessary to focus the attention of the people of the country upon the school. We have, it is true, a few people interested in our schools—the board of education, teachers, parent-teacher clubs, mothers' clubs, and a few additional organizations—but all these are as a handful in comparison to the population. People should know school facts—school affairs must be made 'town talk'; chambers of commerce, clubs of all sorts must discuss—not 'toss'—the merits or demerits of the schools; groups in the tobacco shop or pool-room must argue about the schools. A community must know her schools as she knows nothing else. The schools must be brought close to the people, not merely as structures of brick, stone or wood, with desks and teachers; not merely as places where children are kept out of mischief five hours a day, but as institutions having a vital relationship to the affairs of daily life."

AT THE MOVIES

No more thrilling events ever happened in American history than the famous fights between hands of Indians and wagon trains of settlers westward bound across the great plains in the middle of the last century.

The gradually narrowing circle of riding, shooting redskins, and the small group of prairie schooners, huddled together as bulwarks for the determined pioneers, defending their wives, children and worldly possessions, are known to the present generation only by picturesque accounts in history and by crude reproductions in Wild West shows.

Accurate and blood stirring moving pictures of just such a fight are to be seen at the Palace Theatre next Wednesday when the second installment of "Winners of the West," the Universal continued feature, starring Art Acord, is to be shown.

Wallace Reid christened the new speedway near Los Angeles, which is proving such a boon to southern California speed merchants. Wallie was about to make racing scenes for "What's Your Hurry?" at the speedway.

Thus if you are a motorist, you will recognize some familiar faces in the auto world in the picture at the Palace Theatre next Wednesday. On the screen of course, Wallace Reid wins the race against his famous opponents. Also the second chapter of the "Winners of the West."

The "Testing Block" is coming. Wm. S. Hart's Paramount picture. A thrilling story of the Sierras in the Gold Days will be shown at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday. Mr. Hart is seen as a bandit chief who is reformed through the love for a wandering girl violinist. Eve Novak is the girl. Also the starting of the "Winners of the West." Chapter Palmy.

"Red" Side Were Winners.

The contest which has been running for several months in the Lady Maccabee lodge ended Tuesday evening, being won by the "red" side. Much fun has been enjoyed on both the "red" and "white" sides getting new members and gaining points in various other ways. The "white" side, who has had Mrs. P. R. Ross as their leader, will reward the "red" side with Mrs. J. Hartwick as leader, with a supper in the near future.

W. C. T. U. ELECT THEIR OFFICERS

Meeting Held on Friday Last Was Well Attended

Forty women attended the annual meeting of the W. C. T. U. at the home of Mrs. A. J. Usher last Friday afternoon. A Francis Willard memorial service was conducted by Mrs. H. R. E. Quant in a very able manner. The election of officers resulted in the following:

President—Mrs. S. J. Alcox.
Secretary—Mrs. Frank Metcalf.
Treasurer—Mrs. Brayton Saltoun.

Sixteen new names have been added to the list thus far during the drive for new members. Here are five reasons why every woman in Charlevoix should belong to the W. C. T. U.:

Because they advocate the highest type of education in our public schools, so that the scholars may have a well-rounded view of life—ask the teacher.

Because they helped tremendously to secure the ballot for the women of America—ask the woman voter.

Because they have united the women of all creeds in the common social tasks which are the concern of all—ask the social service leader.

Because they have given one another, a larger and broader outlook upon the problems of the world—ask the man at home.

Because they helped secure better conditions in shops and stores for the women in industry—ask the worker.

U. members take this course in order that we may do more efficient work for the Master.

GRANTED COMPLETE PHARMACIST PAPERS

Vernon S. Payton Successfully Passed California Exams.

Word has just been received by D. S. Payton, deputy city clerk, to the effect that his son, Vernon S. Payton, who left Charlevoix for San Diego, California, in December, had successfully passed all examinations and has been granted full pharmacist papers under the California laws.

Michigan as well as all eastern men who have gone to California and other western states to enter this line of business, have found it almost impossible to pass the examinations, not because they were not eligible, but that California laws were made in a manner that almost excluded eastern men.

However, Mr. Payton overcame this difficulty, and has successfully passed the examinations and received the necessary documents. He is now working in San Diego, Calif.

CHARLEVOIX TEAM AGAIN VICTORIOUS

Defeats Alba By Unanimous Decision of Judges

Friday evening, February 10th, the Charlevoix debating team erased their defeat of January 13th at Alba, by defeating Alba by a unanimous decision of the judges.

There was a marked superiority in the logical delivery of the Charlevoix team, which without doubt was aided by the large audience, who showed their interest and approval.

The teams were composed as follows: Alba, affirmative: Edmund Soperson, John Makel, Glenn Glydin. Charlevoix, negative: Helen Mason, Kay Gaskin, Marella Quant.

Charlevoix will go to East Jordan February 28th, where the last debate on this season's schedule will be held.

Adrian M. Newenc, who will appear at the Methodist church Saturday evening as fourth number on the local lecture course, is the highest paid reader with the Redpath Bureau. 7t1pd

WILL MARSHALL ONLY CANDIDATE

Other Two Candidates Have Withdrawn Their Names

The contest for aldermanic honors in the second ward, as mentioned in the Courier last week, has been eliminated by the withdrawal of H. S. Harsha and A. J. Usher, and the field left open to Will Marshall and H. L. Oldham.

Thus the voters of this ward will be deprived of all the thrills of a four-candidate contest. The withdrawal of the two above mentioned men, while criticized by some who were opposed to this move, will do away with many of the disagreeable features of a four-man contest.

The step was taken after the situation had been carefully gone over, and the two candidates left in the race can "go to it" by adopting any campaign policy or slogan they desire.

We believe the voters of the second ward will choose the man best qualified to look after their interests.

The Ladies Aid of the Congregational church will serve a Colonial dinner in the church dining room, Wednesday evening, February 22nd, from 5:30 to 7:00 o'clock. The public is invited. Price 35 cents. 7t1

NO REST—NO PEACE

There's no peace and little rest for the one who suffers from a bad back and distressing urinary disorders. Charlevoix people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Ask your neighbor! Be guided by their experience.

Daniel Himebauch, 107 W. Upright, Ave., Charlevoix, says: "I had a lame back and felt pretty bad a good many times with backache. I was bothered by the weak and irregular action of my kidneys and had to get up three or four times at night to pass the secretions, which were highly colored and contained sediment. A few boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills bought at Metcalf's Drug Store fixed me up in a fine way."

COMMUNICATION

To the Voters of the City of Charlevoix:

Most of you know that I am a candidate for the office of Mayor of Charlevoix. I am a candidate because those who signed my petition and others urged me to accept the candidacy in what I believed to have been a spirit of good faith. It was urged that I should be able if elected to accomplish something for the good and welfare of the city and people generally.

Having accepted the candidacy, justice to all demands that I make a proper statement for your consideration. I want to say, first, that I have entered into the present contest unhampered, unpledged and unprejudiced and I am under obligations to no man, company or corporation or interest of any kind. No person can truthfully say that I am in this election backed by any man, or group of men, or any special interests; in other words, there are no strings on me of any kind or description, neither will there be at any time. If I am elected I will discharge the duties of the office to the best of my ability looking only to the best interest and welfare of the city and all the people.

I believe that we are facing some serious and important problems. It is my desire and hope to see them worked out in a business-like and careful way; to avoid all unnecessary expense to the taxpayers and still accomplish the things which are vital to the prosperity of this city.

I have no criticism of any one, no selfish interests of my own, I would like to aid in bringing about a close-binding co-operation of all the people of this community so that all may work together for mutual advantage. The whole matter is for you to decide on March 1st.

Very respectfully,
adv-711 F. M. Glassford.

HALF CENTURY
For the Roof that will shelter you and your children's children

HALF-CENTURY BRAND
WHITE CEDAR SHINGLES

Here are Four Things You Should Know

when you put a roof on your house or barn.

How your shingles are seasoned? This is one of the most important things about shingles. If they are kiln dried they stand a good chance of being dried out too fast and too much. That makes them brittle and liable to crack in nailing.

"Half Century" Brand Shingles are all "air-cured"—nature's way—the best way. Are your shingles the right thickness? If too thin they are apt to "curl" and warp.

What kind of wood are they? Everybody who knows anything about woods knows that some woods stand the "wear" of weather much better than others and that the wood that resists "weather-wear" best is White Cedar.

The right shingle nails to use. "Half Century" Shingles outwear a common steel nail by a long, long margin. Use galvanized or copper nails. The other kind soon rust out.

For a roof that will last your lifetime (and more) insist on having Half Century Brand Shingles and use rust-resisting nails.

And remember that white Cedar Shingles take any color, shade or stain beautifully. All lumber dealers can supply you. (Insist on seeing the trade-mark above on every bundle).

You will find it worth while to ask us for a copy of our booklet, "How to Lay a Shingle Roof." It's free.

His Phantom Fiancee

By LILLIAN MITCHELL

© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Merton had not been seated at the Anderson boarding house table ten minutes before every girl there had fallen in love with him and had at the same time noticed the queer ring that he wore on the fourth finger of his left hand.

"I've seen men with wedding rings," said Saddle Thompson, "but I must confess that I never before saw one wear an engagement ring."

Although he was jolly and always ready with a joke, it was two weeks before anyone had asked him about the ring. There was an unspoken about Merton that was not to be denied in spite of his care-free camaraderie. Saddle Thompson had never been bashful with anyone before, but even she could not seem to break through the social ice that he formed with no apparent effort.

"You ask him, Myra," she urged. Myra flushed and shook her head. Myra never asked questions of anyone. And so it was Saddle who blurted out across the table one night:

"Is that an engagement ring, Mr. Merton?"

He nodded. "That's what it is," he responded easily. "My firm sent me out to India last year. India is a remarkable country—full of rare things, jewels, exquisite flowers from which perfumery is made, and—"

"And beautiful girls?" suggested Saddle.

Myra glanced anxiously at Merton, who was again nodding in acquiescence. "I had some letters of introduction, and stopped at the home of one of the officials of the government. His daughter was a pretty little thing—just eighteen."

Myra, who was now twenty-four, felt a sudden hatred of the pretty little girl of India, felt jealous of the scant eighteen years. Merton had been in the boarding house only two weeks and yet Myra felt as though she had always known him, had always been waiting for him. And now he said frankly that the ring he was wearing was an engagement ring. Myra's love-world seemed to be tumbling about her ears, and she stumbled into the living room without waiting for her dessert.

She thought that never again would she speak to Merton. Yet when he came into the living room she found no good reason for refusing to speak to him.

And so the weeks went on until Merton had been there six months. He and Myra would sit for hours talking over the business that filled their days. It was one night early in December that he entered the dining room jubilantly.

"Myra," he called, just as she was sitting down, "can you come here a minute?"

"I've a letter—came this afternoon—I tried to get you on the phone, but you weren't there at the time—" he shook his head as the table buzzed with conversation about soup and politics and street car fares. "Come, let's have dinner outside tonight. We can't talk in all of this babble."

Myra's heart fluttered.

"I'm to go to the New York office next week—" he said.

Myra's cheeks paled. "For good?" she whispered.

"I sure hope so," he said excitedly. To Myra it did not seem possible that she could stand his going. She had grown so to depend upon the long, happy evenings when they discussed their mutual interests and books that they read together that she had slowly drifted on and on, thinking more and more of him each day. And now it was all to vanish like mists of the early morning.

Across the table at the restaurant she watched him talk. He had a slip of paper beneath his hand upon which he sketched rapidly as he talked. That was a habit of Merton's. She tried to see what it was he was drawing, but the vase of pink roses between them, which he had pushed toward his right hand, obscured the paper. Finally he looked satisfied and slipped it into his pocket.

"It's a wonderful chance," he said as they rose after the meal. "It means that now I can marry and have a little bungalow with rose vines and bushes, a little garage in back with a car, trips to the theater in town on winter evenings—and a fireplace, Myra, with pictures in the flames."

Outside he called a taxicab, much to Myra's joy, and they jumped in.

"Your fiancée?" began Myra.

He turned to stare at her, and she in turn, dropped her eyes to the ring, which he had said was an engagement ring. It was gone.

"Your ring—" she said.

He put his hand in his pocket. "It's all ready for my girl," he said excitedly. "They fixed it up for me this afternoon. I told them I was in a great hurry." He took her hand and slipped a ring on her fourth finger.

Myra pulled away. "But you said—you said it was an engagement ring," she said.

"It was. I bought it for the girl I should marry when I was in India. It was so beautiful, and I knew that some day I'd meet you and be glad that I had it ready for you."

"But I thought—" said Myra.

"You thought that the little girl in India was my fiancée," he laughed, "and I let you, because I couldn't say anything before I had a home to offer you, dearest. You see, I had a sort of a phantom fiancée, so that if you you know—loved some one else I should never have tied you down with promises to a failure like me. But now—"

Myra thought of all the black nights she had been thinking of the little girl in India, and recalled the intense jealousy that she had felt toward the unsuspecting girl. Then her lips curled upward happily. Perhaps, after all, her present moment of ecstasy was greater because of the contrast.

"And now I have a real fiancée, haven't I?" asked Merton anxiously, as she was silent.

Myra nodded happily.

GRAVEYARD OF THE ATLANTIC
Over Two Hundred Ships Have Been Wrecked Near Treacherous Cape Sable.

Sable Island, sometimes called the "Graveyard of the Atlantic," is a low, sandy island about one hundred miles off the southern coast of Nova Scotia. It is on the northern lane of travel between Europe and America. Over two hundred wrecks have occurred near the treacherous Cape Sable, which juts out into the Atlantic at the southwest extremity of the island. The island is about twenty miles long and one mile wide. Thousands of trees have been planted on the island by the Canadian government, the purpose being to hold more solidly the shifting sandy soil. Before the trees were planted the shape of the island was continually being changed by the pounding of Atlantic waves. A life-saving station, lighthouse and wireless telegraph station, are maintained there. Cranberries grow in large quantities and the island supports a hardy breed of ponies.

"But I must pass!" and gave his identity. The guard said, "This road is closed, and you could not pass even if you were an American citizen." This incident illustrates the equality of law.

Third Prize
 By Jean Swinton, 401 Michigan Ave.
 The recent increase of crime in our country indicates a growing disrespect for the law. The people who break our laws do so from selfish desires or because they do not realize the necessity of the law.

The word law as defined by Blackstone means "the rules of human action or conduct." This definition is broad enough to include civil, moral and ceremonial laws but too broad for the ordinary meaning of the word. The word law as ordinarily used is confined only to such rules as courts, supported by proper authority can enforce. Under this definition come the civil and trade laws and national laws, such as those regulating commerce and trade and law against theft and murder.

The laws of our country are modeled much after those of England as are most of our state laws, except those of Louisiana, which are modeled after the French code of laws.

The laws of the United States are made by the representatives of the people and are upheld by courts which were created by the people. All laws should be obeyed and all should help to enforce them, but in the United States where laws are made by direct representatives of the people it would seem as if it were each man's special duty to see that they are enforced. In countries where laws are made by kings there is reason for feeling that the laws are commands to be obeyed because someone in authority says to obey them, but in our country we are all responsible for the laws that are made and we should be responsible for the enforcement of them once they are made.

Education is the principal, if not the only way by which people may be made to realize that they are responsible for the enforcement of the law. Little children should be taught that it is a patriotic duty to obey the laws. Many laws which seem of so little importance if explained and reasons given for the need would be much better enforced. People would see the need of such laws as the law forbidding fires to be left burning in the woods.

Only by education will people ever be made to realize the absolute necessity for the cigarette and prohibition laws. Many men would never dream of breaking the law against murdering a fellow man and yet they daily allow young boys to buy and smoke cigarettes before them, and think nothing of taking a drink of "moonshine" made by some friend with his private still. These same men will exclaim with horror against all the mail robberies, never realizing that they are teaching boys to think lightly of the law by openly disobeying the prohibition and cigarette law themselves. No wonder these young bandits think lightly of the law when they see daily many laws broken. To them there is no difference between breaking the prohibition law and holding up a man or even killing him if he resents losing his money. And really there is no difference. A law is a law and to break one is to break break one is just as bad as to break another.

Since man prefers to live in communities laws are necessary. Laws are made for the benefit of the community. Many benefits which civilized social life brings us can be obtained only by subordination to some extent of our own individual desires to the general good. In exchange for these benefits of civilization we should obey the laws cheerfully and aid in enforcing them.

ALANSON HAS COSTLY FIRE

Bert Owens' Drug Store Building Destroyed Sunday Night

Alanson had a costly fire at about midnight Sunday night when the Bert Owens' drug store and the barber shop in the same building were totally destroyed. The building was owned by Mont. Hassett, of New York. Mr. Owens had his drug stock partly covered by insurance.

The origin of the fire is not yet known. When discovered the lower floor was all afire. Nothing was saved from the building.

The fire department soon had a heavy stream of water playing on the flames and held the blaze to the one building. The Dreese general store adjoining the Owens store, was saved.

Alanson has a power driven fire engine and gets its water from Crooked river, which flows through the east side of the village.

Mr. and Mrs. McKibben, who resided over the store, escaped. The fire was burning fiercely before they discovered the building was on fire and were unable to save any of their clothing or household goods.—Petoskey Evening News.

LATCHSTRING OUT FOR TUNESTERS

BAY CITY ORCHESTRA MAKES HIT WITH LOCAL PEOPLE

Sixty-five Couples Enjoy Dancing Party at Masonic Temple Monday Evening

Bert Trombley, leader of the Tunester's Orchestra of Bay City, breezed into town Monday with his quintet of clever assistants. They had come at the bidding of the new Masonic house committee to fill a return engagement, and sixty-five couples danced at the Masonic Temple to the best music heard here this winter. It was a night of unmarred pleasure.

The Tunester's agnying was placed at the north end of the hall room and this proved to be a happy change, for seemingly the acoustics were much improved. Soft colored lights showed the committee's tasteful decorations to advantage. Light refreshments were served as usual during the evening.

"We find that the waltz is steadily regaining favor," said Mr. Trombley. "I believe this is more the result of older people again taking up dancing than to any newspaper agitation. There is no demand for the old two-step, however, and personally I think the fox trot, properly danced, is one of the most beautiful dances. It undoubtedly takes the place of the two-step."

"The demand for vulgar jazz is decidedly on the wane. Dancers continue to like novelty music, but there is a limit to it, of course," concluded the musician.

Audible sighs of regret ran through the room as Steve Misner finally put up his drum sticks, Floyd Schaebeled his violin and Mr. Trombley and Mr. Huck packed cornet and saxophone. And while dancers were crying "more! more!" Ange Lorenzo—they say he has a heart of stone—calmly closed the piano and withdrew his smile.

Tunesters, come again, the latchstring is out.

A PRONOUNCED SOCIAL SUCCESS

LINCOLN BANQUET OF HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Masonic Hall Decorated With National Colors and the Program was Enjoyed by All

A prominent event on the social calendar for the month of February was the banquet given by the Charlevoix Historical Society, celebrating the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, on the evening of February 17th.

The banquet was served in the spacious dining room of the Masonic hall, the caterers being members of the Order of Eastern Star. The hall was decorated with the national colors, and colored electric lights. The walls were covered with flags of every nation. Predominating all others were flags of our own United States, Abraham Lincoln's picture adorning each wall. Tables were arranged in such a way as to add to the sociability of the event. The flowers were lovely and together with sparkling silver and other table accessories made a beautiful picture.

Judge Correll, president of the society together with Reverend Mr. Allburt of Petoskey occupied places of honor at the head of the table. At seven o'clock Rev. Clarence Long gave the invocation. A most auspicious repast followed, which indeed reflected credit upon those who prepared the menu. Ten young ladies served the guests. Judge Correll made a pleasing speech of welcome after which the audience was charmed with a solo and encore rendered by Miss Irene Finucan, Mrs. A. A. Swinton accompanying her on the pianoforte. Miss Finucan sang beautifully, her voice was sweet and (Continued on page eight)

BEST GAME TO SMALLEST CROWD

COLD WEATHER KEEPS FANS AT HOME

C. H. S. Team Loses to Pellston on Thursday Night and Wins From Mancelona Friday

Last Thursday evening the local high school basketball team played the best game of its life, so far, and to the smallest crowd that ever watched a game here. The cold weather kept a number of supporters at home.

But there was plenty of action from whistle to whistle, neither team being decidedly ahead or behind at any stage of the game. Two timely baskets by Smarks just before the final whistle gave Pellston a hard fought victory.

Field goals: Smarks 4, Emerson 4, McKee 2, Ackert 4. Free throws missed, Smarks 5, Mayne 6. Score 22 to 15. Score at half time, Pellston 9, Charlevoix 8.

Friday night although the boys were somewhat tired from the previous night's game, they still had the pep to run over Mancelona, to the tune of 27 to 4. The first half of the game was fairly even, due to the ragged passing and shooting of the locals.

The second half, however, the boys showed more form and piled up just twice the score of the first half. The passing was much better, but with ordinary luck at goal throwing, the score should have been again as large.

Several scrubs, shot into the closing minutes of play, did not show up the offense apparently, which continued to pile up the score.

Line-up and summary: Mancelona Charlevoix Clugg R. F. Marshall, Schell L. F. Mayne, Hickman C. McKee, Ackert, Telschow R. G. Kinsley, Todd Larson L. G. Nordrum.

Substitutions: Mancelona, Nessett for Schell, Charlevoix, Shanahan for Nordrum, Sinclair for Mayne. Field goals, Clugg 2, Ackert 8, Mayne 3, Marshall 2. Free throws missed, Clugg 1, Ackert 1. Score at end of half, 9 to 2. Final score 27 to 4.

Friday the boys go to Petoskey where they expect a hard game, but more even than the Petoskey game here. With three weeks before the tournament, the boys are just hitting their real stride, and expect to finish strong.

EVERY VOTER IN CITY SHOULD FAVOR LEGION BUILDING PLAN

Erection of Proposed Community Memorial Hall Will Result in Valuable Asset to Charlevoix—Vote YES On Proposition at Polls on March 1st

One of the issues to be settled at the polls on Wednesday, March 1st, and one that every citizen of Charlevoix and its immediate vicinity should get behind, is the vote to transfer the city-owned idle property at the corner of Belvedere avenue and Bridge street to the Leslie T. Shapton Post, American Legion. This property will be used as a site on which will be erected a Community Memorial Hall.

That a building of the nature proposed will be a distinct asset to the city and its environs there is not a shadow of doubt. The main features of such a building will be an auditorium and gymnasium which in size will be equal to if not larger than any north of Grand Rapids. This will occupy one floor and will be a place wherein can be held all high school lecture courses, class plays, debates, public gatherings and conventions. The latter feature alone would extend Charlevoix's summer season from four to six weeks and maybe eight. Every year there are two to four weeks, in the spring and fall, when the hotels here have their full complement of hired help including orchestras, etc., and but few guests. In the past the city has had many chances to get conventions, some of national importance, but was forced to turn them down because of no proper place to hold the business sessions. The advertising from delegates alone extending over a period of, say ten years, would be worth the cost of the building.

Then there are the athletic and community features to be considered. There will be classes conducted by a competent instructor for every school child; classes for employed girls and other women who care to join; volley ball, hand ball, basket ball, and a thousand other games that, when played with abandon, will go far toward giving us more contented citizens, increasing mental capacities and greatly strengthening moral fibre. The boys, of course will be well taken care of. That's to be expected and one of the prime requisites. Boys of certain ages will go out at night, all that parents can say or do to the contrary not withstanding. The Memorial Hall idea is to foster the idea of a healthy body in all boys. Young men have just so much energy to put into anything and when that is spent in one or two hours of roughing it on a gymnasium floor under proper supervision, they will be ready to go to bed on the right side of midnight and get sound enjoyment therefrom. Neither is Dad going to be left out in the cold to shiver as he is in so many things according to the mode of 1922. He will be given a chance to subtract ten to fifteen years from his "sum total". In addition to all of the games enjoyed by others, Dad can show his ability at swatting with the big stick on the indoor baseball diamond. Probably no other game carries the potential fun, excitement and exhilaration as does that of indoor baseball. There will be separate shower and locker rooms for girls and women and men and boys. Around the main gymnasium floor a permanent seating place for spectators at games and dances will be arranged for.

It is planned that the basement will contain, among other things, a banquet room and kitchen. This will be a necessary feature in taking care of community fairs, carnivals, etc.

The maintenance of the Community Memorial Hall is not going to be difficult. But the Leslie T. Shapton Post realizes that it is taking on a man's size job in agreeing to put up a $30,000 structure without taxation. By a provision of the last legislature cities are given the privilege of bonding for the building of community auditoriums and the like. Many cities are taking advantage of it. Lydington has just recently voted $30,000 for a like structure. Alpena has just completed a $90,000 building put up by donations and subscriptions. By some it has been thought that our site, 90 x 124 feet, is too small. Two Legion men from Charlevoix went to Alpena and investigated that proposition thoroughly. Their structure is, of course, much larger than ours needs to be, the auditorium and gymnasium being on different floors. The auditorium is 70 x 110 feet and is immense. The proposed building will have room for one of equal size, but it

CITY PROTECTED FROM ICE SHORTAGE

Local Dealers Alone Store Over Seven Hundred Tons

There is not even the remotest chance for an ice shortage in Charlevoix during the coming season. The shortage of last season has had at least one effect—the putting up an enormous tonnage of this quite necessary article.

This season, as for many seasons past, O. D. Hammond had contracts for filling the various houses, not only for local consumption, but for private purposes.

In a statement to the Courier, Mr. Hammond gave the following information, covering the ice tonnage put up by local concerns and summer hotels:

Booth Fisheries Co., 1700 tons. The Inn, 500 tons. Chicago Club, 500 tons. Hotel Hallett and Hallett's Inn, 300 tons. H. W. Widdifield, 3,500 tons. Belvedere Hotel, 100 tons. Charlevoix Fish Co., 700 tons. Henricksen, 75 tons.

Besides these amounts, Heise and Yettaw have stored over 3,000 tons.

During the operation of handling this amount of ice, some 30 men and from 10 to 20 teams were at work.

DEATH TAKES ALEX. M. ROSS

PIONEER RESIDENT SUCCEUMBS AT ADVANCED AGE

Had Been a Resident of Charlevoix and Vicinity Over 48 Years—Funeral Today

Alexander M. Ross died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. H. Cooper, 406 Mason street, Sunday morning, February 19, from heart disease at the age of eighty-five years and nine months.

COVERS LAID FOR THIRTY-THREE

SHAKESPEARE CLUB IS ENTERTAINED BY DICKENS CLUB

One of the Prettiest Affairs of Season Took Place Friday at R. L. Lewis Home

One of the prettiest affairs of the season took place on Saturday, February 18th, when members of the Dickens Club entertained the Shakespeare Club with an informal luncheon at the home of Mrs. R. L. Lewis, 330 Park avenue.

The day was most auspicious for the occasion and the friends seemed to radiate the happiness they experienced as they moved about the spacious rooms of the lovely home.

After an exchange of greetings the president of the Dickens Club, Mrs. Mason Rose, announced that luncheon was served and invited the guests to repair to the lower rooms, where covers were laid for thirty-three.

Small tables encouraged intimate conversation and delectable food added to the pleasure of those present.

Roses were used in the decorations of the tables and water color place cards, depicting Dickens characters assisted the guests in finding their proper places.

As the four-course luncheon progressed the women, in their lovely and colorful gowns, looked smiling and happy and it was very apparent that harmony of congenial spirits prevailed. This atmosphere was enhanced later when a large box of preserved fruit, a gift of Mrs. C. E. Bailey, was passed and brought to all a suggestion of the sunshine and warmth of California.

In compliment to the guests, a Shakespeare program was presented. Mrs. Rose reading, most acceptably, the court scene from "The Merchant of Venice." Mrs. Livingston, always pleasing, sang, accompanied by Mrs. Lewis, three numbers of the "Who is Sylvia?" was truly Shakespearean.

A social hour followed the program.

This Town Needs a Hupmobile Dealer

This is a "Hupmobile town," and it needs, and will soon have, a Hupmobile dealer.

It is the kind of community that most appreciates this fine car.

The Hupmobile, while ranking with cars that cost much more, sells at the remarkably low price of $1,250 f. o. b. factory.

This brings it within the reach of persons of ordinary means, and makes it a wonderful proposition for the dealer.

The man we are looking for to represent the Hupmobile here, is a hustler and a good business man.

To such a man, we can practically assure many prospects, sales and exceptional profits.

This is the first year we have been able to supply the great potential demand for Hupmobiles outside of the metropolitan centers.

Now the Hupmobile factory has greatly increased its production to supply this demand.

This creates a money-making opportunity. You may be the man we want.

Remember that we have no back-breaking requirements—nothing but what will enhance your bank standing. And our discount rate is much more liberal than is ordinarily offered.

It is unmistakably to your advantage to talk this over, absolutely without obligation. Let us hear from you. Write at once to

Boys Who Squatted in Trenches Are Surely Getting a Lesson in Patriotism

Now that the American ex-service men have, by their sacrifices, saved the values in Wall street, and the great fortunes of the money barons have been made secure, these patriots, it seems, are manifesting their appreciation by opposing the soldier bonus. The boys who squatted in the trenches are surely getting a lesson in patriotism from these multimillionaires. Commenting on this: The Chicago Tribune recently said: "Japan has a genro. It is the class of the elder statesmen. It is the dead thumb of octogenarianism upon the present. Ultra conservatism always is property and age."

Uncle Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury, is a man of much property. You hear that he is second or third in point of wealth in the United States.

Uncle Andrew Mellon is head of the American genro. President Harding merely comes up from somewhere but Uncle Andrew Mellon always existed because what he represents and what he thinks has always existed.

The elder statesmen are against the soldier bonus. Uncle Andrew is against it because the war is over and all the values which were in danger and which have been saved are now out of danger. The soldier is an uneconomic force except when he is needed to preserve the balance and the working power of economic force. They are badly disturbed when a foreign governor general takes control of an unoccupied territory.

"Then all ordinary laws of economic cause and effect go out of office and the soldier is the boy relied upon to keep the home land functioning as it ought to function normally. When he is needed for this economic purpose he is invaluable because without him all values would go to pot. If the German soldier had been able to carry through the plans of the German military leaders the German mark would not be a beggar on the door step of financial solvency and if he had been able to do the superhuman, which was required of him, Uncle Andrew Mellon's fortune might be barely equal to a square meal.

"The difference between the value of the dollar and the value of the mark is now the sacrifices made by the American soldier. He created that value. If he had not done so it would have no value. The only reason these men of wealth have wealth is because American soldiers determined that depreciated currency should be in Germany and not in the United States.

"To whom would Uncle Andrew like to pay a small percentage of his money? To the American soldier who saved him from the German tax collector or to the tax collector?

Buddy, join the Legion as your father joined the G. A. R. and impress as a political fact upon the elder generation that it is in luck and much in luck."

Where Your Taxes Go

How Uncle Sam Spends Your Money in Conducting Your Business

VI. WHERE YOUR MONEY GOES

I am indebted to the late Dr. E. B. Rosa, of the United States bureau of standards, whose analyses of government expenditures I have already quoted in these articles, for the following comprehensive survey of how the taxes you pay to the government are apportioned in expenditures. It will give you the clearest and best idea of where your money goes. For his purpose Doctor Rosa took the actual appropriations for the fiscal year 1920, amounting to a total of $5,686,005,706, as given in the regular supply bills and three deficiency bills prior to May 1, 1920. For convenience he divided the purposes for which this money was spent into six groups as follows:

Group I.—Bills of lading arising from recent and previous wars, including interest on the public debt, pensions, war-risk insurance, rehabilitation and care of soldiers, deficit in the operation of railways, expenditures of the shipping board, European food relief and the bonus to government employees to cover partially the increased cost of living due to the war, a total of $3,855,482,350.

Group II.—War and Navy departments—expenses somewhat above a permanent peace-time basis—$1,424,138,677.

Group III.—Primary governmental functions, including congress, president and White House staff, courts and penal establishments, departments of justice, state, treasury, interior, commerce, labor, interstate commerce, and other commissions, one-half the District of Columbia, including all the necessary functions of government other than defense, except the commercial activities of Group V and the research, educational and developmental work of Group VI—$181,087,225.

Group IV.—Public works, including rivers and harbors, public buildings, reclamation service, post roads, national parks and railway in Alaska—$168,203,557.

Group V.—Commercial or self-supporting activities, including the post office, land office, Panama canal and housing corporation, which, taken together, earn their expenses.

Group VI.—Research, educational and developmental, including the wide range of work of the Agricultural department, geological survey, bureau of mines, coast and geodetic survey, bureau of standards, bureau of fisheries, bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, bureau of labor statistics, women's and children's bureaus, vocational education, colleges for agriculture and mechanic arts, library of congress, Smithsonian Institution and the public health service—$57,093,061.

Total groups I to VI—$5,686,005,706.

Summary	Per Cent
Group I—Expenditures arising from recent and previous wars.....	$3,855,482,350 67.81
Group II—War and Navy departments.....	1,424,138,677 25.02
Group III—Primary governmental functions.....	181,087,225 3.19
Group IV—Public works.....	168,203,557 2.97
Group V—Commercial and self-supporting activities.....	67,093,061 1.18
Group VI—Research, educational and developmental.....	57,093,061 1.00
Total.....	$5,686,005,706 100.00

The first two groups together amount to 92.8 per cent of the total; public works amount to 3 per cent, primary governmental functions 3.2 per cent, and research, educational and developmental work, 1 per cent. The population of the country being about 110,000,000, the total budget is about fifty dollars a year per capita, of which fifty cents a year per capita is expended for the wide range of research, educational and developmental work included in Group VI.

"That is, of the fifty dollars a year per capita collected for all purposes, a dollar and a half a year per capita," Doctor Rosa went on to point out,

"was spent for what is here called primary functions of government; nearly as much more was put into public works, and fifty cents a year was put back into research, educational and developmental work, to promote scientific research, to increase production and efficiency, to develop wealth, to promote the public health and to conserve our natural resources. That is a very small part of the total—hardly enough to be regarded as a burden on the nation."

"Indeed, one is led to wonder whether the total burden of taxation would not be lighter if the expenditure for scientific and developmental work were increased; if, for example, it were one dollar a year per capita instead of fifty cents. In other words, if $10,000,000 were expended annually for this creative and productive work, would it not be easier to collect the five and a half billions for other purposes?"

The big money, of course, goes for war, past, present and future; and that is where the saving must be made.

Thirty thousand persons are killed or injured in the United States every day.

WAR'S HORRIBLE WASTE

Mr. R. C. Lellingwell was the assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of finances during the war. While he was in the treasury he became deeply impressed with the magnitude of government expenditures and the looseness, inefficiency and waste that are a part of government method. All the secretaries of the treasury since the outbreak of the war have shared this feeling of apprehension and concern with Mr. Lellingwell. I quote here a recent utterance of his on war expenditures:

"Of the $4,000,000,000, exclusive of interest on the public debt, spent in the fiscal year 1921, $1,011,815,013.32 was spent by the War department, $156,373,835.58 by the Navy department, $800,000,000 on the railroads, $230,000,000 by the bureau of war risk insurance, and $157,814,807.01 by the Interior department, mostly, I take it, for civil war and Spanish war pensions—a total of $3,050,000,000 under these heads."

"In the fiscal year 1920 the War department spent $1,610,000,000, and the Navy department $740,000,000, a total of $2,350,000,000. Secretary Mellon estimates that in the fiscal year, 1921, the War department will spend $1,925,000,000 and the Navy department $700,000,000, a total of $2,625,000,000; and that in the fiscal year, 1922, the War department will spend $2,700,000,000 and the Navy department $845,000,000, a total of $3,545,000,000. This makes a three-years' total of $5,190,000,000."

"Germany went to war to realize on her investment in arms and armies. The burden of universal military service, expenditures on the army and navy, subsidies and debts, became intolerable. She thought she would repeat the exploit of 1870 and make war so profitable in territory and indemnities as to recoup herself for the outlay of 40 years' preparation. The splendid resistance of the Belgians and the French and of the little British expeditionary force made the short war a futile dream. The untrained manhood and unmortgaged resources of the Western World of the British empire overseas, and finally of America, determined the issue. Germany suffered economic collapse, though her granaries, her stock, her money, were still on enemy soil. So Germany's military preparedness was her cause for making war and was the cause of her defeat. In the issue, it was economic preparedness that mattered most."

"Today, men, women and little children are starving to death in Europe because of the war's horrible waste and because of the still more horrible waste of after the war. Two years and a half after armistice, nearly two years after peace was concluded between Germany and the allies, millions of men are under arms, eating and wearing the produce of the fields and of the labor of a civilian population which must bear the load of taxes and inflation necessary to maintain those armies in economic idleness. The peoples of continental Europe are staggering under the load of armaments, far too great before the war and intolerable now. Their rulers hold themselves in power by subsidies and debts, by playing, now on their fears, and again on their avarice, still again on nationalistic ambitions or racial hatreds. The allies have undertaken to insure Germany's economic recovery by insisting upon her disarmament and the payment of reparations which means the development of a huge export balance; but for themselves they reserve the doubtful privilege of remaining armed to the teeth."

"We have demonstrated our military power. We have shown what may be done in a few short months to make an army and transport it to wage a foreign war. We have no need to be aggressors abroad, we are invulnerable at home. Let us accept the responsibilities of the position of leadership which is ours, show the world how to live on peace and plenty, relieve the peoples of the world of apprehension and lend them back into the ways of peace and plenty. If we prepare for war we shall have it. If we lead the world in preparation for peace we may have that."

Personality.

It is personality that makes for our success or our failure among men; and this personality does not come by chance. Tastes and dispositions we may inherit, and natural talents may have been given us, but out of these we are to shape that strange and wonderfully effective tool—personality.

PAUL REVERE A LA 1922

Listen, you voters, and you shall hear
Of the ride of a Charlevoix Revere.
Paul was a wise old guy and lay
In his auto ready to dash away.
"Where was he going?" you ask—
"Forsooth
He was ready to race to the voting booth."

The sub came up; 'twas the tip to go.
Paul pulled the lever. This line's too slow
To tell what a sudden hole was reft
In the atmosphere as the auto left.

Down through the sleeping streets
He flew,
The auto going for all it knew.
The cop woke up—called on him to halt,
But saved himself by a lightning vault.
As through the morning tore old Paul,
Shaving a corner, scraping a wall,
Hurdling a ditch or smashing a tree—
On went Paul with a mad whoop-ee!

And plenty of brains he had in his conk,
And every second he'd honk! honk!
HONK!
He startled the chickens, and startled the folk.
The soundest snorers stretched and woke.
The women (?) lit up the kitchen stove.
The men into chilly trousers dove.
Paul smashed the speed laws, records smashed,
As on and on he madly dashed.

Why all this hurry and breath-taking speed?
Paul was doing his duty—and a wonderful deed.
In a city of boosters, Paul set the pace—
He stopped at the Central Polling Place.
The vote he cast needed no "recommendment"—
He voted "YES" on the Legion Amendment!

Now all Good Citizens it's up to you
To do a Revere with your ballot too.

AT THE MOVIES

"The Primal Law," a William Fox photoplay written by E. Lloyd Sheldon and starring Dustin Farnum, which is booked for the Palace Theatre next Wednesday is the story of a fierce struggle between determined men for possession of valuable lands in the West, and the part played by a seven-year-old boy and a girl from the East. Also the third chapter of the "Winners of the West."

Dorothy Gish as a war bride who finds it hard to adjust herself to a peace basis is the heroine of "Flying Pat," a new Paramount picture coming to the Palace Theatre next Tuesday for the benefit of the Junior class of the high school.

Hailed as a companion picture to the famous "Twenty-three and a Half Hours' Leave," "The Rookie's Return," Douglas MacLean's latest Paramount picture produced by Thomas H. Ince, will be featured at the Palace Theatre on Saturday and Sunday.

"The Rookie's Return" was adapted from the original story by Archer MacMakin. Lloyd Ingraham directed and Doris May heads a clever supporting cast.

Gifted Hebrew Physician.

At the close of the Twelfth and beginning of the Thirteenth centuries there flourished in Rome Emanuel Zifroni, Jewish physician, poet, astronomer and mathematician, says the Medical Record, quoting H. Pollak. He is believed to have been on friendly terms with Dante and even to have suggested to him, in part at least, his great trilogy, by writing a poem of the same scope—the journey of a Jew through hell and heaven, accompanied by the prophet Daniel. The name of this prototype poem was "Mecabeheroth."

Painting Coffee Beans.

One of the flourishing industries in Rio de Janeiro is that of coffee painting and polishing. The raw coffee beans being thinned, preparatory to shipment to South Africa, where they help to sell the coffee. While the plain black grain is preferred in Brazil, experts say the polishing and painting are not harmful, because all the graphite, ochre and other materials used are disposed of when the berry is roasted.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Not so long ago a household investigator talked to housekeepers in New York's famous Park Avenue residential district. She found that many of the most exclusive families had adopted spreads for bread like Brednut.

The Spread of a New Idea

—and a new idea in bread spreads

ONE of the chief reasons for the rapid spread of new ideas in America is that American women are quick to pass welcome news to their friends and neighbors. For example, when a progressive American housekeeper discovers a delicious new food she doesn't lock up her knowledge. She becomes a missionary.

Largely because of this sensible custom, Brednut—the new spread for bread—has become known quickly to most of your clever housekeepers.

If by some odd chance you have not tried Brednut ask your neighbors about it. See if they don't say that Brednut is just as delicious a bread spread as they have ever tasted. See if they don't remark on its welcome saving.

Then try Brednut yourself and notice how its fresh and delicate flavor pleases your husband and children.

It's made from pasteurized milk and rich tropical nuts

There shouldn't be a bit of mystery about so important a food as a bread spread. There is none about Brednut.

From distant tropical islands we bring rich nuts—a gift of Prodigal Nature. Healthy cows furnish milk which we pasteurize. Under careful supervision immaculate equipment blends these pure ingredients to make Brednut—the new wholesome bread spread.

When your grocer delivers your first pound of Brednut, notice its whiteness. You can actually see Brednut purity. With healthful vegetable material which your grocer gives you, you can quickly color Brednut to a golden yellow.

May Adopt Wireless Control

The officers of the Pere Marquette railway have under consideration the equipping of 50 miles of railroad with a new system of wireless train control—the invention of a Detroit man. If this system is adopted the Pere Marquette railway will be a pioneer in the adoption and installation of a system which has been given much thought by electrical experts. This work presupposes an immediate outlay of $200,000.

May Break Up Gang

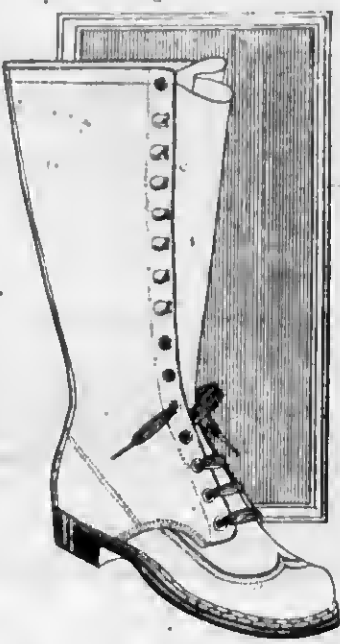

The store of Ralph White at Williamsburg has been subjected for some time to a series of raids by burglars. Wednesday night he stayed in the store and when it was raided caught one of the boys who confessed and involved seven others from Williamsburg and Traverse City. It is thought this may break up some of the thievery at Williamsburg and also in Traverse City.

After the Bootleggers

At last Traverse City is getting around to an enforcement of the liquor laws along with other criminal statutes. The first of this week the sheriff and chief of police conducted raids that brought to light a quantity of moonshine mash and landed some illicit distillers in the county jail. Possibly the organization Sunday of a law enforcement league, composed of some of the best men of the city, may have had an influence in stimulating the officials to activity.

WILL NEVER COME BACK

There was considerable speculation along about the time Fatty Arbuckle was arrested as to whether or not his legal difficulty would interfere with his popularity as a screen favorite. If there has been any doubt as to the outcome, the newest movie scandal at Hollywood has emphatically settled Arbuckle's fate so far as the public goes. As a screen star Fatty is all done regardless of the outcome of his third trial. The public's suspicion that considerable salaciousness has crept into the producing end of the industry out in California has been confirmed with more or less emphasis through the investigation of the Taylor murder at Hollywood. The shock is to learn that some of the baby face stars, who have been portraying for our entertainment the innocence of childhood are among the hard boiled of the whole outfit. Of course it isn't fair to classify the whole profession in the same category, but the indictment this time is so general as to make a thorough housecleaning not only desirable but imperative for the good of the industry. And further, a white-washing isn't going to be enough, it must be thorough or the public is going to show its resentment through the box office, which is one way the producers can be made to reflect upon the desirability of giving the game a moral bath. The password of the Hollywood colony seems to have been, "let joy be unrefined." Detroit Saturday Night clearly sets up the issue thusly:

"If the motion picture industry is to be purged of its cheapness, its tawdriness and its filth, the clean, decent, home-loving folks of this country will have to do the job, and we are old-fashioned enough to believe that they still compose the great majority of the population."

A COMPARISON

In these days when people are prone to distrust their public men, usually without cause, it is refreshing to turn to the lives of Lincoln and Washington, who, please remember, had to pass through much the same line of scathing denunciation as our present day leaders. Political abuse has not changed much in the last hundred years. While the good lives and mean is forgotten, one of the finest things that time does for the happiness of souls, and Washington's character has profited, no doubt through this agency of amelioration, the historian has, nevertheless done the youth of our country a fine service by emphasizing the high moral worth and the fine Christian character of the great Washington. It sometimes seems as if Lincoln was God-sent the same as John the Baptist and the Apostle Paul in their day, but nevertheless Washington must be put a niche higher than Lincoln in our national gallery of great Americans.

THE GOMORRAH OUT WEST

While there is no official confirmation of the report that one of the big producing corporations is about to leave Los Angeles bag and baggage and move to the east in order to get definitely and conclusively clear of the Hollywood colony and all its works, still the story has an appearance of reasonableness that makes it convincing. And it unquestionably is in line with the conviction of far sighted managers and producers that Hollywood in its present state is a menace to their enterprises. The place has become identified with scandals of a very bad sort until in the minds of the public it is almost on a level with Gomorrah. And everything that comes out of it is under suspicion.

This feeling may be unjust to many people, for though the evils of the place are real enough and though disgraceful conditions exist among a considerable portion of the screen folk, it also is true that entirely respectable actors and actresses live there. But it is an unfortunate fact that the world in general cannot know who is good and who is bad, and from a distance the whole place seems noisome.

So unless something is done that will put an end to the disgraceful social conditions prevalent at Hollywood and unless something also is done that will convince the public of the genuineness of the reform, the movies are going to receive a bad blow. The American people are not prudes. But there is a limit to what they will countenance or tolerate; and after that limit has been reached something smashes.

There seems to be two ways in which Hollywood situation may be handled by the producers. One is by cleansing the colony so effectively that the world will believe it is purified. The other is by uprooting it from the face of the earth. On the whole, the latter course seems much the simpler.

The happiest man is he who has toiled hard and successfully in his life work. The work may be done in a thousand different ways—with the brains or the hands, in the study, the field, or the workshop; if it is honest work honestly done, and well worth the doing, that is all we have a right to ask.—Theodore Roosevelt.

SNAPSHOTS of the Passing Show

They will be nesting soon.

Whang-doodleism may make a noise like a newspaper, but it deceives no one.

Nearly all the knowledge in the world has been acquired at the expense of somebody's burnt fingers.

If this week is not otherwise pre-empted why not make it "mind-your-own-business week?"

Considering what most people are willing to do for money it's a wonder there are not more millionaires.

Nearly everybody, it seems, is eager to give the ex-soldiers a bonus at the expense of somebody else.

This city can secure the character of government it desires. If men of worth and character are chosen to carry on city government, there is the assurance that government will be reflected in the personality they represent.

An Iron Mountain doctor made the public declaration recently before the Delta county supervisors that "when the roll call of those seated next to the Almighty at the throne of Heaven is called, those responding will be physicians." Maybe this partiality to physicians is a recognition of what Heaven feels it owes them in the recruiting business.

B. Y. P. U. NOTES

Our next Sunday evening's topic is, "Bypaths to Forgotten Folks. True Indian Tales." Leader, Vada Sanford.

The topic is taken from Coe Haynes' book of the same name. Let everyone be present to learn what Mr. Haynes has to tell us about the great Baptist home mission work among the Indian tribes of the West. Mr. Haynes is one of the foremost leaders in this work. It might also be of interest to know that he is a former Charlevoix boy, having lived here while his father was pastor of our local Baptist church, about thirty years ago.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH NOTES

Notwithstanding slush, ice and rain Sunday, splendid audiences attended the services. We had 92 present Sunday night. If you do not go to church elsewhere come thou with us.

We are making fine progress in our titling campaign. Fifty-three covenanted to tithe. Next Sunday will show a titling exhibit. Look for the placards, "God or Mammon. Which?" "My Profits or My Prophets?" "God Gives Ten Ears of Corn, He gets a Nubbin." "He gives ten potatoes and gets the parings." There are others. See them all, and get the lesson.

Subject for Sunday morning is, "Proving God." Text, "Prove me now herewith." We prove Him with faith, prayer, study, and worship. Subject for evening is "Jesus said, 'Come'." The evangelistic emphasis is the church's challenge. If your heart yearns after the "Living water" hear the sermons Sunday.

We have a good Sunday school and the 12 o'clock hour is our time. Gehozzi's perfidy punishes him with leprosy of Naaman. We have a good orchestra and splendid singing. We will appreciate a large attendance.

The Epworth League is working into a fine organization. They also study the tithe. Subject this week,

"Tithing as a personal experience." Leader, Mrs. Quant. Read II Corinthians 9:6-12. We are expecting the Leaguers to more than double their quota of tithers.

The Junior League starts off well. This is an excellent field for training of our juniors. The Epworth League would not now be the power it is were it not that so many of its members got their training in the Junior League.

Prayer meeting this week Thursday, at 7:30. We will talk on personal work. Bring some one with you and help to answer your own prayer.

Barnard services from 1:00 to 3:00 o'clock Sunday. Real Sunday school questions and good instruction in Bible themes. Barnard will not lack in its number of tithers also. Jacob Sapleigh got the light and his tithe was paid.

March 5th is Communion Sunday when we will receive members into the church. If you hold a church letter or if you are leaving it in some other town, let the pastor know. Your religious activity depends on your church affiliation largely. Help yourself all you can.

During the morning service very soon we will have a church nursery. Designated ladies will take care of your babies while the church service is going on making it possible for you to enter into the service more freely. Bring the babies to church. We love the babies.

Married at Methodist Parsonage Daniel Gallagher of St. James to Miss Beatrice Kysella of Charlevoix. This happy event occurred last Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

"Call Me Early, Mother, Dear"
The poet said that Lucy or Jane or Hattie asked her mother to call her early because she was going to be Queen of the May. That's poetic license. Here are the facts: She was fully aware of the responsibilities that the Nineteenth Amendment had imposed upon her sex and wanted to get up early so that she could head the line at the Central Polling Place and mark a "YES" on the Legion ballot.

THE VEXING PROBLEM OF A PURE WATER SUPPLY

Charlevoix as Well as All Leading Michigan Cities, is Facing the Same Problem

The Growth of a City

The study of the growth of a city is perhaps more important in connection with sewers than with water. The public is vitally interested in the amount and quality of water they are getting and are willing to pay for the water and have it metered to them. If there were a service charge for sewers which are supposed to behave themselves and work automatically we would hear much complaint. It is therefore more important that sewers shall be planned for the population fifty years hence as the public are less willing to pay for rebuilding inadequate sewer structures. The wisdom of planning ahead is the same for each but the psychology differs.

If one will look up the population from year to year of a dozen cities of various size and age which resemble each other in industries and climate, and will compare their growth year by year, by running as each passes the two-thousand population mark he will find a probable variation of not over fifteen per cent in their rates of growth. This means then that if we estimate the city under consideration to follow about the average we will not be in error over eight per cent. This is plenty accurate for estimating water supply or sewerage requirements.

All estimates of population should however be tempered with judgment based on special conditions. Among these irregular forces are wars, hard times, and exhaustion of resources as lumber which may result in depressions. Rapid developments will follow new industries, additional transportation facilities and improved roads. Of late there has been a yearly reduction of total steam railway track mileage in the United States and almost no electric railways or extensions are being built. The American Seamen's Bill has eliminated the small craft and has driven much of our ocean tonnage to foreign registry. Highway passenger and freight transportation will here, as in other sections within the next five years be placed on a sound economic basis and by it we may expect to profit. This should make Charlevoix accessible for freight and passenger connections by Boyne Falls and Petoskey to the G. R. & I. to the M. C. by the D. & C. R. R. or the B. C. G. & A. by East Jordan and Boyne City. The summer residents of Northport Point are now asking for a launch service to Charlevoix as their nearest terminal.

In general the pessimist is wrong but the optimist should remember that haste is made slowly and ten years is a short time in the life of a town. The Lakes-to-Ocean route will release economic conditions upon which we can only speculate, but which must tend to prosperity.

Source of Water

Water may be obtained for household use from cisterns draining the roofs, from rivers, lakes, collection reservoirs, springs, shallow wells, deep of artesian wells and galleries. The classification of surface water and ground water is rather indefinite but it may be said that the former is fairly soft, and apt to be turbid and impure. Ground water is often very hard, may carry sulphur or iron, is clear and generally though not always safe. Cases have been known where deep well have been directly connected through rock fissures to sources of surface contamination. From the engineers standpoint the shallow wells draw water from a known source, has a drainage area which may be inspected and supervised, and both—the quantity and quality of water which a well will produce may be anticipated. The deep well is largely a speculation as to quantity, quality and source.

Rain Water

In Kansas and some of the Prairie states many farm houses are supplied with soft cistern water which is used for all purposes. The water coming from the roof is wasted until the roof and eavetroughs are washed out, then it is turned into a filter made up of several layers of cotton flannel which forms the head of a barrel filled with charcoal. The bottom of the barrel has holes in it and the barrel itself forms the cistern cap. The water is clear and without odor but flat for drinking. Some builders divide the cistern into halves with a thin brick wall which forms a rain filter.

River Water

The old saying is that a stream purifies itself in seven miles. It is true that the exposure of the water to light and air with occasional pools where particles may settle out tend to purify the water.

Rivers which have their source in lakes are generally clear and the quality of water they furnish resembles that of their source. Rivers, such as the Ohio, formed by confluence of smaller streams may be relatively clear during low water above a dam but are sure to be turbid when a freshet occurs. All of the deposits dropped when the stream was sluggish will be picked up at such a time. Even with the Detroit river cases of typhoid appear to have resulted from dredge operations at the mouth of the Port Huron sewer in Black river. River water may be characterized as undependable, often requiring filtration and almost always chlorination.

Lake or Reservoir Water

Lakes or reservoirs contain impounded surface waters. Such waters are less likely to show marked pollution than flowing streams, because in relatively quiescent waters, solid matter, excepting the finest clays, cannot long remain in suspension and the factor of land contamination is of less prominence. In large bodies of water, as the Great Lakes, the effect of pollution is limited to shore regions, though where the banks are of clay turbidity may extend out from six to ten miles after a storm. In 1908 the silt on the bottom of Lake Michigan was perceptibly contaminated for a distance of five miles by the effluent from Wolfe river near South Chicago.

Owing to the fact that the maximum density of water is somewhat above the freezing point (39.2 F. C.) water in lakes is subject to vertical currents that cause the upper and lower layers to mix. Where small lakes form the source of a water supply this may result in a changed quality of water for a short time twice each year.

Direct sunlight is undoubtedly effective as a factor in purifying waters of this class, for quiescent waters are as a rule clearer, and therefore the actinic or active rays would be able to penetrate more deeply than in turbid flowing waters.

In order to avoid shore pollution of lakes the State of Michigan has passed the following legislation. Sec. 11, Act 98, of the Public Acts of 1913:

"The State Board of Health shall have the same power of visitation, inspection, direction and control over sewage disposal systems of  private and public corporations of this state as is herein given with respect to waterworks systems. The mayor of each city and the president of each village and of all private corporations shall file with the secretary of the State Board of Health on or before the first day of January  1922, a true and correct description of the entire sewage systems owned by such public or private corporations. It shall be the duty of the State Board of Health upon receipt of such plans and specifications to inspect the same with reference to their effect upon the public health, and if such board on such inspection finds that such sewage systems, or any parts thereof, are dangerous to individuals or to the public health generally, the said board, on its order may require such alterations in such systems as may be required or advisable in the opinion of such board; Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to grant any power to prevent any  corporation now disposing of its sewage into any river from continuing to do so after all deleterious matter has been eliminated by filtration.

From the Engineering standpoint the cost of construction, maintenance and operation of intake works or cribs required for supplies drawn from lakes or rivers is so great that, where the quantity of water required is not large other sources are often cheaper. It becomes a problem of three elements, quality, quantity, and cost.

A little incident that might interest a few readers happened one day last week when E. R. Wilson was fishing through the ice.

Having speared a nice pike he opened the door of the fish shanty and threw the trophy out on the ice to safety, closed the door and went on fishing.

In a few minutes he heard an uncommon noise outside but paid no attention till he heard it several times. Going to the door of the shanty he saw a big gull making feeble attempts to get away with the fish.

Of course Mr. Wilson started in pursuit and to his great surprise the gull did not leave his meal so upon close investigation it was found the fish had its mouth closed tightly on the gull's leg and the weight of the fish would not allow the gull to fly with it. This is either a gull or a fish story, but we can vouch for the truth of it anyway. Next!

MINER'S CRADLE.
The cradle is a simple appliance for treating "pay dirt" earth and gravel containing gold dust. It consists essentially of a box, mounted on rockers, and provided with a perforated bottom of sheet iron in which the "pay dirt" is placed. Water is poured on the dirt, and the rocking motion imparted to the cradle causes the finer particles to pass through the perforated bottom on to a canvas screen, and thence to the base of the cradle, where the gold dust accumulates on transverse bars of wood called "riffles."

Just Misplaced.
"My most embarrassing moment," said a minister, "was when, as a young candidate for a church, towering awkwardly in the pulpit, I twisted my words. I was recommending a small pamphlet, and suddenly I heard myself describe it as 'This book which I hold in my little hand.'"

THE GIRLS' GAME was called at eight o'clock and the first half ended with a score of 21 to 1 and the last half with a score of 31 to 1. The Bellaire team only made one free throw.

The boys' game was reverse as the Bellaire boys ran up a score of 35 to 6 the first half. However, our boys held them down in the last half but they were unable to break up the lead gained by the Bellaire boys and the game ended with a score of 49 to 18 in favor of Bellaire.

Both games were good clean games and we certainly have to hand it to Bellaire for having a very fast boys' team.

TO PLANT MEMORIAL TREES
Several National Organizations Co-Operating With Local Authorities in Arrangements.

Plans are materializing for the planting of trees along the principal roads in many states, as a memorial to the American soldiers who lost their lives during the World War. Several national organizations, including the American Legion and the Boy Scouts of America, are co-operating with local civic organizations in arranging for the planting. The black walnut seems to be the variety most favored for such planting. Planting days are being arranged in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa, Ohio and other states.

Machine Clears Land for Farm.

Among the new agricultural machines is a ponderous mechanical construction which moves under its own power over some rough country and leaves it in condition for planting.

The operation of clearing land for agricultural purposes is a very hard and tedious operation, but with the aid of this new machine the labor and time expenditure is reduced more than half. The front end of the machine, which moves on a caterpillar tread, is equipped with heavy bars with sharpened points which enter the ground alternately and tear roads and throw them up to be disposed of later.

The rear of the machine is supplied with a somewhat different device which pulverizes the ground and leaves it in condition for planting. Under ordinary conditions this machine has a capacity of three acres a day.

Steel Barrels.
The statements of the makers are well founded. It is probable that steel barrels will eventually take the place of wooden ones. The steel barrel is composed of staves of that material locked together by an ingenious device; the hoops and heads are also of steel.

It is claimed that the steel barrel is more durable and more compact than the wooden one. As it is said to be lighter and cheaper, it has already had favor in various quarters. About 300,000,000 barrels are needed annually in normal times, to supply the demand in the United States. Flour mills use about 90,000,000, the sugar industry 40,000,000, and the cement industry 75,000,000.—Christian Science Monitor

Charles Serow, on trial in circuit court last week for killing a man at Boyne Falls, was found guilty of murder in the second degree by the jury late Saturday evening. He will be sentenced later.

King Saunders, who is with the Chicago Trust company in the Real Estate and Loan department, arrived Tuesday on a three weeks' sick leave. He is rapidly improving and will undoubtedly be able to resume his work at the appointed time.

As a result of the severe wind and snow storm, all forenoon train on the Pere Marquette railroad were canceled today. Telephone and telegraph lines south of Traverse City and Petoskey were put out of commission, the storm proving to be the most severe so far this season.

George D. Swinton, of the Argo Milling Co., slipped and fell on the icy walk just west of the Lumber Co.'s office, Monday, striking on the back of his head, the force of the fall rendering him unconscious for about twenty minutes. Three stitches were required to close the deep cut on the back of his head.

Breathes there a man with soul so dead who wouldn't take it in his head to vote at the election? Whose heart was ne'er within him warm as out amidst the winter's storm, he'd go make his selection? We know there's none in this here town who'd turn a proposition down that has such recommend-ment. So button up your overcoat; go to the polls and cast a vote—mark a "YES" on the Legion Amendment.

Shot by a Hold-up Man

Mrs. Esther Neff, wife of Lance Neff of the Loeb Farms' force, received a wire Saturday stating that her brother, Oscar Nelson, of the Detroit city detective force, had been shot by a negro during a drug store hold-up. Mr. Nelson was shot twice and is reported out of danger at the Harper Hospital in Detroit. He is well known in Charlevoix.

SCHOOL NOTES

The final debate of the season will occur at Charlevoix instead of at East Jordan as previously announced. This promises to be the most exciting debate yet, as it will decide the sub-district championship. Be in the high school assembly room Friday evening at 8 o'clock, to give our team the final boost.

Presented Check for $20.00

Summer visitors realize the necessity of a better method of sounding fire alarms as well as our home people. Windsor F. Aldrich of Chicago has made the fire boys happy by mailing them a $20.00 check to apply on the purchase price of the new siren whistle. The boys are grateful for the gift and the use to which it will be put is a worthy one.

Rip Van Winkle's Only Regret

Rip Van Winkle's only regret for his twenty-year sleep was the fact that he missed those first elections which were the making of this grand country of ours. (This is not generally known but was confided to a reporter for the Weekly Blast.) Moral: Don't be a Rip Van Winkle. Get out Wednesday, March 1st, and vote "YES" on the Legion Amendment. You won't have any regrets.

Baby's Big Cigar.

A traveler in South America writes: "So far as we observed, the landlord's four-year-old daughter had not acquired a taste for rum, but she had already laid the foundation of a habit which Colombian women, at least the rank and file, have acquired in advance of their northern sisters. Sitting cross-legged on a beach cluttered with baby-talk, she contentedly smoked a large black cigar, around or partly around which her tiny forefinger coiled in stereotyped form. Her mother gave her a light and seemed unfeignedly proud of her offspring's accomplishment."

Is an Atom Like a Clock?

Sir Joseph Larmor has suggested that an atom may be analogous to a clock. The outer electron system of the atom, on which its chemical and spectroscopic properties depend, and which has certain definite rates of oscillation, would correspond to the pendulum, or better, to a compound pendulum system of a clock, he says. The inner core of the atom is similar to the spring of a clock, which, by means of the escapement, slowly imparts its energy to the pendulum in a jerky fashion.

Valuable Food Neglected.

The neglected tropical American food plant, the pebbly or chontaduro, is the rival of the famous Oriental date palm, and like it, is capable of supporting human life almost unaided. Wilson Popehoe, agricultural explorer of the Department of Agriculture, declares. While Arab tribes utilize the date palm as their principal food, the aborigines of southern Costa Rica and other countries of northern South America subsist almost exclusively during part of each year on pebbly.

Then followed a piano duet by Mrs. A. A. Swinton and Miss Phila Armstrong, "At the Donnybrook Fair." The duet was wonderfully well rendered, so much appreciated that a long and hearty encore brought the players to the piano a second time. Every guest was delighted, pronouncing the affair a success in every way, reflecting credit upon the committee: Miss Catton, Miss Manson, Miss Mitchell, Mr. J. L. Crane, and John Burns.

MANY ATTEND FIREMEN'S BALL

DADDY, MOTHER AND THE ENTIRE FAMILY THERE

Happy Throng of Dancers Appreciate Reception Given Them—Winners of the Prizes.

Over one hundred and fifty tickets were sold for the Firemen's Masquerade Ball which was held on Washington's birthday at Bank Hall. The committee in charge of arrangements had worked tirelessly and was well repaid for its efforts by an overflow crowd that cheerfully faced the storm to enjoy the fire laddies' hospitality.

Daddy and mother were there, and Aunt Susie and Brother Tom and the kiddies. Daddy could be seen dancing with his little daughter while Aunt Susie was being piloted about by her young nephew's chum. If you were masked and costumed, all well and good; but if you were not, it didn't matter much. Everyone was out for a good time, and no one was disappointed.

Chief Henry Marshall was ably assisted by George Lusk, Nat Burns, Sam Hamilton, Charles Marshall, Harry Gregory, Charles Myers, Will Heise, Walter Scott and Dan Bassett, who comprised the committee.

"The fire boys now have raised nearly enough to purchase the siren whistle we have in mind," said the chief. "As announced in last week's Courier, the $20.00 contribution of Winsor Aldrich gave us a big start. To-night helps a lot. We expect to go over the top March 17, the date of our next dance."

Dancing began early and continued to 1 o'clock with a few short intermissions. Round dances and quadrilles were evenly divided, with a decided preference for fox trots. It is evident that the catchy lilts of a fox trot is fast making new friends among young and old alike.

Many clever costumes were shown. Miss Doris Vincent, Mrs. Marie McCall, George Weaver and George Finucan had been named as judges, and after the parade of masqueraders chose the winners.

Mrs. Wm. Stokes as a Spanish princess was awarded first prize, a handsome coffee percolator.

Second prize for ladies fell to Miss Peggy Johnson. It was an aluminum double boiler, and Miss Peggy admitted that it would go into a wonderful hope chest—to be brought forth "when the right man came along." We are unable to describe this costume, which was very becoming in spite of droll lines.

Frank Nowland looked well as a Mexican, winning first prize over Lawrence Taylor, garbed as a sack of nuts. Each received a quart size Thermos bottle.

Durane's orchestra furnished the music. Mrs. Jimmy Block being relieved at the piano for several dances by Miss Cleora Smith, a little school girl with decided talent, who played while Mrs. Block danced.

SHARPEN AXE FOR MICHIGAN RATES

Farmers Ask Immediate Reduction of State Freight Rates

Immediate reduction of Michigan freight rates and uprooting of the Michigan zoning system so that State shippers are not discriminated against in interstate or intrastate commerce because of their geographical location are the objectives sought by the State Farm Bureau and the Michigan Traffic League in a rat case now before the Public Utilities Commission. An important hearing is expected early in April. With Michigan divided into four

RUM IS POISON SAYS U. S. AGENT

Eighty-five per cent of liquor, including home brew, being consumed in Michigan is poisonous, according to James R. Davis, federal prohibition director for Michigan, who has just completed a state-wide tour of inspection of the government dry forces in both upper and lower peninsulas.

Immediate action against persons who are flooding the liquor market with poison drinks is forthcoming, says Davis, who added that upon his return to Detroit he will direct enforcement of federal statutes covering the poison liquor phase.

The first case to be taken up will be the death of a Monroe county man a few days ago. Criminal action will be asked, he said.

interstate traffic zones and two intrastate zones and a step-ladder scale of rates prevailing as one goes north, the effect is that of pushing many northern Michigan cities up into Canada. The Farm Bureau says it costs Upper Peninsula zone Michigan farmers as much to ship 50 miles as it does Zone-A farmers south of Niles, Kalamazoo and Jackson to ship 250 miles. The step-ladder rates place both farmers at a disadvantage with those of other states. Michigan routings are also said to be sadly in need of more direct routing.

Michigan agriculture pays more than half the state's freight bill. With Michigan rates higher than those in any section of the country, scarcely excepting New England and the difficult mountain states of the far west, the Farm Bureau and Traffic League declare that the railroads must prove present rates are justified or slash them. Both bodies maintain that the same kind of rates ought to prevail at Mackinac City as at Kalamazoo and that the zoning system must go. The Farm Bureau says it is in the case "with both sleeves rolled up."

BOY SCOUTS VISIT IT LOEB FARMS

TROOP TAKE SKI HIKE ACROSS PINE LAKE.

Youngsters Ride on Back of Aristocratic Porker and Inspect Dairy Barns

"Who'll ride the big pig?" "It was Virgil Davis of Dept. O, Loeb Farms, calling for volunteers to ride the 700-lb. Duroc-Jersey hog, one of the many prize winners of the farm herd."

A couple of dozen boy scouts of Troop I, Charlevoix, had taken a Saturday afternoon ski hike across Pine Lake and now with Scoutmaster Harland Hatch, were inspecting the swine.

At Mr. Davis' invitation Clare Usher and Ralph Burns swung upon the broad glossy red back of the aristocratic porker and were carried around the pen at a lively clip. It was a lot of fun and no mishap.

"But what if he'd bitten a piece out of your leg?" an anxious scout asked the boys.

"Oh, shucks! he isn't ugly," answered Clare. "That's the way they exercise him."

Before calling on the pigs Dr. L. V. Simmons had shown the troop through the horse barn, where they listened to a brief talk on the Belgians. From Dept. L. the boys were taken through the dairy barn and cressery, seeing many things of interest there. There wasn't a dull moment at any time during the inspection tour, the lads getting a lot of fun along with valuable information.

"What makes the cream separate from the milk?" asked one. "Centrifugal force. This whole milk runs into the bowl and is whirled at great speed. Being heavier, the milk is thrown to the outside and runs out of one spout, the lighter cream through another," he was told. "A set of metal discs makes this possible."

"Well, if I could have a farm like this, I'd like to be a farmer," said the youngsters, glancing about appreciatively.

"Who wouldn't!" laughed his chum. "You don't want much!" Scoutmaster Hatch and troop paid their respects to the management before leaving and were cordially asked to come again.

It was voted "some hike."

CHARLEVOIX SNOWBOUND NINE DAYS

Snow, Sleet and Rain Storm Strikes City Late Tuesday, February 21, and Continues for Over Three Days—Traffic on Railways Completely Paralyzed

Charlevoix has been completely snow bound for the past nine days. Completely out of touch with the outside world, other than Petoskey, Boyne City, East Jordan and points south of Bellaire and north to Mackinaw City from Wednesday of last week to Monday of the present week.

The most severe wind and sleet storm that ever visited this section started late Tuesday, February 21, and continued with increasing force through Wednesday, Thursday and almost without interruption until during the early hours of Saturday. During this time snow, conservatively estimated, fell to the depth of from two to four feet and with the accompanying high wind, piled into huge drifts, completely blocking traffic on both highways and railway lines.

The last train to reach Charlevoix arrived several hours late Tuesday night, February 21, and since this to the time we go to press Thursday morning, Charlevoix has been without train service over the Pere Marquette.

The storm reached its height about noon, Thursday of last week, when the temperature rose and for several hours the snow turned to rain and sleet. Later it grew colder and the snow continued to fall.

On Thursday and Friday walking was almost an impossibility on account of the sleet and hail which covered the heavy snow, fall to the depth of from four to six inches. The city's streets and sidewalks, which had been well cleared of the previous snow fall, were completely filled and the heavy snow and sleet made it impossible to use the snow plows, and people were forced to wallow through the street to meeting places and business houses.

Bridge street presented a truly winter scene. In many places the snow was piled in huge drifts, and when shoveled from the side walks, was piled in many places from six to eight feet high.

Roads leading out of Charlevoix were almost impassible, and for several days residents of the rural districts remained on their farms. By Saturday, however, a trail was broken and a few teams appeared on the streets.

Charlevoix however, was more fortunate than cities to the south. From Alden south to Baldwin, rain and sleet fell for several days, completely putting railway and telephone and telegraph lines out of commission. At Traverse City railroad officials reported frozen snow and ice to the depth of from six to eighteen inches on the tracks. The big snow plows of the railroad companies were quickly put out of commission, and gangs of men were put to work with pick and shovel to clear the tracks.

On the Pere Marquette railroad, the first train to reach Traverse City from the south was Monday. Work of clearing the track north to Charlevoix was started Tuesday morning.

Over two hundred men are working day and night in their effort to clear the track. Pere Marquette Agent E. E. Cross stated this morning (Thursday) that the track had been cleared north from Traverse City as far as Bates, about three miles south of Williamsburg, and by night today would probably reach Williamsburg or slightly this side. Investigation of conditions north of Williamsburg are that ice and snow will continue north at least five miles and possibly further. If this report can be depended upon, a train should reach Charlevoix sometime Saturday, unless the ice belt is found to have continued further north.

Outside the inconvenience of being out of touch with the outside world, Charlevoix suffered but little from the blockade. No shortage of fuel or food supplies has been reported. Locally, telephone service has been at its best. Not even for a second has the electric transmission lines been out of commission. Work about the city has been kept up in the usual manner despite the fact for over a week we have been almost isolated.

News from the Outside World

Conditions resultant from the blockade outside of Charlevoix have been more or less serious. The path of the storm extended from the Lake Superior region south to Big Rapids, east to the western half of Canada, and west to the Minnesota line.

Grand Rapids and all of the southern part of Michigan suffered no inconvenience at all other than delayed mail and train service from the northern part of the state.

From Mackinaw City south to Traverse City on a line east across the state the snow fall is estimated at from two to four feet in depth. South of this line, snow fell to the depth of not over four inches, but was accompanied by heavy rain which froze as it fell. At Traverse City and south to Baldwin on the Pere Marquette ice filled in between the rails several inches in depth, making the use of a snow plow impossible. Picks and shovels were resorted to, with the result that after hours of digging, the ice was removed enough to allow trains to pass.

A snow plow, two engines and crew of 150 men working south out of Traverse City covered a distance of less than a mile during a day. The work, however, was kept up until the ice was removed from between the rails and traffic resumed.

On the G. R. & I. south of Petoskey, snow and ice filled the right of way to the depth of from six to twelve feet. At Mancelona four trains were stalled at one time and had to be dug out by men with shovels.

On the Michigan Central service was at a standstill from Wednesday until Sunday, when by almost superhuman effort the track was cleared and traffic resumed. Telephone and telegraph lines were down for miles at a stretch, and to date are not in good working order. Wires were stretched from fence posts and trees in an effort to give the public service.

MASONS AND STARS HAVE SOCIAL TIME

Seventy-five or More Members Meet at Temple Friday Evening

Charlevoix Masons, their wives and members of the Eastern Star to the number of seventy-five or more met at the temple on Friday evening of last week for a social time in the form of a "get-together" and "Get better acquainted meeting."

At 8:00 p. m. members began to arrive and within a short time tables were filled by those desiring to play cards, while others spent the time in enjoyable conversation.

Dancing was also indulged in, members of the party furnishing piano music when the victrola was not used. Late in the evening refreshments were served by members of the house entertainment committee. The occasion was one of those happy events where all enjoyed themselves and resulted in bringing members of both orders in closer touch, thereby strengthening the bonds of love and friendship, the real lasting basis of all fraternal orders.

MADE TRIP IN BOB SLEIGH

PARTY OF TEN ENCOUNTER
HUGE DRIFTS ON HIGHWAYS

Leave Traverse City Saturday Afternoon and Reach Charlevoix Early Monday Morning

Many amusing as well as tragic incidents have been occasioned by the storm which swept over northern Michigan last week, stopping traffic on both the Pennsylvania and Pere Marquette railways. Local citizens who had made business trips south were unable to return, many having their hopes of return to the family fireside turned to comedy, while the stay-at-homes now realize the advantages of the daily press with its news from the outside world.

A party of ten, Charlevoix bound, reached Traverse City sometime the first part of last week and after many futile endeavors to reach their final destination, decided to brave nearly impassible highways and resort to the good old-fashioned mode of travel, namely the bob-sleigh. Leaving Traverse City at 2 p. m. Saturday, they arrived in Elk Rapids at seven the same evening, making the trip with Bob Shannon of that place, and spending the night there. On Sunday they left at 9:00 a. m., arriving at the Johnston Hotel in Torch Lake in time for dinner. Here they were met by Wm. O'Neill with a team belonging to E. B. Ward of Charlevoix, finally reaching this city Monday morning, having followed the trail made by the team the preceding day.

The travelers were fortunate in securing the co-operation of the farmers along the way, many keeping track of the local team and telephoning ahead. Mrs. Jack Webster, whose home is on the Norwood road served supper to the crowd Sunday evening.

The party included—Mr. and Mrs. John Zylstra, who has been visiting in St. Joseph; Doc. Newman, local veterinarian; Mrs. J. S. Morris and small son, Joe, of Flint; Wm. Stinson, aged, 73 of Mt. Forest, Ontario; Mr. and Mrs. Burns of Central Lake and Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Peterson of St. Joseph, who are spending their honeymoon at the home of Mr. Peterson's uncle, Wm. O'Neill.

GAVE WASHINGTON COSTUME PARTY

Miss Lila Heise Entertains Nine Friends Wednesday Evening

Lila Heise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Heise, entertained nine of her girl friends Wednesday with a Washington costume party. The guests arrived at four o'clock and games were played until six o'clock when a pot-luck supper was served. Seated around the table were: Margaret Bogart, Mildred Cooper, Gwendolyn Genelt, Lila Heise, Isabel Hendrickson, Lerue Higman, Lucina Korth, Anna Shearer, Leona Smith and Virginia Solomon.

After the supper, games and dancing were enjoyed until eight o'clock, when the guests departed declaring their young-hostess a very able entertainer.

AVALANCHE OF VOTES ARE CAST

BLOCKADE ACTS AS STIMULANT TO VOTERS

In Mayoralty Contest Arthur Bergeon Wins By Biggest Majority Ever Given Candidate

Instead of the present blockade and extreme difficult walking conditions keeping the people of Charlevoix in their homes on primary election day Wednesday, the effect was directly opposite, and an avalanche of votes were cast in all of the three wards of the city.

In the race for mayor, Arthur Bergeon won by about the largest majority ever counted in a contest of this kind over his opponent, Frank M. Glassford. All told, 679 votes were cast, 536 for Bergeon and 143 for Glassford, a majority of 393 for Bergeon.

In the first ward Robert Bridge defeated Harry Craig for alderman by a vote of 75 to 45, a majority of 30 for Bridge. No other contest in this ward with the exception of the head of the ticket.

In the second ward the fight was waged over the offices of supervisor and alderman. Fred E. Cartier, present supervisor, was defeated by Nassau Burns, by a vote of 185 to 155. The real scrap, however, took place for the office of alderman, two year term. William Marshall was opposed by Harry L. Oldham. When the votes were counted, Oldham was 49 short of winning the vote standing as follows: Marshall 195, Oldham 146.

The only contest in the third ward was for supervisor. Edward B. Ward, who held this office for the past three years, was opposed by Geik C. Geiken, the result of the vote was Ward 112, Geiken 91, giving Ward a majority of 21.

The vote on the Legion amendment was very gratifying to the members of Leslie T. Shapton Post, American Legion, and it is quite evident that the people of Charlevoix stand almost solid back of the boys in their efforts to build a Community Memorial Hall.

In the three wards of the city, 671 votes were placed in the ballot boxes, 549 for and 122 against the proposition, giving it a majority of 427.

We hear that the progressive cracker box social at the J. W. Mosher store is being well attended, few falling to answer roll call each day.

No mail from Charlevoix for several days last week on account of the snow blockade. This is the first time in four years we have missed our mail.

One of our local fishermen reports that he saw a muskallunge over six feet long the other day. To date he has not fully recovered from the shock of seeing this monster of the deep.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH NOTES

The Holy Sacrament will be administered Sunday at the 10:30 hour. All Christians are invited and urged to come. The opening services will be abbreviated so that all the time needed will be used for the Lord's Supper. Persons not having before confessed Christ we invite that you make this confession.

Sunday School is intensely interesting these days and our teachers are working up splendid interest in the handling of the lesson. These Old Testament bible characters of such sterling worth show us what even that age could produce. With Christianity as a back ground and God's Holy Spirit possessing our lives what cannot we become as we live for him. Come to church and remain for Sunday School. We have a good orchestra.

Why not go to Junior League this Sunday at 3 o'clock. Superintendent's Pool and Newberry will be there to welcome you. The church would not be as strong today if it had not been for the efficient training of the Juniors a generation ago.

Some friendly contests between classes in S. S. are getting good results. The Easter eggs will bulge some of the spirit to fill them continues as intense as has been started.

Epworthians study this week "Our Debt to an Inspiring Friend." Will Bellinger is leader. This meeting promises good results. Give the leader a good attendance and he will give you good leadership.

Evening service begins promptly at 7 p. m. The Chorus choir pretty nearly filled our spacious platform last Sunday. The audience was large. We yet have room for those who are not "twicers." The subject will be "The Cost and Profit of a Christian Life." What has is cost you? Not much. Nothing boys, nothing. Pay the price of complete consecration of your life to God and your profit is a hundred fold in this life. And in the world to come life everlasting.

Extensive repairs are going on in the church basement financed by the Ladies Literary and Sewing Club. To smy the room looks beautiful now is putting it mildly. Thanks ladies!

The real work of tithing has been begun among us. Sixty-one have covenanted to pay the tithe to God. It reveals a true spirit of devotion when one is willing to give to God the first fruits and the best fruits.

Barnard church open and warm invites your attendance next Sunday from one to three in the afternoon. Superintendent Frank Matchett will be there to make Sunday school instructing and your presence will be very encouraging. The Pastor will administer the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper and preach. If there are those who would like to join the church we want you.

We will receive members Sunday here. Get out that church letter and hand it to the pastor.

Official Board Monday at 7:30 p. m.

Get your semi-annual statements from the financial secretary and respond to the exhortation in the circular letter.

Sunday School Board Tuesday at 7:30 p. m.

Mrs. Poole's S. S. class has a baked goods sale Saturday at Brown's garage.

B. Y. P. U. NOTES

"Better Home Life" is the topic for next Sunday evening. Miss Margaret Lewis will be the leader. Let everyone try and be present.

We are saving our collection to buy some new song books and it is hoped that we can get them soon.

For several weeks we have been looking forward to a sleighride party, but something has happened to prevent it. However next Friday evening, if all goes well, we will meet at 7 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Rice on Antrim street and from there take a sleighride out to Mrs. Hadsell's on the Waller Farm.

We will take a pot-luck lunch with us, and also, in order to defray expenses, each person going is requested to pay ten cents.

Everyone is cordially invited to join us in having an evening "chuckled full" of wholesome fun.

Buy your electric light globes of us. Any candle power you may want. They are the best kind. Charlevoix Hardware Co. 5tf

THE LITTLE GUN SHOP

Dedicated to Boy Scout Troop 1, Charlevoix.

Young Jack Astor of New York visits the southwest cattle country and gets an eyeful of local color.

There's a little old shop at the edge of the town;

With a low, sloping roof and a color quite brown;

Not a very grand place, you would say, to be sure;

But for blues and the like it's a crackerjack cure;

For it's here that the cowboys all gather for fun,

To shoot holes in the ceiling or lie in the sun.

They're the friendliest, jolliest lot in the land,

And are right up to snuff when it comes down to sand.

On the walls there are knives, guns and pistols galore,

While great puma and bear skins half cover the floor;

Though if I had my choice of all this, I confess,

I'd undoubtedly choose a twelve-bore hammerless;

If in failing to find on the ridges a deer,

I'm sure I'd be tempted to draw on some steer;

Just to cause some excitement, a bit of a change,

For the lads that stand guard of the Chain Diamond Range!

When hot winds in July quickly parch all the corn,

And the ranchers you pass on the street seem forlorn,

I then quietly take up my place in the shade,

And watch closely to see how a rifle is made;

For I've given up hopes of becoming a king,

And believe in my heart that a cowboy's the thing;

It's the wish of my life,—some may think it quite strange,—

To be one of the guard of the Chain Diamond Range!

W. Gordon Parker.

Here is a splendid opportunity for some live-wire in this community.

You may be a motor car dealer, a garage proprietor, or you may be in some business having nothing to do with automobiles.

Whatever your line,—if you are a hustler and a sound business man, we want to hear from you.

Our proposition practically assures such a dealer of exceptional profits.

We have a definite, specific plan of co-operation which helps you locate, and sell, prospects.

Why We Make This Offer

Greatly increased factory production now enables us to supply the great potential demand for this outstanding car in every town in Michigan.

There are many prospects in your territory. They want such a car as the Hupmobile—a really fine car that sells for $1250 f. o. b. factory—but they have never been approached.

This is your opportunity. Your sales territory is beautifully fallow.

Our discount rate is much more liberal than that ordinarily offered. No back-breaking requirements—nothing but what will enhance your bank standing.

In addition you will have the advantage of dealing with one of the largest motor car distributors in Michigan.

WHAT PERSHING THINKS

The appropriations of the five great powers for military and naval purposes in the year 1920 alone reached a total of $16,442,251,101, a sum only about $2,000,000,000 more than the total for the whole fourteen years before the war.

It all comes down to this so far as you are concerned:

Every morning when you go to work, or when you stay at home sick on a working day, or even if you are out of a job, it has been arranged for you to pay your fair share out of what you earn or should earn, of over $5,000,000 a day for the support of the army and navy. That is the estimate for the fiscal year 1922—over $5,000,000 a day. I have General Pershing's word for it. You will have to pay it. Five million dollars every working day is a pile of money to spend for insurance against attack. And of course that is not all the cost. What is the big idea? What do you think about it? You will have to pay the bill. Do you think about it at all? General Pershing does. This is what he thinks:

"As we consider the causes of the World war and comprehend its horrors, every thinking man and woman must feel that measures should be taken to prevent another such calamity. One step in that direction would be to reduce expenditures for armament. Our own estimates for naval and military purposes contemplate an appropriation for the fiscal year 1922 of over $5,000,000 for every working day in the year. It is a gloomy prospect that the nations plan expenditures greater than ever before in peacetime.

"It would appear that recent experiences should be enough to convince everybody of the danger of a renewal of this competition. But one nation cannot reduce armaments unless all do. It is time that enlightened people everywhere should undertake to reach some rational agreement which would not only relieve the world of its heavy financial burden but which in itself would go far toward the prevention of war. We are not a warlike people. We do not wish to expand at the expense of any other nation, and we have no designs on anybody. If other people feel the same toward us and toward each other it seems unreasonable that they should be unwilling to consent in principle to some limitation of armaments, to be carried out when other nations succeed in establishing stable governments and are willing to recognize the wisdom of such a course. Otherwise, may we not seriously ask ourselves whether civilization is a failure, and whether we are to regard war as an unavoidable scourge that mankind must suffer?

"There are other considerations which should prompt us to make every effort to bring about a curtailment of these expenditures throughout the world, particularly in the war-torn countries of Europe. The people of Europe have always been our best customers and are largely dependent upon us for certain necessities. We must look to them to buy the products of our farms, mines and factories. The prosperity of our people depends in no small measure upon the uninterrupted flow of commodities abroad. We have stocks of cotton, wheat and other products greatly in excess of our own requirements, which the people of Europe sorely need but which we cannot sell and they cannot buy because their fiscal systems have broken down, their currencies have depreciated, and their purchasing power is exhausted.

"The first step to take in the rehabilitation of the finances of all these countries is to reduce the cost of government so that expenses will not exceed the incomes. Expenditures must be lowered everywhere if financial stability is to be restored and if the nations are ever to pay their debts. Until stability is restored none can have prosperity that comes from a free and uninterrupted flow of products from one country to another. But this cannot be done if huge sums continue to be appropriated for the maintenance of large armies and large navies.

"The safety of humanity in the future, indeed the peace, the happiness and the prosperity of the race—all appeal alike for an early consideration of the question of limited armaments."

Broadly speaking, it is the man who profits, and not the simple average man who endures, who is behind all this movement for ever increasing armament. If you doubt this, just go out in your own neighborhood and ask men who were actually in the war, who saw service in the line, whether they want any more of it.

IX. OUT-OF-DATE MACHINE

A committee made up of three members of the senate and three members of the house is now considering the whole problem of the organization of the executive departments of the government with a view to finding out how to reorganize them so as to increase their efficiency and decrease their cost of operation. It is about time. The great executive departments of the government have not been reorganized or greatly modernized since Alexander Hamilton's day. Representative Travis of Nebraska is one of the members of this joint congressional committee that is making the present investigation. He put the resolution through the house that brought about the appointment of the committee. He is a part of the national government machine and he ought to know what he's talking about when he says that "while the government of the United States is the world's biggest business, it is likewise the world's worst managed business."

That is an indictment and a statement of fact that will stand the closest scrutiny and the most insipid analysis. But listen to Mr. Reavis:

"Why should the interior department run an insane asylum and a college for negroes and a school for the deaf? How did it get that way? Why should one personnel in the pension bureau in the interior department be responsible for the disabled soldiers of the Civil war and the Spanish American war, while another personnel in the bureau of war risk insurance of the treasury is caring for the veterans of the World war? Why this hodgepodge of totally unrelated purposes which is resulting in end-less duplication and appalling expense?"

I will let Mr. Reavis go on without further interruption. As a member of the house he has his share of the responsibility for the conditions he describes:

There are 39 separate governmental agencies handling engineering, architectural and public works functions, all of a related kind. There is no good reason why all these agencies should not be coordinated in one department and about 35 of the useless organizations done away with. There are 26 government agencies engaged in surveying and mapping; there are 27 separate and distinct agencies engaged in public building operations; there are 16 agencies authorized to build roads; there are 16 engaged in hydraulic construction; there are 16 doing work on rivers; there are 10 engaged in public land functions; there are 16 doing chemical investigation connected with public work operations; there are 22 doing engineering and research.

Many of these agencies have been inactive for a number of years, but they are keeping up their personnel in anticipation of work in the future. We could save $30,000,000 a year, in my judgment, by doing away with useless bureaus and duplication of activities.

Some of the duplications are ridiculous and absurd. For instance, the government seeks to protect the wild animals in the national parks. If a brown bear has twin cubs, one brown and one black, as often happens, and one should shoot the brown cub he must make his settlement with one department, but if he shoots its full brother, the black cub, he must settle with another department. If you were to shoot a fox in Alaska your settlement would be with the Department of Agriculture, while if you trapped the same fox you must make your settlement with the Department of Commerce.

The government issued last year through its several bureaus and departments 16 cookbooks. The last one that was issued was published by the board of vocational education. This is a board organized by the congress for the purpose of rehabilitating crippled soldiers of the World war, to prevent, as far as possible, their becoming derelicts in life. . . . It may be of interest to state that while the government has been issuing 16 cookbooks and constituting vast quantities of printed paper in these and similar useless publications, 1,300 country town newspapers have suspended in the last three months because they could not secure print paper.

Mr. Reavis and a great many others have sensed the feeling in the country and in congress that the time has come to put an end to all this sort of thing. He gives reasons for his belief:

One of the reasons is that the people demand that their taxation be reduced. For many years we have been collecting the revenues of this government through systems of indirect taxation. The revenues have been collected through a protective tariff and by excise taxation on intoxicating liquors. Indirect taxation of this kind prevents the people from realizing fully just who is paying the expenses of the government. There was a time when the expenses of the government amounted to only 12 cents per capita per year. Today the annual per capita expense exceeds $40. This tremendous expense has made it necessary to resort to direct taxation, and the people have suddenly become painfully aware of who pays the expenses of the government.

I am very certain that the elimination of duplications and overlapping in the departments will result in the saving of millions of dollars. There is no reason why it should not be done.

There is every reason, in the presence of the strife and turmoil that prevail in this country and of the unrest occasioned by the high cost of the necessities of life, that the government should be put upon a sane, efficient and economical basis. Whoever by public clamor or other means can induce congress and the executive departments to organize the routine business of the national government will have performed a great public service. Note that a "cor-gauze" and not "coronize" for in no proper sense has the federal business ever been organized.

SNAPSHOTS of the Passing Show

What we need is more schools that will turn out self-providers.

Weigh the average man and he will be found wanting—the earth.

It is almost time for the great American bloc to begin thinking about the spring plowing.

Cheer up! The weather that consumes this winter's coal is increasing next summer's ice supply.

Uncle Sam may not be greatly loved abroad, but he could be almost any nation's valentine if he would.

According to a German scholar in Pittsburgh, Shakespeare was a German and his name was Jacob Speer. The war is over.

There is no great period of depression without some profit. For instance round steak really has the best flavor. It was a great discovery.

Inasmuch as prohibition has incurred the dangerous support of George Bernard Shaw, it will need to edit all his dry epigrams before passing them to the public.

Despite the alleged fact of overproduction, soft coal continues high, and the more the economists explain the situation the less intelligible it becomes.

What, by the way, has become of Vice-President Cal Coolidge's cow? It is hoped that her simple and artless nature has not been spoiled by life among politicians.

It is predicted that the nation is about to witness a ruthless price-cutting war in the automobile industry, but nothing is said about price cutting in the oil field. What profiteth it a man to have a gift car when he hath not the price of a gallon of gas?

"Sure," says Mr. Dempsey. I'll fight with anybody the people want me to fight and I'd go across to fight Carpenter again—if there was a big enough pot." In 1917 there was plenty of fighting but Mr. Dempsey did not go across. Evidently the pot was not big enough.

Everything seems to have cut loose from its moorings and chaos is on its way. Not to be out done by other revolutionists, the geologists delve into the fastnesses of the earth and announce that not only has the earth shifted its axis but that the so-called dry land is doing a sort of "ring-around-the-rosy" stunt, continent chasing continent through the seven seas. In a word, the earth is "creeping." It would occasion no alarm the population if this creeping were uniform, but it is not. The mountains, sad to say move faster than the plains, and it is only a question of time until they plow through all the valleys, leaving the latter bald as a hard-boiled egg. It's just one thing after another!

Americans may well heed the admonition of Michael Collins not to be led astray by the friskiness of remnants of the Irish Republican Army, by kidnappings on the Ulster border or by popular response to De Valera's eloquence and assume an attitude hostile to the Irish free State. It is not the first new nation to have its teething troubles. We had ours. The Constitution was framed to a running accompaniment of musketry practice for Shay's rebellion in staid old Massachusetts. Vermont remained an Ulster of discontent, entirely independent, for four years because of her quarrel with New York before joining the Union. Seven years after the Constitution was framed and five years after government under it was begun, a farm bloc in Western Pennsylvania staged an armed revolt known in the histories as the Whiskey Insurrection. It takes time to iron out the wrinkles of a new republic.

Dismayed by the formidable opposition to new taxation for the payment of a bonus, the best minds of the Senate have again turned their attention to bonds and are endeavoring to win the approval of the President. The fundamental objections to bond issue are no valid now as they were last July when Mr. Harding warned Congress that any form of bond legislation would "greatly imperil the financial stability of our country." Congress, however, is not concerned about the financial stability of the United States. It is engaged in swapping a bonus for American Legion votes. Congress does not bother its head either about the political morality of the transaction or the financial consequences, but it knows that it must devise a method of payment which will not alienate more votes than it buys. Taxation is bad because it will hit too many people. A bond issue seems better because the evil effects are more difficult to establish clearly in the minds of the voters. New taxes are a clear and specific thing, but the burden of bonds is not so apparent to the man in the street and the man on the farm. And while congress is fussing as to the ways and means, the ex-service men are getting nowhere.

I'm proof against that word "failure." I've seen behind. The only failure a man ought to fear is failure in cleaving to the purpose he sees to be best.—George Elliot.

A FEW NUT SALADS

The amount of nuts added to any combination used as a salad adds greatly to its nutritive value.

Peanut Salad.—Take one head of lettuce, wash and separate the leaves, then wrap and put away to drain. Remove the seeds from a green pepper, also the white membrane, and cut the pepper into water-like slices. Rub the skins from one cupful of peanuts and chop coarsely. When ready to serve, place the lettuce in a salad bowl, scatter the pepper and nuts over it and decorate with tomato cut from plants. Season well with salt, paprika and pepper. Serve with French or holland dressing.

Cream Cheese, Grape and Pecan Salad.—Take one pound of California grapes, remove the seeds and mix with one-quarter pound of pecan nut meats broken in bits; add French or mayonnaise dressing and place on head lettuce. Take one cream cheese, mix with cream to soften, then press through a ricer over the salad. Decorate with halved nuts and farns cut from canned red peppers.

Almond and Banana Salad.—Peel and scrape three bananas, cut in quarters lengthwise and sprinkle with lemon juice. Chop one-half pound of salted almonds very fine; roll the bananas in them. Arrange on head lettuce and sprinkle with seeded grapes. Pour over French dressing made by using lemon juice instead of vinegar.

Walnuts and Potato Salad.—Chop six cold boiled potatoes, one-half cupful of nut meats, one small cooked beet, three or four pickles, a stalk of celery, one-half of a green pepper, finely shredded, and one cupful of thick, rich, highly-seasoned holland dressing. Press into a mold and let stand to chill; serve on lettuce that has been sprinkled with onion juice.

Hard Sauce.—Cream one-half cupful of butter, add one cupful of powdered sugar, then fold in the stiffly beaten white of an egg. Cream may be used in place of the egg, whipped until stiff, using two tablespoonsful of butter instead of the half cupful.

sin, the northern peninsula and, lower Michigan cities on the return

SPORTSMEN'S BANQUET AT BOYNE CITY

Northern Michigan Nimrods to Be Guests of Noontime Club

The Noontime Club of Boyne City is making elaborate plans for the entertainment of sportsmen from northern Michigan at a banquet to be held on Thursday evening, March 9, at 6:30 p. m., at the Wolverine Hotel.

The meeting will be along the same lines as the one held in Petoskey last winter, which was attended by nearly four hundred men interested in the preservation of wild life and the making of an enforcement of better game laws.

The chief attraction on the program will be Mr. McGillivray of the state conservation department, who will be present with his moving pictures and slides of wild life in Michigan.

A. L. Fitch has been asked to appear on the program, his topic, being "The One Buck Law." Art made a hit at the Petoskey meeting, where he spoke on the same subject, his version of this ruling being based on personal observation. His recent contract with a buck while on a trip through the upper peninsula last fall, has been productive of new ideas along this line, which we are confident will be interesting to those who will be present at this meeting.

MANISTEE VOTES ON NEW CHARTER

Would Change Several Parts of Present Form of Government

Manistee was voting last Monday on whether to accept or reject the proposed new city charter. The new charter provides for retention of the commission-manager form of government but is materially altered with a view to providing for more representative government by the election of a commissioner from each of the seven districts of the city.

Under the provisions of the new charter the mayor will be elected by the commissioners from their own number for a one-year term, making every commission chosen a prospective mayor. Commissioners terms will be two years.

Other elective officers would be two justices of the peace for the city at large for four-years term; one supervisor and one constable for each district, for one-year term, and three city assessors for the city at large, each for three-year terms.

The city manager, city clerk, city treasurer city attorney, health officer and milk inspector will be appointed by the commission.

Birds in the Dark.

"Not a few birds practically rear their nestlings in the dark, says the American Forestry Magazine. Well-known examples of this are seen in sand martins and kingfishers—birds that dig, or scrape out, long burrows in banks, and lay their eggs at the further end of them.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

Troop One, Charlevoix Boy Scouts has been reorganized and a new charter applied for. Two successful hikes have taken place during the past month.

The first was on February 11, 1922. The troop accompanied by Scoutmaster Hatch and Assistant Hanshaw, left about 8 a. m. for Pine Point. The object of the hike was to complete the Second Class Test. In order to do this it is necessary to cook, satisfactorily, two potatoes and one fourth pound of meat, without any utensils. The fire to do this must be built with not more than two matches. Upon arriving at the point each scout built a fire and dinner was eaten. The afternoon was spent with two tracking contests.
Everyone returned home about four-thirty, tired but happy.

The second hike took place on Saturday, February 25th. The troop left town at 12:15 o'clock and proceeded by way of Pine Lake to the Loeb Farm. Arriving there we were shown about by Doctor Simmons.
The horses, cows and the creamery were inspected with great enthusiasm. The electric light plant also attracted much interest. The last place visited was the pig pen. There two members proved that they were adept at broncho busting by riding, successfully, one of the large boars.
The troop then started back with twenty-six pairs of skis gliding over the lake. The success of the hike was due to the kindness of Mr. Sloan, a member of the Local Council.

At the regular meeting, February 20, four members passed the Tender-foot Test. Several other candidates expect to take their tests in the near future.

GIVEN NAMES ARE SUBJECT TO STYLE

Children Named After Popular Figures of Times

What's in a name? "Chances to make mistakes, in spelling," grumble vital statisticians of the state department of health after perusing the thousands of birth certificates filed in 1921. "And susceptibility to wave of popularity."

Names now popular? Douglas for boys and Marian for girls are among the foremost, it is said. The former because it has always been a "good naming name," to which is now added the prestige given it by scores of photoplays. Marian is having a run of popularity, statisticians claim, both because it is Mrs. Harding's given name and the name of her home town.

"For 100 years after Columbus discovered America," explained one worker who has made some study of names, "people called their sons Christopher, writing it Xtopher. News and their worship travel faster now. Today it is pretty safe to say that the Majority of boys named Dewey was born after the victory of Manila Bay. A new president usually inaugurates a crop of namesakes. The Warrens are now coming in large numbers; the Theodores have hardly sneezed during the past two decades; but as yet there are only a few Woodrows.

"Lee is a favorite middle name, as is Anne. May and June are year-round names, and popular. At present odd names ending in a 'are quite the fashion, as Donna, Trena, Phola, Cynthia, or Elnora."

Here are some of the spellings noted: Betty, Bettie, Bettye; Marjorie, Margery, Marjory, Marjoree. This idiosyncrasy on the part of parents, some cynic has remarked, will give their daughters "the opportunity to be undisputed authorities on the spelling and pronunciation of their own names."

CO-OP. MARKETING WORK LEGALIZED

Capper - Volstead Act Authorizes Farmers to Act Together

Co-operative marketing has been legalized by the recent enactment of the Capper-Volstead Marketing bill. The bill authorizes farmers to act together in associations, corporate or otherwise, in collectively processing, preparing for market, handling and marketing in interstate or foreign commerce the products of their farms. The bill removes the threat of the Sherman anti-trust law by agreeing that the mere existence of large co-operative associations for collective marketing of farmers products by the farmers themselves does not constitute a crime. The co-operatives are also permitted common selling agencies. The new law relieves the paralyzing affect that the shadow of the Sherman law has exercised on co-operative marketing.

Congress also provided brakes in the new law. Protection of the purchasing public in the face of possible co-operative combines to advance prices unduly or to act in restraint of trade is placed in the hands of the Secretary of Agriculture, with full power to call in the U. S. courts. The bill provides that no member of an association shall have more than one vote, regardless of the stock that he owns, and that no association may pay more than 8 per cent per year dividends on stock interest in his product to the point where it becomes most economical to dispose of it and the work for increased returns by giving him freedom in developing more economical phases of marketing.

EACH TICK OF CLOCK COST STATE 9 CENTS

Every time the clock ticks, the state of Michigan has nine and a fraction cents added to its interest charges on the bonded indebtedness, according to figures compiled by O. B. Fuller, auditor general.

The interest for one year on Michigan's bonded indebtedness is $2,907,095. This covers a $30,000,000 bond issue for the soldiers bonus; $20,050,000 for highway improvements; bonds and $3,500,000 for the war loan, a total bonded indebtedness of $53,550,000.

GOOD ROADS

SURVEY NATION'S HIGHWAYS

Accurate Measurement of America's Net of Roadways Soon to Be Made by Government.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

America's far-flung net of roadways is soon to be measured accurately in terms of mileage, cost, character of construction, improvement work and general condition by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. The survey, which is the most extensive ever undertaken and the first in seven years, is to be made with the aid of state and local officials and individuals the country over, and is comparable only to the great task of taking the national census.

Nobody, in all probability, could guess today within millions of dollars what the roadways total, in dollars and cents, on the ledger of national assets. Nobody knows how many miles there are where wheels may roll. The strength and the weakness of the nation's transportation arteries likewise are unknown in detail.

When the survey is completed, all these and other facts will be known and will be available for guidance to road builders. In addition there will be abundant data to show up comparisons of costs. The well-built roads of, say, Pennsylvania can be laid, dollar for dollar and mile for mile, alongside the well-built roads of California and other states. First cost and maintenance of macadam, asphalt, concrete—every kind of road built—from one section can be matched against such costs from every other section, if desired. The way to make the dollar most effective in road work thus will be pointed out.

Rural highways as well as urban are to be included, the latter embracing all roads, streets and alleys in incorporated communities of 2,500 invery dry when worked. The device used consists of an ordinary conveyor, which lifts the sand to a revolving screen. Material which will pass a one-fourth-inch mesh is discharged into a hopper under the screen and then through a narrow opening into a storage bin below. In falling from the hopper to the bin, the sheet of sand passes directly in front of a nozzle, which directs against it a current of air from a centrifugal air blower. By means of a pressure regulator at the blower, the velocity of the air at the nozzle can be so controlled as to blow from the falling sand any desired percentage of the finer material.

The blower is operated by a belt from the same gas engine which operates the conveyor and revolving screen. The whole device is compact and inexpensive. The result is a satisfactory sand obtained at less cost than by any other method. The success of the plan depends, of course, on the dryness of the sand. If it were necessary to dry it, the increased cost of treatment might make the importation of suitable material preferable.

MORE GOOD THINGS

Everybody likes apple dumplings, but the following is one a little more elaborate than the everyday affair and very good:

Baked Apple Dumplings.—Select tart apples that do not lose their shape in cooking. Pare evenly after removing the cores, put the apples into water enough to float them; add a cupful of sugar and cook until almost done. Remove with the skimmer and cook the strips until thick. Place each apple on a square of pastry; fill the cores with butter, lemon juice and sugar and drop the strip over the apples. Moisten the tips of the pastry and press together over the top of the apple. Put on a baking tin and bake a nice brown. Serve with cream just sour enough to become thick, into which has been stirred powdered sugar or marshmallow sauce.

Economical Plum Pudding.—Mix in the order given, one cupful of fine sifted crumbs, one and one-half cupfuls of flour, two tablespoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt, one cupful of finely chopped suet, one-half cupful each of raisins, seed and chopped, one of well-washed currants. A few slices of citron may be added if desired. Beat one egg with the juice and grated rind of one lemon and two teaspoonfuls of oil; add one cupful of molasses and mix with the dry ingredients. Add milk or water to make a thick batter. Pour into a large ring mold or two cylinder-shaped molds and steam two hours.

Vinegar Candy.—Stir three cupfuls of sugar into one and one-half cupfuls of pure white vinegar. Cook until a spoonful dropped in water makes a soft ball. Pour on a flat dish or a slightly greased slab and as soon as possible begin to pull—pulling while it is soft and warm gives it its light and porous texture. Continue to pull as long as the candy is flexible.

Cottage Cheese and Nut Salad.—To two cupfuls of seasoned cottage cheese add one-half cupful of thinly sliced Brazil nuts. Mix with boiled dressing and serve on endive or head lettuce.

SELECTING FARM VERY IMPORTANT

Many Things to Consider That May Have Decided Bearing on Home and Business.

FERTILITY MOST DESIRABLE

Essential to Success of Enterprise Is High Quality of Live Stock—Look to Source and Dependability of Water.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The wise selection of a farm is vital to the success and satisfaction of farm life. Choosing a farm often means choosing a place in which to live and work for a lifetime. It is important, of course, to decide wisely in buying for investment, says the United States Department of Agriculture, but in making a selection for a home it is doubly important to consider various features that may have a decided bearing on the farm business or that may make the home life attractive.

Home and Business Inseparable.

The home side of the question must always be kept in mind, for the farm home and the farm business are inseparable. The desirable farm from a business standpoint many times is found undesirable if it has no social or community advantages. On the other hand, desirable living conditions are of little or no advantage unless supplemented by a successful farm business.

In selecting a farm it should be borne in mind that it requires a farm business of considerable size to provide an income that will merely cover maintenance charges, and that these charges are relatively larger for small farms than for large ones. A farm must be of such a size as to furnish most of the supplies needed in the farmer's living, such as garden and fruit, and enough income to pay the taxes and running expenses. Unless, however, there is a margin above these annual maintenance charges no progress can be made toward accumulating a surplus.

Another feature which the farm seeker should see to is that prospects for crop yields are more than sufficient to balance the cost of production. Soils of low fertility are handicapped—some are found to be a positive liability if it is necessary to farm them. It is well to inquire thoroughly into crop yields, not only those that have been obtained on the farm itself for a period of years but those realized on adjacent farms.

Equally essential to the success of the farm business is high quality of the live stock enterprise. To handle live stock so it will pay for feed, care and labor is more than a mere matter of management, for it is dependent not only on cheap roughage, pasture, market, and securing labor at reasonable rates, but also on the quality of the animals kept.

Crop land, in itself, is of little value unless it is so situated that it can be made to yield profitable returns through the use of labor and machinery. A farm of 160 acres, valued at $100 an acre, may be a much better purchase if practically all of the land can be put to some profitable use, than another farm of 160 acres, at $50 an acre, of which large areas are practically useless, owing to stromps, and swamps that cannot be drained, or rough stony tracts poorly suited even for pasture.

Another factor is ease of cultivation. If the land is very steep or broken it is not practicable to use improved machinery and it is often difficult to harvest the crops and remove them from the land by the usual methods. This is particularly true in loading hay and grain on steep hills.

The experienced farmer in selecting a farm generally looks first to the source and dependability of the water supply. He knows that a farm without and adequate supply of water is most undesirable. Attention should be directed to the quality of the water, the question of whether the supply is

DISEASED CONDITION OF SEED SWEET CORN

Much Damage Done by Ear Worm and Rot Molds.

Growers Urged to Exercise Greatest Care to Insure Quality of Next Year's Supply—Test With Rag-Doll Germinator.

Because of the damage which has been done to sweet corn throughout the Middle West this season by the ear worm, followed by root and ear-rot molds, corn growers are urged by the United States Department of Agriculture to exercise every possible care to insure the quality of their seed for next year's crop. These molds have in many cases rendered a considerable percentage of the ears wholly unfit for any purpose. Other ears, but partly overrun with molds, are unfit for seed but should be used for feed only after the moldy part of the ear is shelled off. This applies especially to the corn which has been grown for seed. In certain fields in the corn belt the damage has been so great that the corn was rendered unfit for harvesting as seed, practically no ears being found which were not injured.

These observations and reports to the department are all based on the evident and conspicuous defects that have been found in sweet corn and dent varieties. It is known, moreover, that many of the apparently good ears in those damaged fields are diseased and unless special precautions are taken, for example testing with the rag-doll germinator, they may pass as good seed corn.

During the past three years it has been found that much of the sweet corn seed which has been purchased in the open market has been badly infected with mold and ear-rot organisms. The quality of seed obtainable for use next spring depends, then, upon how the seed grown last year has been cared for, and upon the attention given the selection of seed from this season's crop.

INCREASE OF HESSIAN FLY

Parasitic Enemies and Unfavorable Weather Tend to Keep Pest Within Bounds.

If it were not for its parasitic enemies and unfavorable weather, the Hessian fly would increase in such vast numbers that wheat growing in this country would be practically impossible inside of two years. The United States Department of Agriculture, as a result of recent studies, now published in Department Bulletin 1008, Rate of Multiplication of the Hessian Fly, by W. H. McConnell, found that the increase in breeding of the insect was much higher than had been before realized. The data collected afford an explanation for the very sudden development of a Hessian fly outbreak and furnish a basis for predicting more accurately the approach of a dangerous infestation.

CHARLEVOIX SNOW-BOUND NINE DAYS

City to Alpena, traffic was resumed Sunday night. Hundreds of business men and laborers from Boyne City and towns on the line turned out and helped the railroad officials in the work of opening the road.

Communications from East Jordan to Frederic over the E. J. & S. was opened up early Sunday after hours of hard work.

Petoskey was in about the same condition in regards to train service as Charlevoix up to Sunday, when service was resumed between Mackinac City and Munneelon. The first through train service was accomplished late Wednesday, when a train from Grand Rapids reached the city. Harbor Springs has been isolated since Tuesday of last week, and it will be several days before the track is cleared of the mountains of snow. Communications between the two cities was brought about by the use of a dog team and Indian driver. The Petoskey Evening News delivered their papers daily in this manner.

Cadillac and Reed City have both been without electric lights and telephone service since Wednesday night of last week. Telephone and electric wires are piled in confusion about the city and it will take several days before either service is resumed.

The streets of Muskegon are reported to be several inches under water and business about paralyzed. At Mt. Pleasant students at the normal school and college made their way about the city in canoes, the water in places being from one to three feet in depth.

Between Manton and Walton Junction, on the G. R. & I. in one stretch alone 142 telephone poles lie flat on the ground, and the wires are broken and badly tangled. Conditions on telephone and telegraph lines south of Traverse City were in about the same condition, but service was resumed late Sunday night.

On the Ann Arbor railroad between Cadillac and Frankfort, four trains are stalled in the snow, the wires are down and it will be several days before traffic is resumed.

Reports from the fruit belt between Ludington and Traverse City is that to the effect that the damage from the snow and ice will run into thousands of dollars and that hundreds of trees are ruined from the weight ice and snow.

In Grand Rapids and Chicago, on Wednesday and Thursday of last week, almost summer weather was experienced, while northern Michigan shivered and huddled about the home fires on account of the extreme cold. A Petoskey man, just returned from Chicago, reports that during the middle of last week the weather was so warm there that a light overcoat was uncomfortable.

Notes on the Storm
If it takes a man a half a day to shovel from his second story window to the street, how long will it take 60 men to shovel out the Pere Marquette railway system?

Local fishermen report that on Thursday and Friday of last week practically every sea gull disappeared and did not return in any number until the first of this week. No one seems to know where they went, but evidently the storm was too much for them.

We wonder how Andrew-Creamer would look perched in his summer togs on the Inn veranda these days?

Sheriff Geo. Weaver reports considerable trouble with his air ship. Difficulty in making a landing here, we suppose, was the chief reason for its non-arrival. Ask Geo. about it.

Col. Hamilton says he took a white fish out of Pine Lake one stormy day last week. Jud Hardy wasn't looking when he took it.

Hundreds of photographs were taken Sunday, the huge snow drifts being of such extraordinary size, and shape that the views will give people outside a general idea of the effects of the storm.

Lou Moon has been using both sides of the film the past seven days.

The most exciting event that has taken place for the past week was the arrival of a caterpillar tractor from Boyne City Monday evening. This slow moving machine wallowed through the drifts with difficulty.

Snow drifted in at the Pere Marquette station from the swimming pool to the freight house to the depth of from three to six feet.

The blockade didn't make Sam Rose look old. His teeth just dropped out. Seems to us that might have been arranged a little different.

Geik said he'd make one of these ward elections mighty close.

Shoveling snow from the roofs has been the chief occupation for the past few days. This precaution has undoubtedly saved several roofs from caving in.

Bro. Oldham called up and asked if anyone could tell where all this snow came from. We told him it came from the water.

No shortage in fuel or food so far. Local bakers are experiencing a wonderful increase in business. No outside bread being shipped in.

Mail order houses have sustained a severe financial loss on account of the storm. No orders in or out for over a week.

R. F. D. carriers have had their troubles for the past week. Drifts from six to twelve feet across the roads have made the making of their daily trips impossible.

The snow around Bert Mason's store makes his long white apron look like a polka-dot.

How'd you like the walking last Thursday and Friday. Four blocks of travel was equal to a mile under ordinary conditions. You went ahead three feet and slipped back two.

These "Polar Pie" and Eskimo Ice signs hanging about town look about as appropriate to us as a hot water bottle in August.

Haven't overlooked anything—for or against that candidate for office, have you? Qualifications of candidates and accompanying pre-election thrillers have furnished a vast amount of amusement during the present blockade. Save a little for the April election.

What's the need of a postoffice anyway.

Charlevoix has been in luck in more ways than one. No interruption in electric service—plenty of juice and water. Telephone communication with your neighbors the best ever. The precaution you have had to take was not to call too early in the morning.

Down at Fred Cartier's political emporium somebody asked about the trains. Fred said, "never mind the trains, who's going to be elected."

No new arrivals at the county jail the past week. Must be the supply of "Hootch" is exhausted.

We understand several of our county officials and their helpers have developed a strong liking for horehound candy. "Nuff said."

Bob Sloan says his prize winning Holstein-Friesian gentleman cow is growing a second growth of hair. And some people predicted an open winter.

We have been informed that several of our leading citizens have developed chronic ear trouble—prob-

ROOF BUCKLES UNDER WEIGHT OF SNOW

Serious Damage Reported From Snow on Resort Grounds

According to early reports, but two buildings in Charlevoix suffered serious damage from the recent storm, and it is significant that both buildings had comparatively flat roofs.

A roof covering one of the east group of boat houses on the bayou buckled under the weight of snow and as a result the entire building will have to be practically reconstructed, according to Warden W. H. Miller of the Charlevoix Summer Home association.

The new Chicago Club garage, built on the old river last fall, could not withstand the mountain of snow that settled on the roof, the east half of the 140 foot structure collapsing, there of carrying the cement block walls down with it. It is a complete wreck for about 70 feet.

Fire Destroys House

Fire Tuesday morning practically destroyed the small one story house occupied by James Clement and wife, on the Norwood road south of the city. Before the fire department could arrive on the scene, the house was a mass of flames. Few of the contents were saved, and the people, who are Indians, are in almost destitute circumstances.

CHARLEVOIX AGAIN IN TOUCH WITH WORLD

After Being Without Train Service For Ten Days—Spring Thaw Has Started.

Daily train service was resumed over the Pere Marquette railway line on Friday last, the first train to arrive reaching Charlevoix at 4:06 Friday afternoon. Just before noon Friday the big Russel snow plow, pushed by two engines, passed through the city, scattering the huge drifts right and left, and the track was opened through to Petoskey.

On Thursday of last week over four thousand pounds of mail was taken from the Charlevoix post office to Petoskey by team, and about the same amount was brought back. Post-office employees were busy until late in the evening sorting out the mail, the first to be received since on Wednesday evening of the following week.

A large amount of mail was received on the train which arrived Friday afternoon, and on each succeeding train during the balance of the week.

Express shipments did not commence to arrive in any quantity until the first of the week, when it came in truck loads. Freight began to arrive Saturday, but the bulk reached the city Monday and Tuesday.

Northern Michigan weather took a sudden turn Saturday and on Sunday and Monday was quite warm, which resulted in the snow rapidly melting. Tuesday and Wednesday was colder but indications are with in the next eight or ten days the snow will entirely disappear.

Thus the nine day blockade will be a matter to be referred to in years to come as the worst storm, and railroad tie up in the history of northern Michigan.

FIREMEN PLAN ANOTHER DANCE

Friday Evening, March 17, Will Be Fittingly Observed

On Friday, March 17, St. Patrick's Day, Charlevoix firemen will hold another one of their successful dancing parties in the Bank hall.

The usual good music and enjoyable evening is promised to all those who attend, and without doubt the hall will be filled to capacity.

Charlevoix firemen are using the proceeds of these dancing parties and other social functions to follow, to apply on the purchase price of the new siren fire alarm whistle. The cause is a good one and is deserving of the support of every citizen of Charlevoix. By a ticket whether you attend or not.

Progressive Pedro was played, Mrs. Emerson Hull winning the ladies prize and Henry Block the first men's prize. Following the awarding of gifts a pot-luck supper was served to thirty guests.

FIRST HARBINGERS OF SPRING HAVE MAKE APPEARANCE

Despite the high drifts of snow and the ice-bound shores of Lake Michigan and Little Traverse Bay, the harbingers of spring have arrived. Saturday and Sunday a number of crows visited Charlevoix and were seen in the woods near the Belvedere and in the city park.

A blue jay was seen near the Belvedere station, also one in the park Sunday, and Frank Matchett, south of the city, reports that on Thursday of last week he saw three robins in the orchard at the Armstrong farm. Frank says this is the Gospel truth, and it can be verified by other witnesses.

The small boy, with his pockets bulging with marbles, has been enjoying this early spring pastime despite the heavy snow and slush, for over a week.

Spring is on her way, and unless a cold spell sets in the heavy snow will be about gone before the week end.

STATE ENFORCES NEW SEWAGE LAW

Cities To Be Ordered To Take Sewage
Out of Rivers and Lakes

Charlevoix is much interested in proceedings at Owosso in which the state authorities are seeking to force that city to provide some other means of caring for its sewage other than dumping it into the river.

An Owosso news item says: "The state departments of health and conservation will insist that all Michigan cities, in which the waters of rivers and lakes are being polluted by dumping of harmful matter into the water, take steps at once to remedy the condition. This was made plain at the conclusion of John Doe proceedings here, when Dr. Ernest F. Badger, of the health department, declared that the state would enforce the law enacted in 1921, and would exact from all cities, assurances that sewer construction programs would be initiated at once. It will be necessary for Owosso to spend several hundred thousand dollars to take its sewage out of the river."

PRESENT SYSTEM RADICALLY WRONG

STATE'S METHOD OF PLANTING
FRY A SHAMEFUL WASTE

Brook Trout Fry Planted in High Waters of March and April Suffer 95 Per Cent Loss.

Members of the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club have been requested by the resident manager of the state fish hatchery at Oden, to arrange for the planting of some thirty cans of brook trout fry. We have also been told that if we want these fish that immediate steps must be taken to care of them.

We believe the state's method of distributing fish fry in this section is wrong. Cans of fry sent here in March and early April, when streams are flooded, ice floating in the water and roads almost impassable so that it is impossible to transport fish to places where they should be planted, we say, is a shameful waste of good trout fry, and we firmly believe that 95 per cent of fry planted when the streams are in the condition they are at the present time are lost.

It is to be regretted that these matters of game and fish conservation are subject to criticism. But the fact nevertheless remains that trout fry sent out at this time of the year are almost a total loss, and do not serve the best interests for which they are interested—the restocking of our lakes and streams, which are sadly depleted.

"Trout are growing scarcer every year." This is a remark heard very frequently. Why is fishing getting poorer every year?

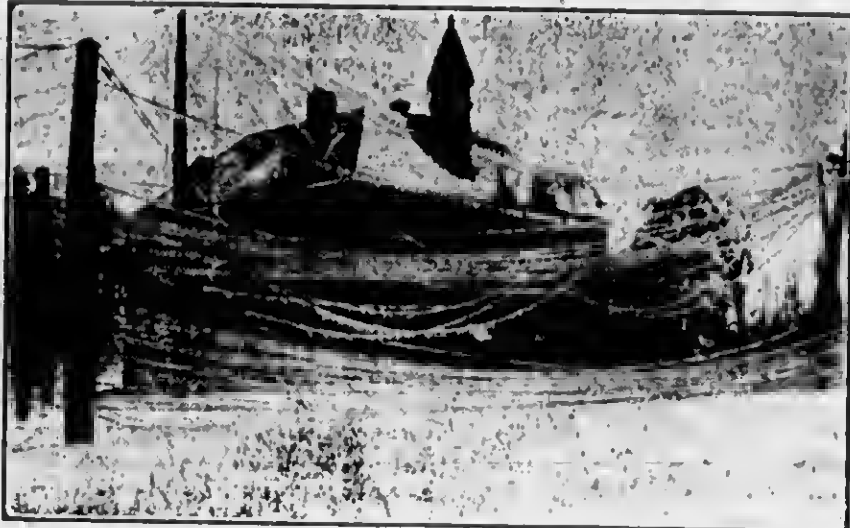

First—There is a new crop of anglers turned out every year more fishermen. Second—As the timber is cut along the streams the sun has the chance to get busy and cause the waters to become warm, and a trout does not thrive in warm water; consequently they work down stream and finally land in Pine Lake, or Lake Michigan. Third—It has been the experience of every state that as the country settles up with farmers and shacks trout fishing gets poorer; some even go to say they fish the year around.

The fourth reason we have to offer for the fast disappearance of our trout is the automobile, and probably this is the greatest menace the trout has. A few years ago it was practically impossible to fish many miles from town, but Henry Ford has put a crimp in those conditions. We do not think it any hardship at all to get up at 4:00 o'clock, drive fifty miles or more, fish all day, and get home early in the evening.

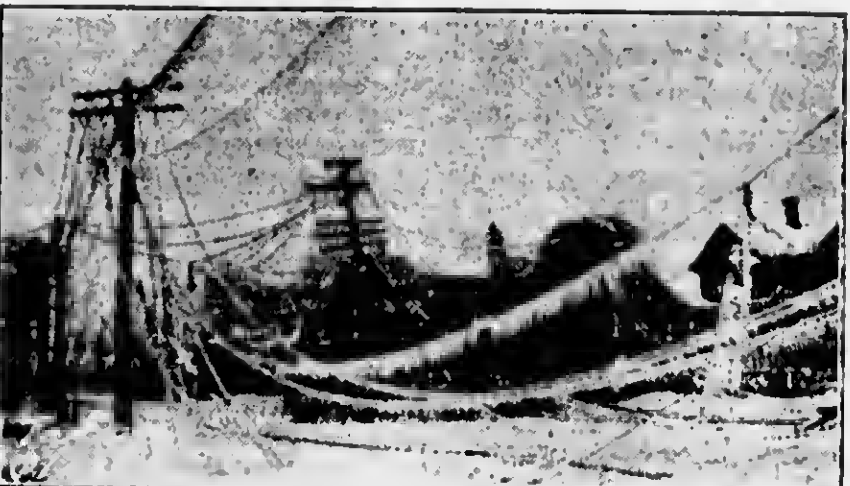

What is the remedy? More fish hatcheries, and what is more important, a more efficient plan of planting fish. If you were a farmer you would not plant immature seed, and yet that is exactly what the state is asking us to do year after year. Their excuse is that they must get the fish out as soon as possible, regardless of whether they will live, if planted during the high water period, or not.

The writer believes that not five per cent of the trout fry planted in this section under the present system survive. Trout fry dumped in ice cold water in the middle of March, during the spring freshets, when the water goes over the banks and leaves the helpless little trout stranded, do not stand much of a chance. And we have planted hundreds of cans and have watched the results closely.

The United States government fry we get along in May are about an inch long, and lively as a cricket. These are planted after the water goes down and is warmer, and they live.

Charlevoix wants all the trout fry obtainable for her streams, but we do not want them at this time of the year, when it is impossible to properly take care of them.

CHARLEVOIX MEN ATTEND AUTO SHOW

Party Forced to Remain in Grand Rapids on Account of Storm

Among the northern Michigan visitors to the Grand Rapids Auto Show and incidentally storm bound victims for several days following were: Benj. Brown, Wm. E. Driggett, Sr., Henry B. Wood, Wm. Ives of Charlevoix; Alfred and Lyman Brown of Petoskey; Charles Strehl of East Jordan.

They were able to attend an automobile show that surpassed anything held before in western Michigan. The Overland dealers of the crowd were royally entertained at a banquet given at the Pantlind hotel by the Grand Rapids Overland Co., to the outside visitors. Here the selling problem for the coming year was discussed and condition studied.

On another evening of their Grand Rapids visit they were dined at the Elks' temple by the Tiesch Auto Supply Co. Lee R. Bierce, secretary of the Grand Rapids Chamber of Commerce, and President Schott of the Amazon Tire & Rubber Co., Akron, Ohio, were the outstanding speakers of the evening. They discussed thoroughly business conditions in western and northern Michigan.

The party was forced to remain in Grand Rapids several days because of the storm which caused the suspensions of all transportation.

"TUBBY" GETTING A FLYING START

Now Receiving Special Coaching
From Veteran Joe Wood

Frank Tubbs seems to be getting away to a flying start with the Cleveland Indians. While the weather has been very bad since the Speaker crew arrived in Texas, what little the rookie hurlers have been able to show indoors has been satisfactory, according to Cleveland papers.

Tubby is receiving special coaching from Joe Wood, in charge of the embryo pill servers. It is probable that in next week's Courier a report of Tubby's first box work will be printed.

Gordon Parker mailed a letter to Tubby Monday, the address containing three printed words: Frank, Dallas, Texas. Pen sketches of a couple of tubs, heads of Grover Cleveland and an Indian chief followed in time by a baseball and a ball club completed the address.

"It'll arrive," said the artist confidently.

TOURIST AND RESORT TRAFFIC

BROUGHT $100,000.000 TO MICHIGAN LAST YEAR

Effort to Double Traffic Will be Talked Over at Coming Meeting at Grand Rapids

How can more dollars be brought into Western Michigan and be planted in the pockets of farmers, business men, and residents in general?

That is the big question to be considered at the annual meetings of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association and the Western Michigan Development Bureau called Wednesday, March 29, at Grand Rapids. Accompanying the annual meetings will be an open conference at which all persons with ideas for the promotion of the state's tourist and resort business and for the realization of greater returns on this section's natural resources will be given a hearing.

Federal statistics show that the tourist and resort traffic brought $100,000,000 to Michigan last year, the bulk of this huge sum being spent in Western Michigan. Those who have studied the situation, and who have observed the results of organized effort in other prominent tourists section of America and Europe are certain that like efforts here can increase Michigan's annual tourist and resort business to at least $250,000,000 within the next few years. It is believed that this is the right time to go after this increased business in a determined way.

Michigan roads have reached such a stage of development that automobilists can tour the greater part of the state as easily as they can travel the paved streets of a city. The people of the state are thus in a splendid position to begin to realize on the big investment they have made in highway improvements.

It is realized that Michigan cannot gather its proper share of tourist traffic dollars unless it goes after them. Ways and means will be considered to turn as many of these dollars as possible toward Michigan instead of letting them be lured away to other resort regions by more attractive advertising of lesser charms.

Special problems in regard to promoting agriculture and the settlement of productive idle lands are also demanding attention. Western Michigan has lost rural population during the last few years. This loss and methods of turning the ebb tide into a flowing tide will be given serious attention by the directors of the Western Michigan Development Bureau.

Various notables will be in attendance at the annual meetings and an open conference, including Hon. Edwin F. Sweet, former assistant Secretary of Commerce.

Netted Over $150 Dollars

The carnival held in the I. O. O. F. hall Tuesday afternoon and evening by the Robekahs, netted the order something over $150. The hall was crowded both afternoon and evening, and dancing formed a larger part of the evening's entertainment. Everything offered for sale was disposed of and the carnival was a great success.

The Priscilla circle of the Congregational church will hold a rummage and apron sale, Saturday, March 11, adv. 1011.

DAIRY GIVEN TO MUSEUM

MACKINAC ISLAND GETS PRICE-LESS RECORD

Gift Constitutes Collection of Silverware and Diary of Rev.
Fr. Pierre.

The following taken from the Catholic Vigil of recent date will be of great interest to many Charlevoix people, especially as the gift is made by one of our well known citizens:

"The Mackinac Island state park museum has added to its collection the silverware and the diary of the Rev. Father Pierre, the first Jesuit missionary to become a permanent resident of this section. The gift is made by Mrs. Brayton Saltonstall of Charlevoix, daughter of George W. Bell, the Cheboygan attorney, who executed Father Pierre's will. The pioneer priest lies buried in Calvary cemetery, Cheboygan, and many tourists make a pilgrimage to his grave.

"Father Pierre, immortalized by Constance Fennimore Woolson in 'Anne,' her story of the early days of Mackinac, was in charge of the mission at Mackinac in the days of John Jacob Astor's fur trading operations there. In his canoe in the summer and with a dog team in the winter, he traversed the region. His headquarters in Les Cheneaux Islands are still pointed out to tourists.

"He came direct from France, highly educated, cultured and possessed of considerable wealth. His diary, written on the margins of newspapers and scraps of paper, for stationery was scarce in this region in those days, was translated by Saltonstall. It gives a picturesque account of his arrival in New York City and his experiences at the Astor house, a quaint village lodging house, where, he states, they used two-tined forks and table manners were atrocious. The silverware, including knives and forks, and the diary were among the things left in the care of Mrs. Saltonstall's father at the time of Father Pierre's death."

CITY TO HAVE NEW SERVICE STATION

Brown and Wallace Purchase Oscar Mason Property

Charlevoix will soon have a modern oil service station the plans of Benj. Brown and William H. Wallace mature. These gentlemen have purchased the Oscar Mason property, corner Bridge street and Belvedere avenue, and within the next few days will start excavating for the new service.

The lots purchased is 64x82 feet and after excavation a heavy retaining wall will be erected on the east side. The station will be 24x32 feet, the office, rest room and storage room 12x24 feet. A double drive will be provided for, entrance from either street.

The equipment will be modern in every respect, and the latest Bowser pumps installed. Storage tanks will be provided both at the railroad siding and at the station to the capacity of many thousand gallons of gas.

The material used for the building will be pressed brick, the projecting roof covering a space equal to that necessary to cover cars while obtaining oil.

While not as yet fully decided as the kind of oil to be sold, these gentlemen stated that at the present time they favored Sinclair products. Work will be commenced as soon as the snow is off the ground, and rushed to completion.

C. A. C. LUNCHEON AT 6:30 FRIDAY

A big attendance is expected at the Charlevoix Association of Commerce dinner at 6:30 Friday evening in the Masonic Temple, at which time several matters of local interest as well as information on the three amendments to be voted on the April 3 election will be discussed.

Several committees are expected to report on their work, and possibly some of these reports will be of more than usual interest.

The ladies of the O. E. S. will serve a fish supper, which should in itself draw more than the usual number. Make it a point to be there, as the topics to be discussed will interest you, not only as a citizen but a tax payer.

SALADS AND SALAD DRESSINGS

Bananas are always in the market and make a most acceptable salad if one is fond of the fruit.

Banana Salad.—Take one cupful of thick cream, three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, one-half teaspoonful of paprika and a teaspoonful of powdered sugar. Whip the cream, add the lemon juice gradually. Place the bananas on lettuce and serve with the dressing poured over them.

Blackstone Dressing.—Take four tablespoonfuls each of mayonnaise and whipped cream, two tablespoonfuls each of chili sauce, tomato catsup and vinegar. Boil for five minutes and add if desired.

Ginger Ale Salad.—Soften one-fourth of a package of gelatin in one-fourth of a cupful of cold water and let it dissolve in a dish of hot water; add a grating of lemon rind and one and one-fourth cups of ginger ale. Turn into small molds to chill and set. Serve very cold on heart leaves of lettuce with either French or mayonnaise dressing, to a cup of which is added three tablespoonfuls or more of cocktail sauce.

Cheese Jelly Salad.—Mix one-half cupful of grated cheese with a cupful of whipped cream, season to taste with salt and pepper and add one tablespoonful of gelatin dissolved in a scant cupful of water. Mold in large or small molds. When the jelly begins to harden, cover with grated cheese. Serve with French dressing to which grated cheese has been added. Tomatoes stuffed with cream cheese jelly and served on lettuce with French dressing are savory and quickly prepared.

Tomato Salad.—Cut fresh tomatoes, peeled, into eighths, without separating the sections. Sprinkle with pearl onions and French dressing and chopped green pepper.

Our definite, specific plan assures you of many prospects and sales.

More Hupmobiles in 1922

But the widespread reputation of the Hupmobile as a really fine car at a low price—$1,250 f. o. b. factory—created an insistent demand in every city, town and countryside.

Greatly increased production now enables us, for the first time, to supply this demand.

You are invited to help us do this.

You will have the advantage of dealing with one of the largest motor car distributors in Michigan, with a very liberal policy. Our discount rate is much more liberal than that ordinarily offered.

There is no wood that can excel White Cedar in weather-resisting quality. That's why it is such a wonderful shingle wood. And "Half Century" Shingles are the best White Cedar Shingles because they are made the right thickness and are air cured.

Shingles that are cut too thin or are too hastily seasoned, as is apt to be the case when they are cured under the dry kiln process, are liable to split in nailing and they have a tendency to crack, curl and warp.

"Half Century" Shingles are cut right, cured right and they last as long as their name indicates. And they stain beautifully in any shade. All lumber dealers can supply you. (Look for the trade-mark on every bundle. It's your guarantee of quality.)

CHANCE TO FIND OUT

Just now a belated effort is under way to find out some of the facts about government business and government employment. The Bureau of the Budget has been organized and is in operation under the direction of Charles G. Dawes.

Both houses of congress are working on the problem of reclassification of government positions and salaries. The Veterans' bureau has been organized and has taken over the bureau of war risk insurance, that part of the public health service which had to do with veterans, and all of the work of the federal board for vocational education except that part which had to do with the treatment of persons injured in the industries.

There is also the inquiry being made by the joint committee on the reorganization of the administrative branch of the government of the two houses of congress, of which I have spoken. Walter F. Brown of Ohio is chairman of this committee, representing the senate. Senators Smoot of Utah, Harrison of Mississippi and Wadsworth of New York. The members on the part of the house are, Representatives Reavis of Nebraska, Temple of Pennsylvania and Moore of Virginia.

The job of this joint committee is to "make a survey of the administrative services of the government for the purpose of securing all pertinent facts regarding their powers and duties, their distribution among the several executive departments, and the overlapping and duplication of authority."

In reporting the resolution from the judiciary committee to the house the members were told:

It is a matter of common knowledge that millions of dollars are wasted by the government by the almost endless duplication of activities. There has been no fundamental change in the administrative activities since the organization was devised by Alexander Hamilton, and the result is that activities entirely out of harmony with the functions of departments have grown with the passing years until the government of the United States has become not only the biggest business in the world, but the world's worst managed business.

The purpose of the resolution is to ascertain so far as possible the extent of the overlapping and duplication of activities, with the view that numerous commissions and bureaus may be eliminated and a great saving effected in the governmental expenditures. The committee feels that no more constructive legislation is possible under existing conditions than the legislation proposed by the resolution. With the present condition of the nation's finances and the burdens the people suffer because of excessive taxation, any legislative measure looking to real economy should commend itself to the sympathetic attention of the house, and we feel that the passage of this resolution and the work of the committee which will be done under its authority will result in the saving of millions annually.

It can be predicted with considerable assurance that nothing will come of this proposed voice of discovery unless we, the shareholders in the enterprise, maintain an active, lively, sustained interest in it. One thing is always true of the house of representatives—it is representative. If we breathe warmly upon it, it glows. If we are indifferent it becomes cold. This isn't the first time that a plan has been set in motion to find out something about how the government's business is conducted.

The earliest inquiry into the administrative methods of the executive departments was made by the Cockerill commission in 1887. Six years later, in 1893, a joint commission, of which Representative Dockery was chairman, was appointed to examine the status of the laws organizing the departments. President Roosevelt in 1905 named an interdepartmental committee, of which C. H. Keep, assistant secretary of the treasury, was chairman, to consider department methods. President Taft, in 1910, named a commission on economy and efficiency of which Frederick Cleveland was chairman.

Broadly and generally speaking, nothing came of these enterprises. You and I—commonly and vaguely known as the public—were not interested, and neither was congress. That ended it.

But just now, at this moment, we have the best chance we ever had to find out about our common business and how to improve it and lessen its cost to us. The burden of supporting it is heavier than ever before.

You will perhaps notice all through these articles that the information supplied me about the general facts of government employment and government business are in terms of estimates and approximations. This is one of the defects of government organization. It is so large and so formless, and its parts so unrelated, that exact and precise information about the whole is virtually unobtainable.

It is of the greatest urgency and need that the people shall know about their government, but they will find it difficult to learn until the government knows about itself.

HIRE GOVERNMENT HELP

The civil service commission hires all employees in the classified service of the government. The only thing to be said about the classified service, is that it has not yet been classified. But you shall hear what the civil service commission has to say about hiring help, without comment from me.

There is an utter lack of definitely planned and well-organized employment policy in the government service.

There is need for a centralized employment office with jurisdiction in all matters relating to employment.

The employment methods of the government should be such as to serve for a model for private business.

There is at present no central control over the executive service short of the President. The President is a busy man and cannot concern himself with the details of the executive departments.

The lack of efficiency in government offices has a marked effect on private business.

Definite information concerning the number of federal civil employees in different branches of the service and the amount of the government pay roll are not readily available.

An official register, or blue book, is issued every two years. It is out of date long before it is printed.

A provision of the civil service rules theoretically gives the civil service commission authority to collect and maintain complete personnel statistics.

The labor and expense involved, however, practically prohibit the collection and compilation of reliable statistical data.

In addition to the limits of the commission's authority is the absence of authority to enforce its findings. The commission can make recommendations to the departments and offices and urge their observance, but it cannot enforce them.

Congress passed what is known as the civil service law January 16, 1883. This act created the United States civil service commission. The law was intended to cure in part the evils traceable to the spoils system, which grew out of the four-year tenure of office act of 1829.

During the first 40 years after the organization of our government, administrative practice with regard to the civil service seemed to conform to the intention of the founders. The Constitution fixed the term of no officer in the executive branch of the government except those of the President and vice president. It was the established usage during these first 40 years to permit executive officers, except members of the cabinet, to hold office for an unlimited period during good behavior. The practice was changed in 1829 by the four-year tenure act. The spoils system, as it was officially described as early as 1835, was introduced and extended until it permeated the entire civil service of the country.

The fundamental purpose of this civil service law was to establish, in the parts of the service covered by its provisions, a merit system whereby selection for appointment should be made upon the basis of demonstrated relative fitness, without regard to political, religious, or other such considerations.

The act requires that the rules shall provide, among other things, for open competitive examinations for testing the fitness of applicants for the classified service, the making of appointments from among those passing with highest grades, an apportionment of appointments in the departments at Washington among the states and territories, a period of probation before absolute appointment and the prohibition of the use of official authority to coerce the political action of any person or body.

In 1893, the year in which the civil service law was enacted, 13,924 positions in the civil service were made subject to competition. The entire number of positions in the federal executive civil service on June 30, 1916, was 450,327. At the height of the war expansion there were approximately 1,000,000 men and women employed in the federal executive civil service, about 700,000 of whom held positions subject to competition. On July 31, 1920, the entire number of federal executive civil positions, as nearly as can be estimated, had been reduced to 691,116. Approximately 450,000 of these were subject to competition, or, in other words, in the classified service. The force is still slowly but steadily decreasing.

During the 10 months of our participation in the war the civil service commission gave competitive examinations under the civil service law and rules to slightly less than 1,000,000 persons, and about 400,000 persons with tested qualifications were supplied by the commission to the service. A normal year's business is about 200,000 persons examined and about 50,000 appointed.

SNAP SHOTS OF THE PASSING SHOW

Mrs. Wood B. Highbrow found Mrs. Jerry Fandom (of course these are not their real names) quite hysterical as she ran in to exchange gossip in the kitchen clearing house Monday morning.

"Let me bid for a slice of your joy," suggested Mrs. Highbrow, when she could make herself heard.

"What's it all about?"

"Jerry and the snow. You know it was parked about 7 feet on the porch, and Clint Cooper had to put on creepers to reach the mail box. So I decided to act—please tab the result."

Mrs. Jerry waved a hand imperiously toward the outer world. "Sunday after dinner," continued Mrs. Jerry, "I remarked that a middle-aged man had been around ordering the sidewalks shoveled off, according to city statute 37, if there is such a thing."

"Jerry pricked up his ears and asked me if the man wore an English sport cap and I said he did. Then Jerry got busy. He borrowed a shovel of Lee Smith and started in. He worked a couple of hours and got as far as the street."

"That was Billy Cowan, the new constable, and I wouldn't have him arrest me for a house and lot, Jerry said as he came in. My dear, I ran down cellar to get some fruit and laughed till I cried. Wasn't it rich?"

The famous medal composed of a tin lid of a baking powder can and hay baling wire, won first by Lane Neff and then by John Krichak, will now adorn the manly breast of Vaughan Orvis, who last week sneaked up on a snowy owl that was worried by crows and planted a slug where it would do the most good. This bird was the largest of the three, measuring 5 1-2 feet from tip to tip.

Charlevoix's fire department has a lucky horseshoe hidden somewhere, and the little good luck took compassion on Charlevoix during the recent blizzard, for but one alarm was turned in during the blockade. The general situation finds more fires during storms than at any other time. Had there been fires, the insurance companies might probably be hard hit for with the streets impassable to motor trucks, it is said the teams which were to be used in emergencies could have done little better.

Miss Peggy Johnson rises to explain that the aluminum boiler she won at the Firemen's Ball did not go into a hope chest, "but into an old maid's chest, sir." We like to be scolded like that.

Little Julia Glados called down through the radiator in this wise: "Mamma, can I have some bread and butter?"

"I should say not—go back to bed."

"I've already had it," laughed Julia, with the assurance of an only child.

AT THE MOVIES

Wallace Reid comes to the Palace theatre next Tuesday in another big villle outdoor role—that of a railroad construction engineer in a mountain division. The picture is "The Love Special," an adaptation of the railroad story, "The Daughter of a Magnate," written by Frank H. Spearman. The supporting company headed by Agnes Ayres is a brilliant one. Will be shown for the benefit of Senior class of the high school.

A new food.

Smiles from your family. Smiles from your pocketbook.

RECENTLY a noted foreign writer paid this high compliment to American women. He said, in effect: "American women are the quickest in the world to adopt new worthy ideas. Their eyes and minds are ever wide open on any subject; social relations, civic improvement, national and international politics."

Our writer should have added that American women are especially quick to adopt any new, worthy food idea. For American women do lead the world in their intelligent reception of food betterments.

The women of Michigan are furnishing an outstanding example of this characteristic. Only a few months ago they were introduced to Brednut, the new spread for bread. Such a hearty welcome did they give this wholesome food that it was hard to keep up with orders.

Made from pasteurized milk and rich tropical nuts

Can you imagine a more delightful combination than this: pasteurized milk blended with rich tropical nuts—nuts brought from luxuriant far off islands?

Husbands comment on Brednut as a delicious new addition to the family table—a welcome new subtraction from the family expense.

Brednut is made under careful supervision; made in rooms of spotless white cleanliness. Brednut comes to you fresh from these perfect surroundings—uncolored—a pure white. With wholesome vegetable material which your grocer gives you, you can color your Brednut to a rich golden yellow.

its adoption in the various states, profess to find comfort in President Harding's speech at the League of Republican Clubs. Many of them are encouraged to think that the president is ready to lead the way back to the discarded system of making nominations in party conventions for all public offices.

Reports of the speech carried in the news dispatches however, seem to show that enemies of the direct primary system have done too much reading between the lines. According to those reports the president was talking only of national conventions and said nothing about direct primaries. It is true of course, that in the presidential primaries of 1920
Mr. Harding was distanced by his competitors and that his nominations came from the independent action of the delegates in convention assembled, delegates who in most cases had been instructed in the primaries to support other candidates. But it is reasonable to think that the president's speech was levelled only at those republicans in congress who, rebelling against caucus notion have supported or opposed legislation by the power of a bipartisan "bloc" despite the protests of republican leaders.

The president is quoted as saying in his speech: "I would rather have men appeal for popular support on the declaration of a responsible convention than on the appeal of a man to his individual locality. I would rather trust the declaration of a party in a national convention expressing the conscience of its membership than the ephemeral whims of the passing moment. There is no discernible declaration against direct primaries in these words. The president said again: "I believe in the collective judgment and vision of the convention. I believe in the dictum of the party that aims to serve."

What, then, is the party? It is the whole body of the voters who belong to it. The convention is a necessity in making presidential nominations, and the convention acts in the light of all conditions, including those disclosed in the preferential voting by the party members.

The objections raised against direct primaries for the nomination of party candidates in national state and local elections are well known.

Some of them are serious objections.
But they are based almost exclusivly upon the unresponsiveness of vast numbers of party members.
The cure is, of course, to arouse party members to their responsibility, their duty and their privilege in making direct choice of party candidates. First, however, the politicians who cry out against the ill results of the direct primary ought to unite in action that would speedily deliver the public from those ill results, due mainly to the indifference of party voters.

Reduction by law or by constitutional amendment or both of elective officers to those holding the few important and responsible executive positions, these officers being authorized to fill the other positions by appointment, would make the task of choosing candidates by direct primary at once simple and attractive to party voters. The politicians however, will not consent to this rational action because they do not want simplified government. They want it to be as complex as possible in order that the unraveling of its complexities may give unfailing occupation to them as political experts.

The direct primary is a powerful liberating instrument in the hands of an intelligent self-governing people.
Employed as it is, however, upon a poor refractory medium -- governmental forms purposely made as opaque and confusing as a Scotch mist--its results leave much to be desired.

COURT RULES

HIP POCKET IS MAN'S "CASTLE"

The theory that a man's hip pocket in his castle received fresh impetus from a decision of the supreme court Wednesday, declaring that a man cannot be convicted by the use of evidence obtained from his person by the police unless a formal arrest has been made.

The opinion is in the case of John Margelis, of Detroit. Two plain clothes members of the police force entered the place where he was employed and asked for a drink. The employer sent Margelis upstairs for liquor. While he was absent the proprietor was arrested. One of the policemen met Margelis as he came down stairs, grabbed him and in the ensuing tussle, a half pint bottle of whiskey fell from his pocket.

Although no search warrant had been issued, the policemen searched the premises and found a gallon of liquor. The proprietor was held but later released owing to the fact that the evidence against him had been obtained without a search warrant.

Margelis was convicted on the theory that he was under arrest when the half pint of whiskey fell from his pocket. In an unanimous opinion the courts finds that Mr.
Margelis, "when seized by the officer was not advised that he was under arrest. There was neither a present intention to arrest, nor submission to."

THE VEXING PROBLEM OF A PURE WATER SUPPLY

Charlevoix as Well as All Leading Michigan Cities, is Facing the Same Problem

Springs, Creeks and Shallow Wells
The rainfall being manifestly the source of all water supply, whether caught as it flows over the surface or first allowed to percolate into the ground to furnish water for wells and springs. It is desirable to commence the discussion of the quantity available from the different sources with a study of rainfall.

The amount of rainfall is expressed in inches of depths upon a horizontal surface, snowfall being reduced to its equivalent amount of rainfall. This varies from almost nothing in the western deserts to one hundred inches per year on the northern Pacific slope, and is about thirty five inches per year in Northern Michigan. A rainfall of two inches per hour is considered, very heavy and only four such rains have been recorded in ten years in this state. Only one storm has been reported having a rainfall of over five inches in a single day in Michigan the rains of over forty inches per day have occurred in the tropic. It is estimated that there is an annual evaporation from vegetation of about 25 inches per year in the Upper Great Lakes region. Vegetation increases evaporation and retards percolation.

Percolating waters that escape beyond the reach of vegetation must, in obedience to the law of gravitation, pass downward until they reach an impervious layer of some sort. The immediate impervious stratum is the tapped at a lower level an artesian or ceded it and which has in the past ages filled every pore and crevice of the earth's crust to a certain level where the flow laterally just equals the additions from percolation. The accumulation of water which thus exists in the ground is called ground water, and its surface is the ground water level or the water table.

When a well is dug the water is reached at ground water level. The water surface of a stream or lake corresponds to the adjacent ground water surface else the water would leave the stream and sink into the soil. Ground water percolating down a hill side may become imprisoned beneath an impervious strata of clay or stone, when such supplies are tapped at a lower level an artesian or flowing well results.

Open sands and gravels permit ready flow and offer storage space for ground waters. The natural flow may be very slow as a foot or less per hour. The velocity may be determined by sinking two pipes, putting salt into one, and noting by chemical test or electrical conductivity when the salt reaches the other.

A surface spring may then be considered as the out-cropping of the ground water level and differs in no way from a well tapping the same water supply. Water obtained from a creek flowing from springs likewise contains the same water.

Where water is to be obtained from a creek or spring sanitary precaution should be taken. We read of the clear brooks running thru our Northern woods and we often drink from them in spite of the fact that we have seen dead fish in the water and dead porcupines on the bank. The water of a small resort near Oden showed gross contamination, it came directly from a spring high up on a hill, every one felt assured that some mistake had been made but a dead animal was found beside the spring. Such supplies should be piped, and their source enclosed to prevent intruders.

As water is drawn from a well the surface of the ground water is lowered and the surrounding water flows toward the well until an equilibrium is established. Where large amounts of water are drawn the so-called circle of influence widens and if the volume is great enough there is danger, due to entrance velocity, of drawing in the sand and fine material which may seal up the well and destroy its usefulness.

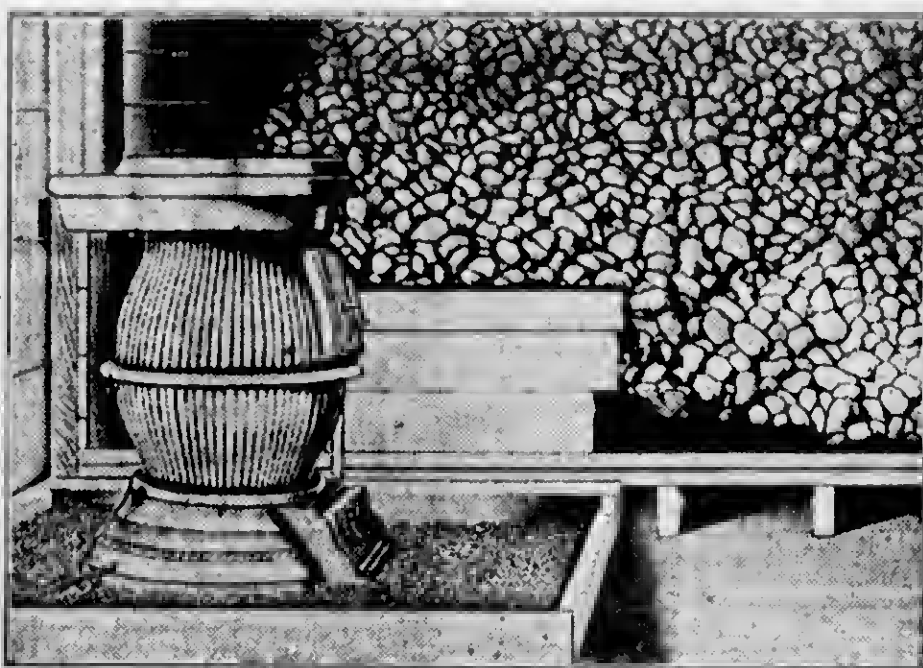

As the circle of influence widens the danger of contamination increases and for this reason sewers within a radius of 600 feet of a public water supply are required to be cast iron with lead joints. The diameter of a well is small compared with the diameter of its circle of influence so that the only advantages of a well of large diameter are that it forms a small reservoir and that the water entering the well flowing slowly is not apt to carry sand which may seal the well, interfere with the pumps, clog pipe lines, or settle in reservoirs. The state has taken great precautions to offer instructions relative to the proper construction and care of private well supplies to prevent their contamination. (See Paper, A-17 Contamination of Wells, December 1921, Mich. Dept Health.)

LINING AND HEATING CARS TO PROTECT POTATOES IN WINTER

False floor stringers correctly built in box car for protection of potatoes from cold. Circulation is not blocked, as would be the case if stringers were run across the car instead of lengthwise.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Warm air weighs less than cool air—and here lies the basic principle of properly heating box cars in winter to protect potato shipments against frosts that nip into the farmer's profits as well as into the potatoes. Next to providing heat, the matter of getting it to circulate so that it reaches practically all the potatoes in the car is of greatest importance.

The directions for preparing a box car for potato shipments given here, with are in accord with recommendations of the United States Department of Agriculture, and apply to winter shipments of sweet potatoes destined for northern points, as well as to the white variety.

Subtle Lining is Important.

A stove will warm enough air to protect a car of potatoes from freezing even in severe weather, providing the car lining is built and kept in such a condition that the warm air can get down to the floor and sides where it is needed. To accomplish this a complete air passage must be formed entirely around the load.

When potatoes are loaded in bulk, it is necessary to construct what are in effect two bins, one on either side of the central area where the stove is placed, if the shipment is likely to pass through severe weather. In many instances, of course, it is entirely safe to ship without artificial heat in the car.

Before constructing the bins, the walls and ceiling of the car itself must be covered with building paper. Following this a false floor is laid on supports running lengthwise, thereby creating air channels four to six inches deep, extending beneath the false floor from the center of the car to either end where they connect with vertical air passages formed by false walls built four to six inches from the car ends. Likewise, false walls are built a few inches from the sides and a false door is erected at one side for a stovepipe to go through.

Bulkheads are put across the car at either side of the door to form a well for the stove. These walls, as well as the center bulkheads, rise well toward the ceiling. The bins are lined with paper, the same as the car walls. The false floor supports permit the cool air to settle below the false floor and to move toward the base of the stove, where it rises as it is heated and circulates toward the ends of the car, between the load and the ceiling.

A rough estimate of the lumber and paper required to line an 8 by 3½ by 36-foot car, with doors 5 feet wide, is as follows:

13 pieces 2 by 4 inches by 14 feet.
8 pieces 2 by 6 inches by 16 feet.
1,300 square feet of 1-inch lumber, 16 feet.
2,300 square feet of building paper.

The 13 2-by-4s should be sawed in half, making 26 pieces 7 feet long. Six inches should be sawed off the length of each of the eight 2-by-6 pieces. Enough of the 16-foot boards should be sawed into 8-foot lengths to make a total width of 57 feet of 8-foot boards and other of these boards sawed into 6-foot lengths to make a total width of 4 feet. This will leave a few 4-foot lengths. One foot should be sawed off the remaining 16-foot boards, leaving them 15 feet long.

This lumber is all that is required by an experienced loader to completely equip a car with false walls and bulkheads. Detailed directions for putting up the lining, easily understood, are contained in Farmers' Bulletin 1091 issued by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The shipper is cautioned not to load potatoes so close to the ceiling that they block circulation. There must be a large unobstructed opening for the warm air to pass down to the floor after it has spread the length of the ceiling from the heater. The circulation is slow and labored, and to limit it by piling the sacks so that they extend beyond the false walls causes serious interference. In piling potatoes in sacks on the false floor next to the wall care should be taken to set them a few inches from these partitions, since they are in the region where the frost first becomes effective if the car is not properly heated.

Lined Cars Returned to Shippers.

It is recognized that preparation of the car in the manner indicated involves a considerable initial expense. Usually, however, shippers plan to use both the stove and the lumber for repeated shipments. In Maine cars are equipped substantially in the way described and used by shippers repeatedly. The cars being returned to the starting points free of charge to the shipper.

The general rule west of the Mississippi is to permit the return of linings and stoves by freight free of charge. In other regions the regular freight rate usually is charged. Efforts are being made to have an arrangement, similar to that existing in Maine, applicable throughout the country, and where the car lining and stove are removed it has been recommended that the railroads return them to the shipper at one-half fourth-class rate.

BURY DEAD ANIMALS DEEP IN QUICKLIME

Many Outbreaks of Infectious Diseases Preventable.

Hog Cholera is Most Dreaded Scourge and Jeopardizes Porker Population—Old Metal Wheel Useful as Pyre.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

All farm animals that die from unknown causes should preferably be buried deep in quicklime. Many outbreaks of infectious diseases owe their origin to carcasses which were allowed to decompose in the open pastures or burn lots to which other animals had access. The United States Department of Agriculture advises every farmer who suffers mortally among his live stock from unknown causes to have a competent veterinarian make a post-mortem examination and cremate the remains or bury them deep in quicklime.

Hogs, next to poultry, are usually the most numerous live stock on the average farm, and as hog cholera is the most dreaded scourge which jeopardizes the porker population, it is obligatory that the carcasses of hogs dying from unknown causes should be burned or buried deep in quicklime. An old metal wheel serves as an excellent base for the funeral pyre. The wheel should be raised five or six inches above the ground on three or four stones, so that a fire can be kindled underneath it. The carcass of the dead hog should be placed on this wheel, in order that the carcass will burn readily and thoroughly, it should be slashed deeply with a knife so that the flames may penetrate to the fat and all the carcass burn rapidly.

Where horses or cattle die, so much labor is involved in digging trenches of sufficient size and depth to accommodate them that it is preferable to dig deep a smaller grave and to dismember the carcasses so they will fit in the small space. These graves should be not less than five feet deep and the carcasses should be covered thickly with quicklime, which will soon consume the fleshy portions.

WATER FOR COWS IN WINTER

If Possible It Should Be 15 or 20 Degrees Above Freezing—Steam Boiler Is Handy.

During the winter, when cows are stabled the greater part of the time, they should be watered two or three times a day unless arrangements have been made to keep water before them at all times, says the United States Department of Agriculture, in Farmers' Bulletin 743, "The Feeding of Dairy Cows." The water should if possible be 15 or 20 degrees above freezing, and should be supplied at practically the same temperature every day. When water well above freezing temperature is stored in tanks and piped directly to the cows, there is probably little occasion to warm it. When it stands in a tank on which ice often forms, it usually pays to warm it slightly. This can be done by a tank heater, by live steam or by hot water from a boiler. If a boiler is used for running a separator or for heating water to wash and sterilize utensils, steam from it can readily and cheaply be used to warm the drinking water.

OVERLANDS TAKE ANOTHER DROP

BENJ. BROWN ANNOUNCES NEW PRICES ON CARS

Price of Light Touring Car Now Only $550—Sold a Year Ago For $1,035

A deep reduction in prices of Overland and Willys-Knight cars, was announced Monday by officials of The Willys-Overland Company. The new prices are effective immediately.

The new price of the powerful, easy-riding Overland touring car, which by sheer merit of economy, quality and comfort has attained a dominant place in the light car field, is $550. One year ago, this car sold for $1,035.

This is an additional reduction since the reduction of 42 per cent recorded from September 1920 to September 1921, a total reduction of 47 per cent in a year and a half, the most radical reduction in motor car prices in the history of the automobile industry.

In 1916, the Overland sold for $615, a price that was thought could never be bettered. Today it is $65 lower.

The Willys-Knight touring car is now listed at $1,375 a further reduction of $150 since the startling reduction of 34 per cent made last September, a total reduction of 40 per cent in a year and a half.

These new prices were made possible by remarkable economies in manufacturing methods, the consumption of high-priced material inventories, the practical total elimination of obligations for high-priced materials, the operation of a new, more progressive and more economical marketing plan, and lastly, the hearty co-operation in the plan to build more cars per man each day, by every employee, in the four plants the company operates.

These new prices place Overland and Willys-Knight cars in the front price in their classes. For the past year and a half, the records of these cars have proved their economy, quality, performance and comfort.

The new prices and those of September 1920 follows:

Overland chassis $450 formerly

$885; touring $550 formerly $1,035; roadster $550 formerly $1,035; coupe $850 formerly $1,525; sedan $895 Willys-Knight Roadsters $1,350 formerly $2,300; touring $1,375 formerly $2,300; coupe $1,875 formerly $2,950; sedan $2,095 formerly $3,050; chassis $1,100. All prices are f. o. b. Toledo.

The powerful, easy-riding Overland offers many advantages; economy of operation; triplex springs, insuring easy riding; three speed and reverse selective transmission of heat-treated nickel-alloy steel gears; Timken bearings; all-steel body; baked-enamel finish; spring base of 130 inches as against wheel-base of 100 inches; 34 foot turning radius; 27 brake power motor; electric starter, lights and horn etc.

The Willys-Knight car, built of the highest grade materials, stands apart from the great majority of cars, chiefly because it is motored by the Willys-Knight sleeve-valve engine. This engine has given to the Willys-Knight car the slogan, "Its Motor Improves with Use."

It is because of the sleeve-valves of the Knight type motor that the automobile world in general concedes these seven advantages to this Willys-Knight motor.

First, it improves with use; second, it requires no adjustments; third, it is more powerful; fourth, it is more flexible; fifth, it is silent in operation and remains so; sixth, it is simple, being free from complicated parts; seventh, it is economical.

PROPER DRAINAGE ESSENTIAL

Heavy Application of Manure Will Go Long Way Toward Correcting Alkali Condition.

Drainage is the most important factor in alkaline soils in nearly all cases. Good drainage is an absolute necessity in alkali correction. When drainage is assured, a heavy application of horse manure will go a long way toward correcting the alkali condition. It may be necessary to apply some fertilizer carrying large amounts of potash. Corn is not the best crop to consider in handling alkaline soils, and oats or rye bring better results until the soils are completely brought back to normal conditions.

Some Good in All Humanity.

It is only when we trust people a little that they are able to deceive us; a man must be very bad before he deceives anyone who implicitly believes in him; and a woman, however bad she may be, is incapable of doing it at all.—Excellence.

BOVINE TUBERCULOSIS YIELDS TO ACTIVE TESTING CAMPAIGN

Accrediting a Herd as Free From Tuberculosis Increases Its Value to the Owner and the Community.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

For many years after the agitation regarding bovine tuberculosis began, there were very few people who entertained the hope that it would ultimately be eradicated. Now, after many years of effort, first unsuccessful, but now giving great promise of success, there are many who firmly believe that the time is coming when this scourge of live stock will be conquered.

Tuberculosis May Be Banished.

This change of attitude has been brought about largely through the efforts of the bureau of animal industry of the United States Department of Agriculture, co-operating with the various state officials, which have been so successful that within a period of four years, during which the work has been directed toward ultimate elimination, several thousand herds have been accredited as being free from the disease and a number of sizable areas in different states contain practically no tuberculous cattle. These results have demonstrated conclusively that, if sufficient funds are made available, this menace to human health and to the success of live-stock farming may be done away with in a practical manner.

Tuberculosis of cattle is one of the few farm problems that appeals with almost equal force to city people, for the healthfulness of milk and meat is of vital importance to them. This fact, ought to make it easier to get the support necessary for putting through such a country-wide program against the disease. The cattle resources of the country are of the utmost importance, and measures to reduce the risk of loss represent nothing more than common sense.

Insurance Feature Appeals.

There are more than 63,000,000 head of cattle in the country worth nearly $3,000,000,000. Aside from the health aspect of the problem, the insuring of this vast amount of wealth against loss ought to appeal to all classes of

SOY BEAN GOOD AS ALFALFA

In Feeding Value It Is Superior to Red Clover or Cowpeas—High in Protein.

The chief value of soy-bean hay lies in its high content of digestible protein. In feeding value it is superior to red clover or cowpeas and, as indicated by comparative feeding tests, is equal to alfalfa for milk and butter production. Soy-bean hay makes an excellent winter ration for young cattle, sheep and horses when fed in mixture with other hay or roughage, and has been used to good advantage for hogs. The feeding of soy-bean hay alone is not advisable, because its relatively high protein content may cause digestive disturbances.

TOO MANY POULTRY LOAFERS

Best Plan to Weed Out Nonproducers and Keep Only Good Laying and Breeding Fowls.

One reason some folks complain that "chickens don't pay" is because they compel one or two good hens to support a dozen lazy ones. There are some deadbeats in every flock, just as there are also some excellent laying and breeding hens.

The thing to do is always to weed out the least desirable fowls, then keep only the best ones and keep them well—in a good house, well managed and cared for.

BURGLARS ENTER KLOOSTER STORE

TAKE CASH AND QUANTITY OF JEWELRY

Pry Open Front Door With Bar and Rammer Store—No Clue Found By Officers.

Ellsworth went into the lime-light in an undesirable manner on Wednesday night of last week when burglars entered the Klooster and Son general store here and took a quantity of cash and jewelry.

The parties or parties who rammed the store did so by using some bar or blunt instrument to spring the front doors until they became unlatched and the change was taken from the cash register as well as about one hundred dollars which was in the safe. Several watches and other jewelry were taken from the display case and a bundle of notes amounting to nearly six thousand dollars, which was at first thought taken was discovered in the waste basket on Friday morning.

Mr. Klooster at once notified the County Sheriff as well as Sheriff Weaver and deputy Sheriff Cook and these officers augmented by Prosecutor Hellman of Manelona and a finger print expert from the State Dept. of Public Safety have been on the case since. Several people have so far been questioned, but up until today (Tuesday) no arrests have been made.

Anything to Attract Crowd

A church at Alba, no longer used for religious services, has been turned into a motion picture house, where pictures "of a religious and high moral quality are given." The only doubt in connection with the experiment is whether it may not be necessary occasionally to introduce a modern jazzy sermon to attract crowds to these pictures.

MAKE DEFINITE PLAN OF GARDEN ON PAPER

First Get Exact Dimensions of Available Land.

Ascertain Which Spots Will Be Best to Certain Crops Requiring Sunshine—Run Rows North and South.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
A definite plan for the garden should be drawn on paper before any planting is done, suggest garden specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. First determine the exact dimensions of the available land; then ascertain which parts of the garden will be best adapted to certain crops, especially those that require a large amount of sunshine. Outline the garden plan on paper and sketch in the crops that are to be planted upon each part.

In planning the garden it should be borne in mind that certain crops, such as lettuce, radishes, and early beets, can frequently be grown in the same rows with other crops and be removed before the main crop attains sufficient size to require the entire space. It should also be remembered that carrots, beets, salsify, early turnips, parsnips and all crops of that type may be grown in rows of 12 to 18 inches apart and will occupy a comparatively small amount of space if grouped together.

gether. The taller growing crops, such as pole beans, tomatoes trained to stakes, and sweet corn, should be planted at one side of the garden where they will not shade the smaller crops.

It is generally conceded that the rows should run north and south; however, it is more important to arrange the rows for convenience of cultivation than for exposure to the sunshine.

Due consideration should be given to both companion and succession cropping. By companion cropping, the plan of planting two or more crops together and removing those that mature first is followed. By successive cropping one crop follows another, keeping the land fully occupied all the time. Thus, early cabbage may be followed by celery or late tomatoes; early corn or early Irish potatoes may be followed by turnips, late beans, late beets, or late cabbage. The arrangement of crops, however, depends somewhat upon the locality and length of the season.

Detailed directions for locating and planning gardens are contained in free bulletins of the United States Department of Agriculture, which will be sent upon application to the department.

COST OF MILK PRODUCTION

Dairymen Should Be Interested in Knowing How Much Feed and Labor Are Required.

Dairymen throughout the country should be interested to know how many pounds of grain, hay and silage, and how many hours of labor it takes to produce 100 pounds of milk in the different sections of the United States. The bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, began a series of studies in 1915 on groups of dairy farms to obtain accurate information of this kind.

The results are shown for southeastern Louisiana in department bulletin 955. The figures for northwestern Indiana are contained in department bulletin 585; North Carolina and western Washington in department bulletin 519; and for Vermont in department bulletin 523, which may be purchased from the superintendent of documents, Washington, D. C., at five cents the copy. The various tables are based upon figures obtained during a two-year study, and weighted averages of the records were used whenever they would express the results more accurately. The surveys include also an inventory of dairy buildings, live stock, and equipment used.

1921 BIG YEAR FOR SPORTSMEN

MUCH GAME SECURED DURING SEASON IN MICHIGAN

Estimated Value of Game and Fur Taken is Six Million Dollars
Many Fish Captured.

Michigan sportsmen during 1921 took more than $6,000,000 in fish and game from the state, according to estimates made public by the state conservation department. The figures made public are based on licenses of various kinds issued by the state to sportsmen and reports which are being kept by the department.

The fur bearing animals netted more than $3,000,000 to the trappers during this year, according to the department. The muskrat crop led all with a value of $1,900,000. Skunk skins taken were valued at $400,000; mink, $350,000; coon, $150,000; fox, $150,000; weasels, $30,000; otter, $15,000.

During 1921 there were 215,952 small game hunters and 38,000 deer hunters in the state. About 20,000 deer were killed at a value of $500,000. The rabbit crop led all, 1,250,000 cottontails being killed. Their value was placed at $625,000. Squirrels killed 36,750. The ducks taken totaled 403,000 and had a value of about $400,000. Other birds killed were 120,000 coots, 1,250 geese, 31,000 woodcock, 55,000 plover and 25,000 rails. They all had a conservative value of $1,658,215, the department reports.

Fish caught in the inland waters had a value of $1,275,000 although few of them could, under the law, be offered for sale. The department estimates that 500,000 pounds of brook, rainbow and brown trout were captured during the year at a value of $500,000. The bass taken numbered 750,000, perch and bluegills 800,000, whitley pike 500,000 and sunfish and other rough fish 300,000. These fish were taken by 54,172 nonresident fishermen and 45,328 Michiganders.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH NOTES

Services for Sunday next begin at 10:30 a. m. Sermon by the pastor. Subject, "God's Financial Plan For His Kingdom." The series of sermons on tithing finish with this one. The enrollment has reached sixty-four. We are just thirty short of the number we set out for. This Sunday ought to reach the goal. Already there are marked spiritual results by the consecration. The eleven received into the church Sunday increases our obligations but much and proves the power of God.

Sunday school looks better each week. The Easter offering will be taken in eggs. Every class is exhorted to make a success of this work. The eggs will be presented by each class on Easter Sunday bringing in its basket of eggs, or whatever receptacle used. We will publicly break the eggs and disclose the contents giving due credit to each class. All adults not regular attendants of Sunday School and wanting to get in on the offering can help the boys and girls to fill their eggs.

Read your lesson this week and sufficiently provide yourself with the condition of spiritual life in the time of Amos.

Monthly reports at the official meeting last Monday show considerable increase in membership in attendance and offerings. Our offerings have increased over last year's corresponding months almost fifty dollars a month for the last five months.

Junior League at 3 p. m. Sunday. Parents are requested to be sufficiently interested to have the Juniors present. Plenty of need for good training.

The Senior League at 6 p. m. is full of interest. Subject this week "My Debt to a Good Book" Mrs. Earl Shapton leader. Get There!

Epworth League will give an Irish Social in the lower auditorium on Tuesday night next. The Congregational Christian Endeavor Society and the Baptist Young People's Union are invited. This party is not for the Juniors but for the three societies of young men and young women. Young people of these three churches. Let us all come together for a good social time.

That was a splendid evangelistic service last Sunday night. Large chorus choir and good audience. Fine to see people seeking Christ, and hear such good ringing testimonies. The "after meeting" was full of interest too.

Barnard services Sunday. Sunday school 1 p. m. Preaching 2 p. m. We are interested in you. You will be there to show your interest in us.

Given Home Coming

Irwin VanDusen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orton VanDusen of Norwood township, who arrived home last Thursday for an indefinite stay, after serving the past two years with the U. S. After an evening of music and games, a fine supper was served.

Tree Falls on Lines

Thursday three hour electric current interruption was caused by a farmer falling a tree across the Belaire transmission lines. The length of delay could have been avoided to some extent had the location of the trouble been phoned in as soon as it happened. When accidents of this kind occur, people knowing the trouble and location are requested to get into immediate touch with Superintendent Bridge.

FIRE DESTROYS BAY SHORE CHURCH

Presbyterian Edifice Erected Twenty-Five Years Ago.

The Presbyterian church at Bay Shore was destroyed by fire Sunday forenoon February 26, at 10:30 o'clock, the blaze catching from sparks from the chimney soon after the fire was started for the morning church service and Sunday school. The loss is estimated at more than $5,000.

The blaze was noted soon after it started but no ladders, long enough to reach the roof, could be found. Attention was then turned to saving the furniture and all of this was taken out of the building structure.

The church was erected 25 years ago by Presbyterians in and near Bay Shore. Rev. Mr. Callahan was the pastor at that time, while Joseph Hudson was the contractor. W. S. Sly and E. R. Sly, who resided at Bay Shore at the time, contributed largely toward the church building fund.

Rev. Mr. Alexander, of Alanson, is the present pastor, and Rev. G. A. Weaver, of Petoskey, has been assisting in the service there.

Sunday school and church services were held each Sunday.

The ladies of the M. E. church will have their Easter supper the evening of March 29, in the church dining room.—Adv. 1011.

Twenty-five young people went on the B. Y. P. U. sleigh ride out to Mrs. Hadsells' on the Waller Farm last Tuesday evening. The evening was spent in playing games and partaking of a bounteous pot-luck supper. The least we can say is that those who did not go missed something.

"The Whitest White I Ever Saw"

IN Victoria, Texas, there are three houses in the same block (Mr. Tailor's house, shown above, is one of them) which are painted with Heath & Milligan Best Prepared Paint; and, in the words of the painter himself: "The whitest white I ever saw."

That's because Best Prepared Paint has a high hiding power—you will find that out when you use it. You will also find that you won't have to get so much to go over the surface, and, therefore, fewer hours of labor are required to apply it. That it gives more years of service—looks better all the time than most paints. Best Prepared Paint is the best house paint that Heath & Milligan know how to make, or have ever made after 67 years. It will prove to be the cheapest in the end. If your house needs painting now—don't delay—decay won't wait for paint to get cheaper. $30,000 Fire at Onaway

Fire in the wheel department of the American Wood Rim company, at Onaway, Friday morning, Feb. 24, caused a loss of from $25,000 to $30,000, according to telephone news from Onaway.

Ten thousand completed automobile steering wheels were destroyed. By desperate efforts by firemen and volunteers the other parts of the factory were saved.

No word was received as to the amount of insurance on the destroyed part of the factory or the stock of automobile steering wheels.

Should Be More Careful

Don't Like Cement Walks

An old timer at Traverse City declares he doesn't like the new cement sidewalks. "I like the old wooden ones where you can spit between the cracks and whistle off slivers and things like that." Many of us, too, remember the good old days when we could stub our toes in one crack and run our heads through another.

Offers Novel Proposition

A South Dakota farm owner has offered to rent his farm in a novel manner. He states that he will rent the 160 acres to a tenant on the sole condition that the tenant shall turn over to him one turkey for each acre of land on the farm. Turkeys sold by the land owner during the closing weeks of 1921 brought him from $8 to $10 each, and he figures that he will receive a good rent for his land if the tenant will agree to furnish him in the fall of 1922 one turkey for each acre in the farm. And he believes that by this method, he would be getting the "long end" of the bargain with his tenant.

BOYNE CITY ROD AND GUN CLUB HOLD BANQUET

Upwards 300 Guests Attend, Not All Sportsmen, But They Were There Anyhow

The first annual banquet of the Boyne City Rod and Gun Club was held at the Wolverine Hotel in Boyne City, March 9th, and was attended by upwards of 300 guests from Northern Michigan points. We hesitate to believe that all of these were actual bona fide sportsmen according to the accepted definition of the term, but they were there anyhow. They partook of the full menu from bucktail soup to smudge and apparently absorbed the postprandial generalities and other dope handed out by a galaxy of after-dinner speakers.

F. O. Barden of Boyne City, officiated as toastmaster and handled the situation in fine style and evidently did his best to give everybody a shot at the helpless audience—everybody from Atlanta, Montmorency county to the sea. The assembled multitude contained some songsters here and there, and also some others who would probably be classed as of the non-song variety. Both elements joined in singing everything from "The Gangs all here" to "Adeline." We didn't sing any.

In the midst of this songfest it was discovered that John Yuill of Vanderbilt had horned his way in without a license. He was halted before Justice Smith, pleaded not guilty and tried to pawn off a receipt for Shrine dues as a fishing license. He couldn't get away with this so objected to being tried by a "lower" court. He finally got off with a five dollar fine which Charley Peterson and Frank Shipp whacked up between them.

August Lundeen of Bay City, followed with a talk on topics of his own selection advocating careful attention to fire prevention.

Henry Boehm of Petoskey, was asked to talk about birds and extended an invitation to the big meets to be held later in Petoskey.

Charles Peterson, state warden in charge of fire prevention, spoke on the subject of forest fires and their relation to game and fish. Mr. Peterson made an earnest plea for our forests and their preservation. Charley loves a tree, as he is nearly as big as a tree himself, his words carried force.

Dr. E. R. Van Leuven talked about trap-shooting of which sport he is an enthusiast. They say Doc would actually abandon a fishing trip to go out and peck away at bluebirds.

F. J. Shipp of Gaylord, handled the topic of duck hunting. Shipp hunts 'em all over and admits that this is his favorite sport. He didn't say how he manages to get these birds without freezing to death, but he still continues to be a live one.

G. M. Rouse of Atlanta, with some well considered remarks advising organizations of sportsmen to be alive to questions coming before the people affecting apportionment of representative in the legislature.

A. L. Fitch discussed the buck law for twenty minutes and his views on the subject apparently met with the approval of those present excepting representatives of the State Department. He maintained that a buck law was unnecessary at this time. That there are more deer in Michigan now than twenty-five years ago. He believes that constructive measures looking to the preservation of deer cover and shelter and to prevent their destruction by predatory animals and losses of their food supply should precede restrictive measures such as the one buck law.

"Bill" Pearson of Boyne Falls, followed with some remarks on Present Day Game Laws after taking a shot at Art for consuming so much time. Bill is a fisherman and he doesn't care to spend much time talking about anything else. He would have all the hunters lay up their guns so that the deer may come out where he can watch them as he sits in a boat on the mill-pond fishing. He disapproves any discretionary authority in the Conservation Commission believing that the legislature should pass all the laws and make them hard fast. He didn't say whether from his experience the average legislature is competent to pass suitable game laws.

Attorney Elmer Smith of Atlanta, discussed state parks and his ideas are good. He advocates extension of all state parks for the use and enjoyment of the people.

A. A. Metcalf, superintendent of Boyne City schools, gave a well-prepared talk on Sportsmanship. His ideas exactly coincide with our own in that he believes a sportsman should be a gentleman always, no matter how hard the mosquitos bite or how poor the fishing. That's the truth, and we have tried our mightiest to convince every member of every fishing party we ever belong to, of this fact. The learned professor didn't quite convince us that merely being a gentleman made a sportsman out of a man. We think we know nearly a dozen gentlemen who are hardly within the definition of a Sportsman. Some of them wouldn't know the difference between a fish creel and a ladies handbag, and we don't know that that is any discredit to them. We think we also know some pretty good sportsmen who are not up to the standard as gentlemen. For instance the fellow who will lie in the bunk and let us get up and build the fire and then sit down and eat two-thirds of the bacon we have fried. Just the same we enjoyed the professors flowery way of expressing his ideas, and we sincerely hope that he measures well up to his own standard.

USUAL NUMBER ATTEND C. A. C. MEETING FRIDAY

Amendments to Be Voted on at April 3 Election Explained in Detail—Each Should Carry

The regular monthly meeting of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce, postponed one week on account of inclement weather, was held last Friday at Masonic Temple and was preceded by the usual supper served by ladies of the O. E. S.

President E. B. Ward handled a meeting that threatened at times to run knee-deep into politics, with his usual nice dignity, judgment and quiet precision.

R. L. Lewis spoke in behalf of the Legion Memorial and advocated closer unity. He said the preliminary work of obtaining subscriptions would begin in a short time and urged the people to get back of the movement.

The three amendments to be voted on at the April 3 election were explained in detail by Mayor Proteem G. C. Geneit and City Attorney A. L. Fitch, who gave reasons why they should carry.

Rev. C. W. Long of the Congregational church made a good talk. He expressed himself as willing and anxious to enter into Charlevoix activities and said he would be glad to serve in any capacity.

Secretary P. D. Campbell reported $112.97 balance on hand.

Other talks which enlivened the meeting were made by several, President Ward announcing adjournment at the usual hour.

Changes Made in Interior and Exterior of Property

A new plate glass front has been installed in the store room occupied by Little Will & Son in the I. O. O. F. building, the work being completed the first of the week.

Both were much needed improvements and will not only greatly add to the appearance of the building, but will be appreciated by those who are tenants.

ROOF BLAZE CALLS OUT DEPARTMENT

House Occupied by John H. Bugbee Slightly Damaged

The Charlevoix Fire Department was called to the Al-Vonight property, occupied by John Bugbee at 104 West Huribut avenue, Tuesday noon, fire having been discovered in the roof.

No apparent cause can be ascertained although Fire Chief Marshall is of the opinion that sparks from the chimney was the means of starting the blaze which damaged the entire south side of the roof. The loss was fully covered by insurance.

"TUBBY" IS NOW IN TRAINING

CHARLEVOIX PITCHER OUT TO MAKE GOOD

Writes Charlevoix Friends of Trip to Training Field in Texas—An Early Riser.

Frank Tubbs, trying out with the Cleveland baseball club now in training at Dallas, Texas, writes to a friend in this city about his trip south. Tubby is naturally having some novel experiences. But let him tell it:

"Am feeling fit and ready. Have been cutting loose last couple of days and that old ball sure looked like a pea. Have not used any curve yet. Expect to get a trial soon."

"I joined the bunch at the depot, got my berth number and was all ready for bed when Joe Wood came in and shook hands all around. Of course me being a farmer and used to getting up early I got up some place in Illinois and had to look all over for my shoes and socks and when I found them why the porter was shining them in the smoking room—the shoes and not the socks."

"Hey, boy," says he, "You sure is a early bird?"

"I asked him what time it was, and he said 5:30. Well, I cleaned up and walked through about six more Pullmans to the dining car and had a fine breakfast. And then as I never rode on a Pullman before, wondered where I was going to set during the day. Well, I couldn't believe my eyes when I got back to the car. That porter had taken down all those partitions and put them away somewhere and my seat was all set for me."

"We had a fine trip down and I got pretty well acquainted with a fine bunch of boys. There are 18 pitchers on the staff, the largest number ever taken south by an American League Club."

Tubby is receiving his share of publicity, two fine pictures of him having appeared in the Sunday Cleveland News-Leader.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET

Held in Parlors of Congregational Church Monday Evening

One of the important events of the Congregational church, was the Father and Son Banquet, held in the parlors of the church Monday evening, March 13th.

The rooms were beautifully decorated in wistaria and soft candle light added much to the beauty of the tables where covers were laid for one hundred and thirty-five.

While the guests were being seated, the orchestra rendered a beautiful selection and also at different intervals during the program.

Following the invocation by Rev. C. W. Long, the Mary Brewster Circle served a delicious three course dinner.

Lisle Shanahan presided as toastmaster of the evening and those responding to the various toasts were: Hon. R. L. Lewis, Richard Saltonstall, Forrest Fowler, Rev. C. W. Long and Hon. F. W. Mayne.

After a few witty remarks by the toastmaster the guests adjourned, all voting the banquet a most successful event.

CONDITION OF MICHIGAN CROPS

ABOUT SAME AVERAGE AS PAST YEARS

Wheat Only One Classed As a Strictly Cash Crop—Oats Above Normal.

The stocks of leading grains on the farms of Michigan, on March 1, are somewhat above the average for the same date in past years, but less than they were one year ago except in the case of corn. The corn and wheat crops harvested last year were about equal to those of the previous year, but the production of oats and barley was much less. Of these four crops, wheat is the only one classed as a strictly cash crop in Michigan.

When the yield of oats is normal or above, some eastern and southeastern counties market a portion of the crop. With this exception, very few localities produce any appreciable quantity of corn, oats or barley for shipment. This report is based upon the regular survey made by Herman H. Halladay, State Commissioner of Agriculture, and Verne H. Church, Agricultural Statistician, U. S. Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates, through the regular correspondents of the joint State-Federal Crop Reporting Service.

CORN—It is estimated that one-third of the corn crop went into silos last fall. Of the two-thirds harvested as grain, about 16,383,000 bushels still remain on the farms of the state. This represents 37 per cent of the crop, a higher percentage, with two exceptions, than in any year during the period for which records are available. While the crop has been fed liberally, not as much stock has been on feed this winter; there was a considerable carry-over from the previous year; and nearly all of the crop was well matured and of high feeding value. Very few sections of the state produce more than is consumed locally, and it is estimated that only five per cent of the total crop has been or will be shipped out of the county where grown. The percentage of merchantable quality is 84, as compared with 85 last year.

WHEAT—The percentage of the wheat crop remaining on farms is estimated at 23, five per cent less than last year, and equivalent to 3,237,000 bushels. The stocks are naturally less than usual owing to the necessity on the part of many farmers to sell their holdings to meet taxes, interest and other obligations. It is estimated that 55 per cent of the crop will be shipped out of the county where grown.

OATS—The percentage of the crop still in farmers' granaries is 38, two per cent less than last year. However, owing to the very light crop harvested, this percentage represents only 10, 678,000 bushels whereas the stocks one year ago were 27,086,000. The principal part of the present stocks are in the surplus producing counties, as most of the other sections are buying from outside sources. The large corn crop has greatly relieved the shortage of oats. Only 16 per cent has been or will be shipped from the counties where grown, as compared with a ten-year average of 23 per cent.

BARLEY—The stocks of barley are placed at 1,069,000 bushels, as compared with 1,872,000 bushels one year ago. Very little is ordinarily sold from farms and it is estimated that only 12 per cent will be shipped from the counties where produced.

NEXT DANCE TO BE A MASQUERADE

Masonic Building Committee Prepare For Good Time

The third dance given by the new Masonic house committee was held in Masonic Temple Wednesday night of last week, and while the dancing began promptly and continued till the usual hour, and the floor was well filled, a certain spontaneity was lacking in the music and apparently, to a lesser degree, among the guests. Perhaps this was due to Lent, or perhaps we have had too much ice and snow.

But lookit! Mr. E. A. Nordrum, chairman of the house committee announces that a masquerade dance will be held Thursday night, April 20 at which the Tunessters will again play.

"Nobody will be allowed to pass the door without a card or, failing to bring his card, will be obliged to disclose his identity." That was Mr. Nordrum you heard speaking—officially.

If you expect to attend, please note that the dance is just five weeks off. Most people need much time to decide on a costume, so you had better get busy.

PROPOSE CHANGE IN TROUT LAWS

STATE DEPARTMENT ASKS FOR SPECIAL HEARING

Seeks Change in Number and Size of These Fish to Be Taken From Michigan Streams

Charlevoix trout fishermen are greatly interested in the proposed changes in the Michigan fish laws proposed by the department of conservation, and on which a special hearing of sportsmen has been called for March 27 at Gaylord.

Notice of this meeting has been sent broadcast over Michigan. Definite decision may not be made at this hearing, the department head having power to postpone the meeting should he see fit.

The formal notice of the hearing which is signed by John Baird, director of the department of conservation, recites that petitions have been filed with the department signed by twenty-five representatives of each of the following counties: Wexford, Oscoda, Missaukee, Gladwin, Ogemaw, Oscoda, Crawford, Otsego, Clare, Newaygo, Arenac, Alcona, Montgomery, Emmet, Cheboygan, Lake, Manistee, Mason, Grand Traverse, Leelanau, Benzie, Alpena, Charlevoix, Antrim, Kalkaska, Isosco, Presque Isle and Roscommon.

It is set forth that the signers of these petitions have asked that the time and place for a public hearing be fixed to determine the advisability of regulating the size and manner of taking brook trout in the waters of said counties, as now fixed by law, because of the threatened depletion or extermination of such fish in the streams.

HALF MILLION DOLLAR FIRE

RUINS COVER TWO BLOCKS IN HEART OF THE CITY

Three Lives and Cheboygan's Business District Are Fire's Toll—Will Resume Business

Cheboygan Wednesday afternoon of last week was swept with one of the most disastrous fires of her history which resulted in the death of three persons and a property loss of more than a half million dollars.

The dead include Frank J. Hohler, proprietor of the White House Bakery; George Tobias, age 13, and Peter Leway, age 8, trapped in the bakery when the walls of the four-story Kessler block fell, onto the smaller bakery building. Hohler was formerly a member of the Cheboygan city council.

Aloysius Neelis, another youth, who was trapped in the burning bakery, crawled into the steel oven when the Kessler block roof fell in, and quickly succeeding in crawling out of the debris to safety. The youngster endeavored to drag the body of Hohler to safety but the flames drove him from his task.

The fire started in the Frost and Kessler four-story building on the main street of the city. The cause has not been determined. The blaze spread from this building to those on either side, and leaped across the street to the Gerow block in which was located the first National bank, and the Woolworth five and ten-cent store, completely destroyed these places. Other stores burned, in addition to the telephone exchange, were the Sangster & Riggs drug store, the Gereau & Richards pool room, the Barber Art store and the Masonic temple in the Frost and Kessler block.

Only the aid of Gaylord and Grayling, two nearby cities, saved Cheboygan from being completely wiped out by the flames—Fire fighting apparatus from Wolverine and Vanderbilt also arrived in time to aid in extinguishing the flames.

Miss Jeanette McDonald was rescued by firemen from the third story window ledge of the telephone exchange where she had climbed to elude the flames.

Buildings across Main street from the Frost-Kessler block suffered only slight damage.

Several persons, a number of them small boys who crowded close to the burning structures the better to see the firemen at work, were injured as walls collapsed, sending down showers of white hot bricks.

Instances of heroism were numerous while the fire was at its height. Charles F. Tonniller was carried out of the blazing structure in which he had apartments and removed to a hospital. Others rushed into the Fexer building as flames were bursting through the roof and rescued Mrs. Andrew Fexer, aged and infirm owner of the building.

Firemen were hampered in their work because many fire hydrants were frozen. Water was pumped from the river in some instances.

WING IS NAMED OSCEOLA AGENT

Former Charlevoix Man Assumes New Position

C. W. Wing, former county farm agent in Charlevoix county, has been appointed to a like position in Osceola county. His work will be financed by the Osceola County Farm Bureau of Michigan and the Michigan Agricultural college.

Osceola county has been without a farm agent for two years since Lowell Rose resigned to take up active management of his 400-acre farm near here.

Mr. Wing put Charlevoix county on the map as a certified seed potato area and he proposes to take up a similar work in Osceola county. Wing selected the exhibit of Michigan potatoes which won the sweepstake honors at the international potato show at Duluth last fall.

Entertains Phone Bunch. Miss Minnie Raber entertained at the home of her parents on East Huribut avenue Friday evening for the pleasure of the employees of the local telephone exchange and their friends. The evening was spent in dancing after which a pot-luck supper was served.

Has it a good Roof?

How many times have you heard people ask that question about a house? Your house or any other house? Same with a barn. Why wouldn't they? Wouldn't you? Sure you would. It's a logical question. When you build, or re-roof your old house or barn, insist on having "HALF CENTURY" BRAND WHITE CEDAR SHINGLES.

Laid With Galvanized or Copper Nails. and then you will know you have a good roof. White Cedar is the best shingle wood because it resists the weather best. It lasts and lasts. The big public utility companies always give preference to White Cedar for poles, cross arms and ties because they know from their records how durable it is.

And "Half Century" Brand are the best White Cedar shingles made because they are always cut the right thickness—no skimping. They won't curl up and break or warp, or split under the nail.

And they are always air cured. No hasty, rushing dry kiln process to take the life and strength out of the wood fibre. Being White Cedar they furnish the best base for any color of stain or paint.

Don't forget: there's no sense in buying shingles good for fifty years and then lay them with common steel nails that will rust out. Use galvanized or copper nails and "Half Century" Shingles and your roof problem is solved for keeps. Insist on "Half Century Brand"—proved by the above Trade Mark. Lumber dealers can supply you. Write for valuable booklet, "How to Lay a Shingle Roof." FREE.

MAKE YOUR VOICE HEARD

Secretary Mellon of the treasury. In a letter to Representative Fordney, chairman of the committee on ways and means of the house of representatives, says: "Ordinary expenditures for the first three quarters of the fiscal year, 1921, have been $3,783,771, 1922, at the rate of about $5,000, 000,000 for the year. According to the latest estimates of the spending departments, ordinary expenditures during the fiscal year, 1922, including interest on the public debt, will be over $1,000,000,000."

"The nation cannot continue to spend at this shocking rate. As the President said in his message, the burden is unbearable, and there are two avenues of relief, one is resistance in appropriation and the other is the utmost economy in administration."

It is, of course, the former, which I have quoted previously in these articles, and who is still deeply and actively interested in securing retrenchment in national expenditures; commenting on this utterance of Secretary Mellon, says: "Why should there be retrenchment in public expenditure? Why does the secretary of the treasury speak of current and estimated expenditures as shocking? What is the evil that we are discussing and what is its effect?"

"Government expenditures must be met from taxes. To the extent that they are met promptly from taxes and from honest taxes directly laid upon the incomes of the people and in proportion to those incomes, expropriation of the evil of government expenditure is avoided. Government expenditure takes the money of all the people for the supposed benefit of a portion of the people, honestly or dishonestly, equally or unequally, avowedly by direct taxation, or surreptitiously by the indirect taxation which results from inflation of currency and credit and of the public debt."

"Government expenditure takes the fruits of the earth and the labor of the people and diverts them from the productive and reproductive enterprises of men, from the natural enjoyment of the men, who by their prudence, foresight and effort, created the wealth and made it available, to the sometimes benevolent and sometimes belligerent, but almost always economically wasteful, purposes of government."

"Government exploits all of us for the benefit, or supposed benefit, of some of us. Yielding to the vague aspirations of men for a better world or a better distribution of the good things of this earth, government imposes upon all of us ever-increasing burdens in the effort to benefit vociferous and organized minorities."

"Each of the executive departments is concerned to improve its service and to discover new and useful fields of service. The entire organization of the army, of the navy, of each of the departments, independent offices and agencies of the government, is devoted to an important task. Its particular function seems of vital usefulness, even necessity. Experts in each are alive to its defects and to the opportunities for usefulness which have not been availed of."

"The secretary, or other head of the department, drawn from private life, perhaps wholly ignorant at the outset of the nature and extent of its problems, promptly becomes the advocate of the policies and demands of his permanent assistants and bureau chiefs. If he does not become such advocate, he may break down the morale of his organization and possibly lose the confidence of his personnel."

"Behind it all is the pressure of organized interests in the constituencies, which are the beneficiaries of specific expenditures, on upon politiclans, executive departments, senators and congressmen. The strident voice of greed is heard in the market place and in legislative halls; the voice of the people is barely audible."

"The fact that each project is considered separately, without reference, either in executive departments or congress, to ways and means of financing it, prevents concentration of popular opinion on the awful total. All agree that there must be economy, but as each item is presented all seemingly agree that that is not the proper field for economy. There must be economy, but there must be a merchant marine, whatever the cost. There must be economy, but the government must pay high wages to railroad employees and furnish transportation on the railroads at less than cost. There must be economy, but the World War soldiers must have their bonus. There must be economy, but Civil War pensions must be increased. There must be economy, but we must prepare for war, regardless of expense."

You know this is true. The new budget law will help very much this condition, but unless you are interested, continuously, actively, openly interested, your money will not be saved.

WHY GOOD MEN DODGE

The government service must look largely to the graduates from colleges and universities in recruiting for its technical work. Replies to an inquiry addressed to some forty of the leading colleges and universities of the country to discover what class of men took civil service examinations, whether the number is decreasing and, if so, the reasons, disclose vividly what the training schools of technical and scientific men think about the government as an employer. They warn their graduates against government service, and the graduates heed the warning.

Carnegie Institute of Technology, at Pittsburgh, reports: It is certainly true that the best of our graduates are not interested in government employment because they feel that, first of all, it does not pay adequate salaries, nor does it offer opportunity for advancement that private enterprise does. This spring I interviewed all the members of the graduating class, except the women, and none of them would consider government employment, although there were many positions open. There are now about 150 male graduates of the institute, and I will venture to state that not more than ten are employed by the government.

Replies of similar tenor and import were received from the University of Chicago, Leland Stanford University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Princeton University, Indiana University, and the University of Wisconsin.

Inequality of compensation is one of the chief reasons that deter scientific men from going into the government service. Congress fixes the salaries of most of the government employees. I can give a concrete illustration of how it demoralizes the salaries of scientific men.

Dr. Leland D. Howard and Dr. Edward W. Nelson are two scientists in the employ of the government who have national reputations.

The appropriation bill for the Department of Agriculture was under consideration in the house on January 29th, 1922. The secretary of agriculture had been recommending for five or six years that Doctor Howard's salary be increased from $4,500 to $5,000. He proposed it again in that year's bill. When the bill was reached in the discussion on the floor, this colloquy ensued:

Mr. Stanford-Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the recommendation to increase the salary of Dr. Howard. The committee has recommended an increase last year.

Mr. Lever—Yes; he has been in the government service many, many years. The chairman—I make the point of order.

Mr. Lever—I concede it.

Mr. Melancon—Michigan—Will the gentleman reserve his point of order?

Mr. Stanford—I will reserve it.

Mr. Melancon—The committee made the recommendation to increase the salary $500, took testimony on it and considered it very carefully. In our judgment the increase in salary ought to be made for an official who has been in the department, as the chairman says, for a long time at the head of this bureau. He has performed able and faithful services. The salary is less than that paid to the heads of other bureaus. We felt, after listening to all that was said, and with a knowledge of the work he has been doing and has done, the salary proposed is not too large.

Mr. Stanford—How long has he been there?

Mr. Lever—He has been there forty-two years.

Mr. Stanford—What is his age?

Mr. Lever—Over sixty, perhaps nearer seventy, but he is still vigorous and able to do good work. He is one of the greatest entomologists in the world.

The chairman—The point of order is sustained.

Five minutes later the matter of Doctor Nelson's salary was reached. The secretary of agriculture recommended an increase of his pay from $3,500 to $4,000. This happened:

Mr. Stanford-Mr. Chairman, I reserve the point of order on the paragraph. Will the chairman of the committee inform the house as to how long this biologist has been in the service of the government and how long he has been receiving the present salary of $3,500, on which you recommend an increase of $500?

Mr. Lever—Mr. Chairman, this gentleman, whose name is Nelson, has been in the service of the department since November, 1890. He has served as chief field naturalist from 1907 to 1912, and was assistant in charge of the biological investigation, from 1913 to 1914. On August 6, 1914, he was appointed assistant chief of the bureau, and on December 1, 1915, was made chief of the bureau. He took the place of Doctor Henshaw.

Mr. Stanford—And the salary has been $3,500 since 1915?

Mr. Lever—Yes.

Mr. Stanford—What is his age?

Mr. Lever—I should think that Doctor Nelson is round fifty years of age.

Mr. Stanford—He is not superannuated.

Mr. Lever—Oh, no; he is a very vigorous man.

Mr. Stanford-Mr. Chairman, I withdraw the point of order.

Doctor Howard was refused his increase of pay because he was too old, "over sixty, perhaps nearer seventy," Doctor Nelson was allowed his increase because he was not superannuated but in his prime, "round fifty years of age."

Now, as a matter of fact, Doctor Howard is more than two years younger than Doctor Nelson. Is it any wonder that scientific men of any attainments are reluctant to enter a service where the measure of the value of their services is set down in any such haphazard and casual way?

PREST-O-LITE'S Double Message to Car Owners

Prest-O-Lite, the greatest advance in battery making. Either one singles out Prest-O-Lite from other batteries. Combined they make it a battery value without a rival.

Money-Saving Figures

Prest-O-Lite Batteries represent the greatest value in years. Consider that you can buy a regular Prest-O-Lite Battery for popular makes of light cars for $19.90 (trade-in price).

Here are other outstanding values: $24.50 (trade-in price) for a 6-volt type serving

There are similar reductions on every Prest-O-Lite Battery, and Prest-O-Lite builds a correct type of battery for every make of motor car and truck.

Yes, With PREST-O-PLATES

These are not special models. They are top-quality Prest-O-Lites, with the famous Prest-O-Plates.

Prest-O-Plates are as different from ordinary battery plates as gold is from gilt. They combine unusual hardness with a peculiar porosity. None of the old plate compromise between hardness and porosity. Prest-O-Plates have both.

This explains their ready dependable reserve power in biting zero weather, and their non-buckling, heat-resisting strength in summer.

Experts say that they are the world's best battery plate, and this is the same as saying that Prest-O-Lite is the world's best battery.

For the life of a battery is in the plates. You never need a new battery until the plates in your old go bad. As long as you have live plates, you have a battery.

Doubly Guaranteed

And every part of a Prest-O-Lite Battery is worthy, in material and workmanship, of Prest-O-Plates.

That is why 87 leading manufacturers specify Prest-O-Lite as original equipment, and "the list is growing."

Every Prest-O-Lite is backed by the regular Prest-O-Lite guaranty, a definite obligation, plus a spirit that says the car owner must be pleased.

WILLIAMS HEADS THIRD WOOL POOL

1921 Pool of 2,785,000 Pounds Has Been Disposed of.

Opening of the Michigan State Farm Bureau's third or 1922 wool pool has been announced by the bureau, which is now receiving wool at its Lansing warehouse. In late April the farm bureau wool department plans to start a state-wide grading and wool assembling campaign at important local wool assembling points. The bureau is now making a cash advance to wool growers of forty per cent of the estimated market value of the graded wool on date of grading. It is planned to continue this throughout the pooling campaign, the bureau said.

Don Williams, formerly sheep and wool extension specialist with the Michigan Agricultural College, has been employed by the Farm Bureau as manager of the 1922 pool. He succeeds Mr. A. J. Hankins, who is retiring from the pool after having built up the Michigan wool pool and directing it through two years of most difficult marketing conditions, said the bureau.

The 1921 pool of $2,785,000 pounds has been sold and Mr. Hankins is now closing up the books preparatory to final settlement with the wool growers. This is a matter that will require several weeks, according to the farm bureau.

By receiving wool at Lansing now the bureau plans to get an early start on the 1922 pooling campaign, an advantage which it hopes to improve during the summer.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH NOTES

A new epoch in our church begins here at a tithe meeting last Monday. The "Storehouse Plan" of distribution was adopted. The date of April 23rd was set for the beginning. By that time a suitable receptacle will be placed at the entrance of the church auditorium where the tithe will be deposited.
The Storehouse tithe association will meet the second Monday of each month. The next date will have a special speaker.
We call upon all titheholders to join us in this advanced step. We want to put the church of God on a Bible basis and devote all our energies to the furtherance of God's kingdom.

Next Sunday the Pastor will speak in the morning from the theme "The Call of the Church." In the evening the theme will be "The Result of seeking God with all the Heart."

Sunday School takes on increased activity each week. The Easter Day will be a fitting climax to the winter's work. We propose to make this year's offering a real one. Double program for Easter Day Cantata in the morning and pageant at night.
The day will begin with a Sunrise prayer meeting.

Remember the Junior League at 3 p. m. Sunday and the Epworth League at 6 p. m. Good leaders, splendid interest.

Prayer meeting this Thursday at 7:30. Come with a prayer for some one else.

The next three Sunday mornings will take the general theme of the Church's opportunity in our hearts, our community, our missions. April 9th we will have baptismal service for adults. The evenings of "Holy Week" April 9th to 16th, we will have services in the church. Plan for these and get a blessing.

Closing Out Sale—complete grocery stock at cost prices. See Chas.

STATE ROAD AID FUNDS TO BE CUT

Only a Small Portion of Money to Be Paid This Year

Only a small portion of the money due counties of the state from the highway department as state reward on county roads will be paid this fiscal year, the highway department announced Monday.

The county road building was very active last summer and as a result the counties are entitled to rewards amounting to $3,702,382. The highway department, however, was allowed only $1,138,908 with which to pay the awards. Of the money available $654,136 has been paid, leaving only $460,398 to pay an obligation of more than $3,000,000.
This balance is being prorated so that each county will receive the same percentage of the amount due it. Construction of county roads will be curtailed next summer and the money then available will be used mainly in paying the overdue awards.

INTERESTING BITS OF IN- FORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

Two Men Arrested

A young man by the name of Collins and Albert Bennett were recently arrested on a charge of violation of the liquor law in Antrim county.
Collins was taken to Bellaire last week by Deputy Sheriff Muckle of Antrim, and Bennett was conducted there this week by Undersheriff Cook of this county. They were released on bail, pending trial in circuit court.

Used Old Hand Press

The Cadillac News printed a onepage Washington's birthday edition on an old hand press after the storm had shut off the electric power for its printing presses. And if Washington could have come back he wouldn't have received the least shock.

Two Men to Work

Dr. F. W. High, who has been in Northern Michigan for a year testing herds of cattle for tuberculosis, has completed his work the winter season and has gone to Livingston county to assist in the work there until road condition make it possible to carry on the work in this region again. Two men will be in the work in Northern Michigan—Emmet, Grand Traverse, Antrim and Charlevoix counties—in the early spring.

"Smoke" Money Into Books

A resident of St. Clair who has collected an excellent library of several thousand volumes during the last 50 years says he did it by stopping smoking and putting into books all the money he would have spent for tobacco. The scheme is really splendid for now that he has so many books, look at all the fine hearty smokers he can lend them to!

Ducks Eat Fish

Trout fishermen in the neighborhood of Traverse City are somewhat distressed over the fact that great flocks of ducks, which frequented Grand Traverse bay until it froze over, are now foraging for food in the streams, catching from 10 to 200 trout daily. An effort is being made by sportsmen to have a corn or other food placed in the river to feed the ducks and to entice them from the fishing grounds of the upper stretches of the river.

In Ice Waters 20 Minutes

Twenty minutes spent in clinging to the ice in Grand Traverse bay while the freezing water of Boardman river washed down on him, almost ended fatally for Harry, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kröhn.
Only prompt work of L. C. Bailey and a rescuing party saved Harry and George, his 8 year-old brother, from drowning.

too near the edge of ice, which broke and they plunged into the bay where the river current comes in. With the aid of a long plank Bailey rescued George, but in the attempt to save Harry the plank broke through the ice and Bailey fell into the bay.
Fishermen were summoned and with a rope effected the rescue of young Krohn from the icy waters.
Rescuers worked over his stiff and unconscious body for an hour, finally reviving him.

Boys Steal Horse and Rifle

Two boys from Sandpit, Monroe county, were taken into custody when it was found they had appropriated a horse and rifle belonging to the father of one of them and started to Ann Arbor to see a relative. The state game laws, of course, forbid any one who hasn't reached years of discretion, to take a rifle along when he goes to see a relative.

Ford May Buy Prison

A rumor has been started in Jackson to the effect that Henry Ford visited the Jackson prison and looked it over with a view to buying it in case the state decided to abandon the institution. Knowing how ineffective the place is for ordinary prisoners, however, we feel sure it wouldn't hold a Ford joke over night.

KELLY MAKES NEWBERRY ISSUE

Announces His Plan of Battle in Campaign For U. S. Senate.

The Newberry issue will be fought out within the ranks of the Republican party in Michigan in the next election, it was ascertained when Representative Patrick Kelly, Sixth Michigan District announced his candidacy for the senatorial nomination in opposition to Senator Townsend.

The statement of Representative Kelly clearly indicated he planned to make the expenditure of large sums of money the outstanding issue in the fight. Townsend supported Newberry in the fight to expel him from the senate.

Rep. Kelly said: "Michigan must not accept the doctrine that it is proper to spend any sum of money in behalf of a candidate, provided it is not used for corrupt purposes. The people should be able to select a candidate practically without the expenditure of money. It is vital to the state that money shall not be the determining or even an important factor in the election."

The first serious accident of the winter occurred last Sunday morning when Edgar the little son of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Carpenter, lost control of his sled while sliding down hill and crashed into a stump with the result that both bones of his left fore arm were broken. Dr. Beuker was called and the broken bones set and the lad made as comfortable as possible but will be without the use of his arm for at least three or four months.

Two young men were picked up in East Jordan by Deputy Sheriff Cook on Monday of this week and when questioned admitted being the ones who on March 1st entered and robbed the Klooster & Son store here and who a few nights later pulled the same stunt on the Saperston store at Alba. Suspicion was first directed to them when they became somewhat promiscuous with cash and Ingersol watches and investigation proved them as the ones wanted. The young men both about twenty years of age are well known about East Jordan, their home, one of them named Batterby having been in trouble of a like nature once or twice before. It is understood here that there were three in the gang. Only two however having been so far apprehended.

PLAYED TWO GAMES LAST WEEK

Loss to East Jordan and Win From Rapid City

The Ellsworth H. S. Boys went to East Jordan last Wednesday night and played the East Jordan H. S. boys.

It was a good fast game but the East Jordan boys proved to be too much for our boys and succeeded in taking the game from us by a score of 22 to 11. The first half ended in a score of 11 to 6 in their favor and the last half 22 to 11.

It was a good square game and our boys were fairly beaten, however we are looking forward to Tuesday night when the East Jordan boys and girls are coming to Ellsworth and a lively game is assured.

Friday night we were more successful however when Rapid City came up for the return game as our boys and girls both succeeded in winning.

The girls by a score of 19 to 1. This game was not close during any part of the game and was very easily won.

The boys game was a little closer but not as close as we expected as the score was 7 to 3 in the first half and 15 to 4 at the end of the game.

East Jordan plays here Tuesday night and Ellsworth plays at Elk Rapids next Friday night and except for the tournament this will end the basketball season for this year.

EAST JORDAN FAILS TO KEEP AGREEMENT

Show Poor Brand of Sportsmanship By Refusal to Play

Ellsworth High school basketball team will journey to Elk Rapids on Friday night of this week and mix with the Elk Rapids teams.

Return games with East Jordan high scheduled for Tuesday night of this week were canceled Monday, when the East Jordan outfit developed a streak of yellow, covered by several kinds of excuses, and refused to keep their agreement to meet the Ellsworth teams on their own floor.

Both the boys and girls teams from Ellsworth went to East Jordan and played firm in their faith in the promises of the East Jordan management to play here on Tuesday night and advertising the games accordingly.

On Monday p. m. Ath. director Snellenberg phoned the Ellsworth manager and cancelled the games, giving the poor condition of the roads as his reason. A number of local fans immediately made arrangements to send teams over after the East Jordan players and phoned Mr. Snellenberg only to informed that the East Jordan teams had made different plans and would come under no consideration.

None of the Ellsworth players or supporters blame the members of the other teams but severely criticize the management for their unsportsmanlike conduct in deliberately breaking their given word.

SONG OF THE MERRY NELLY

By W. Gordon Parker

(Boy Harry, perched on a piling, holds a little conflag with the abandoned catboat Merry Nelly. The tang of the salt marshes is in the air.)

Merry Nelly
O sail with me o'er the boundless sea,
Away from the breakers' roar,
Beyond the band of shimmering sand,
Where the seagulls glide and soar;
My sheets are true as the billows,
blue,
I've weathered the storms' wild might;
I come about at the captain's shout
—And a touch of the tiller light.
Could you have seen my white hull gleam
Like spray 'neath a summer sky,
You'd pity me now with my broken bow,
At last, high-dry at home.
I signal and cry to the passer by,
But they heed me not all;
My captain's aloft in another boat—
Far off in the Nancy McCall.

Boy Harry
Ah, Merry Nelly, I know too well,
Your skipper is off in the Nancy;
She's trim and neat, and can't be beat—
She strikes the captain's fancy.
Don't take it to heart, nor tremble nor start,
Again you'll flock the ocean;
And dip and rise in glad surprise
To feel once more its motion.
So I'll paint you gay, this very day—
I'll give you a coat of white;
And find a man to lend a hand
When the tide comes in tonight;
Then we'll cross the bar 'neath the evening star,
Away from the breakers' roar,
Beyond the band of shimmering sand
Where the seagulls glide and soar!

Forty in Attendance at Meeting Held Last Friday

The W. C. T. U. were entertained at the home of Mrs. N. A. Shores Friday. Forty ladies were in attendance. Mrs. H. S. Harsha lead the devotionals.

Mrs. L. S. Runney was elected treasurer. Three new members took the W. C. T. U. pledge. The flower Mission and Relief committee reported sending remembrances to two sick members and one pair of shoes and rubbers to a worthy little girl.

The Jail and Juvenile Court committee reported having called and administered to two juveniles in the jail.

The Citizenship committee called attention to the city election to be held April 3d and to the proposed amendments to the city charter. The August primaries were also mentioned.

Except of a sermon by Reverend J. A. Dykstra of Grand Rapids on the Sunday movie was given.

Citizenship and Politics as it relates the home were the main topics of the program. Good citizens should be awake to some of the social and civic needs, that both men and women citizens are responsible for, and be watchful for violations of law, such as the Eighteenth amendment, Sabbath laws and all other statutes, which deal with the moral, mental, and physical welfare of the people. No nation rise higher than its citizens. It is therefore our duty to create standards, that shall make our Nation the foremost in the world. Study the situation daily and become trained workers, through personal observation, be able to detect the evil that is so artistically woven in with the good and help to raise the community life to the Christian standards. Eternal vigilance is the price of moral safety as well as liberty.

The W. C. T. U. will continue to instruct the citizens in this and every other land on the purity, protection and exaltation of the home and maintain the high moral standards for which the organization has ever contended.

The contest between the four circles is growing interesting and many women are joining.

Mrs. Shores and Mrs. James Saunders served a dainty lunch. A splendid spirit of fellowship prevailed and the guests departed for their homes in a happy frame of mind.

BROKE CAMP AT MIDNIGHT

Commission, was getting his shooting picture gallery set up. Karl Fisher entertained with a solo. He was one of the real song birds above referred to. Mr. McGillivray prefaced his performance by taking some shots at "Bill Pearson and Art Fitch, the former being pictured as a mild, nature-loving creature who loved to dwell in sylvan nooks by the sparkling stream where the elusive trout spotted through the livelong day, during which eulogy Bill nodded quiet assent. The latter was characterized as a game killer whose only thought was to kill everything in sight and to use persuasive powers of eloquence to avoid all laws and let the game take care of itself, while Art just laughed.

Guess some of the boys who know of Art's many years of effort in planting trout and preserving game, pretty well understood that Mac was a trifle off his base. The screen pictures and explanations of Mr. Mc-Gillivray were appreciated and show a lot of work on the part of the author. We broke camp about 12.

WILL RE-CLASSIFY MICHIGAN LAKES

State Officials Want Duplication of Names Abolished

Several state officials at Lansing and others throughout the state interested in the development of Michigan's resort and tourist possibilities are considering the starting of a movement to reclassify the more than 5,000 lakes located within the state's border, according to information obtained by the Detroit real estate board.

In other years, it is pointed out, lakes largely have been put to local use by fishermen for ice harvesting purposes. No effort was made to classify the bodies of water with the result that there are several names each of which is applied to as many as half dozen lakes. These names include "Bear," "Crystal" and "Long." With a development of the tourist business and the throwing of these beauty spots open to the general public of this and other states, the similarity in names has led to considerable confusion, it is declared. Many persons have sought to reach a lake of a certain name and have been directed to another lake bearing the same name.

In other instances certain lakes are known by more than one name.
It is pointed out that an attractive body of water near Grand Rapids is known by the names of "Raritan" and "Belle."

One road leading to the lake brings the resort to Raritan lake, while another road leading to the same body of water takes the tourist to Belle lake. Similar instances are found in other parts of the state.

"The Whitest White I Ever Saw"

IN Victoria, Texas, there are three houses in the same block (Mr.
Trailor's house, shown above, is one of them) which are painted with Heath & Milligan Best Prepared Paint; and, in the words of the painter himself: "The whitest white I ever saw."

That's because Best Prepared Paint has a high hiding power—you will find that out when you use it. You will also find that you won't have to get so much to go over the surface, and, therefore, fewer hours of labor are required to apply it. That it gives more years of service—looks better all the time than most paints. Best Prepared Paint is the best house paint that Heath & Milligan know how to make, or have ever made after 67 years. It will prove to be the cheapest in the end. If your house needs painting now—don't delay—decay won't wait for paint to get cheaper. Look for the trade sign of dependability (shown above) when you do buy.

MUCH TRUNK LINE ROAD IS PLANNED

NORTHWESTERN MICHIGAN TO HAVE ABOUT 135 MILES

District Highway Department Has Outline of What Is Expected This Season.

The state trunk line construction program for the northwestern district of the lower peninsula of the state for 1922, comprises approximately 135 miles. Of this amount about 16 miles will be concrete or other high type surface, 109 miles of one and two course gravel and about 10 miles of grading and drainage structures only. Due to the nature of the traffic and the abundance of suitable road building gravel in this district, the majority of the program will be gravel construction. Besides the above mileage, there will be about 37 miles of the 1921 program which has been carried over and will be completed early this spring. Program for 1922 by counties is as follows:

Mason county: one mile of pavement, two and one-half miles of gravel.

Lake county: 15 miles of gravel, Oscoda county: one mile of pavement, one mile of gravel.

Clare county: one-half mile of pavement, 14 1-2 miles of gravel.

Roscommon county: Three miles of gravel.

Missaukee county: Seven miles of gravel.

Wexford county: One mile of pavement, five and one-half miles gravel.

Manistee county: Two and one-half miles of a higher type than gravel.

Benzie county: Seventeen miles of gravel.

Leelanau county: Nine miles of gravel.

Grand Traverse county: Three and one-half miles of a higher type than gravel and four and one-half miles of gravel.

Kalkaska county: Seven and one-half miles of gravel.

Antrim county: One-half mile of pavement, two miles of grading and drainage structure and nine miles of gravel.

Charlevoix county: Eight miles of grading and drainage structure, one-half mile of pavement, 13 miles of gravel.

Emmet county: Six miles of pavement.

The completion of the above program will mean that all of the trunk lines in the following counties will be improved at the end of 1922 with one kind of improved road building material which can be reasonably well maintained for traffic. These are Mason, Manistee, Benzie, Grand Traverse, Oscoda and Emmet counties. As can be seen by the map there will be very little unimproved dirt road on the trunk lines in this district at the end of 1922.

This large amount of construction will of course make many detours necessary. The counties co-operating with the state highway department, however, will make every effort to carry traffic through with as little inconvenience as possible. In many cases the construction will be so arranged that the traffic can get through at all times. Where it is impossible to allow traffic over the job well marked detours will be maintained in the best conditions possible under the circumstances. A great deal of the construction work will be contracted for at an early date and will be pushed as much as possible to get the construction carried to such a point that traffic will not be inconvenienced when heavy traffic starts this summer.

Weekly condition maps will be issued from the Lansing office of the state highway department which will furnish up to date information to the traveling public concerning the construction projects and the best routes to be traveled. These may be consulted at the district offices of the department and also at the offices of the various county road commissions and chambers of commerce.

NEW CITY WILL RISE FROM RUINS

Cheboygan Planning to Rebuild in Modern Manner

A greater Cheboygan will rise from the ruins of the recent fire which caused a loss of close to $1,000,000 and cost three lives.

The First National bank will erect a modern building. Work will start at once on the site of the destroyed structure. Charles Toanellier will replace his brick business block with a modern structure. The Knights of Columbus will erect a handsome modern lodge home. The Standard Oil company is hauling material for a new oil station opposite the proposed $1,000,000 federal building. The Kresler block is to be replaced with modern business blocks.

SIREN FUND IS CLOSE TO $175

MORE MONEY YET TO BE RAISED, HOWEVER

Charlevoix Fire Laddies Put on Successful Daring Party St. Patrick's Day Evening.

Chief H. D. Marshall showed one of his most engaging smiles at the conclusion of the dance held on the night of St. Patrick's Day at Bank hall.

"As representative of the fire laddies you won't have to pry any information out of me," said the chief. "This puts the siren fund close to $175.00 and leaves about $145.00 to be raised. And say, 'whispered the fire fighter, did you ever see such a polite March 17 crowd before?'"

Chief Marshall explained that the expense continue with each entertainment, cutting the profits proportionately.

"But we're not begging you understand," he continued. "We want to give the public its money's worth, and we believe it appreciates our efforts. I hope the affairs we propose to give will be well supported for the siren will be a good thing for all and will doubtless save many times its cost the first year. Everybody will be awakened, and in cases of strong wind the value of this cannot be overestimated. A man warned early can often with a few buckets of water save much property."

It was stated that while East Jordan has a single horn, the Charlevoix siren will probably be a double horn of Westinghouse make and will be bought at cost. Many favor placing it on a steel tower on the new city lot.

But to return from the stern realities of fire fighting to the dance, which began at 8:30 and lasted till one o'clock, we will say that Duane's orchestra furnished good music for nine square dances and innumerable fox trots and waltzes. All had a good time and, while doing so, helped a worthy cause.

ROBBERS ARE APPREHENDED

TRIO NOW IN JAIL AT DISPOSAL OF JUDGE

Under Sheriff of East Jordan Secures a Confession After Severe Grilling

Numerous robberies have taken place recently in and about East Jordan, Ellsworth and Alba, and for a time the county officers were unable to apprehend the parties who have committed them. The East Jordan Herald in its issue of last week tells of the arrest of those who pulled the deals. The story is as follows:

East Jordan and vicinity has been the scene of several store robberies of late, among them being the Geo. Carr Grocery on State-st., Matt Somerville's store corner Main and State streets, the Klooster store at Ellsworth and the Saperston store at Alba.

After going over the different cases for some time, Under Sheriff H. Cook of East Jordan decided on action. On Monday morning last he arrested Winifred Beringer. After a four-hour session with him in the city jail, Beringer broke down and confessed, implicating Glenn Ross with him in the two local burglaries and that of Kloosters, and these two with Harold Atkinson in the Saperston affair.

Under Sheriff Cook arrested the other two in the afternoon, Ross confessing to his part in the burglaries and Atkinson holding out. Beringer and Ross went before Justice Severance and made affidavit to their confession.

The trio were taken to Bellaire, Tuesday morning by Under Sheriff Cook and enroute there Atkinson confessed his part in the Alba burglary.

They were arraigned before a Justice of the Peace at Bellaire and bound over to Circuit Court for sentence. In the two local robberies Beringer and Ross secured $8 to $12 dollars from Carr's Grocery, and about $40 and some cigarettes from Matt Somerville's.

On Wednesday night, March 1st, Beringer and Ross walked to Ellsworth burglarized the Klooster store securing $150 in cash and some jewelry. They walked home the same night.

On Monday, March 6, Beringer, Ross and Atkinson went by train to Alba and that night broke into Saperston store securing three suits of clothing, three overcoats, three leather suit-cases and a quantity of watches and jewelry. In making their get-away from a rear exit, Atkinson fell through the snow into an open cistern. He went in to his armpits and probably would have been drowned had he not clutched the wooded edges of the cistern. His companions pulled him out. In the tumble he lost in the cistern the overcoat which he had taken and which was found there. The trio broke up and walked back to East Jordan that night. They went to the farm home of George Jacquet in Wilson township (which was furnished but unoccupied) where they remained about 24 hours, helping themselves to the canned fruit and leaving the house in a filthy condition.

After arresting the three, Under Sheriff Cook searched their rooming places and from the cellars in their homes secured all the merchandise taken from the Saperston store, and the jewelry taken from the Klooster store. The money taken had been spent.

Both Beringer and Atkinson have served prison sentences in the past; this is Ross' first arrest.

Under Sheriff Cook is to be congratulated for the thorough manner in which he cleared up this series of burglaries. In his able manner of securing a confession of all three implicated, he has saved Antrim county considerable money in the costs of a trial. The disposal of the three now rests with the circuit judge.

The Mary Brewster Spring Festival, which is to be held at the Lakeside Pavilion, afternoon and evening of March 31st offers many attractive features for young and old, especially introducing characters familiar to the readers of the Chicago Tribune and Grand Rapids Press, also novelty dancing and other surprises. Japanese tea dispensers will serve dainty refreshments during the afternoon and a most unusual menu will be prepared for 5:30 o'clock supper. Come and see "Congress of Beauties" have the gypsies tell your fortune and share in the general fun and frolic. Watch for further details next week.—Adv. 124f.

NAMES CHANGED EARLY IN 1843

MUCH IN NAME THAT APPLIES TO STATE COUNTIES

Wild and Wooly Names Have Been Replaced Mostly By Wise Law Makers

For the benefit of those who are trying to convince residents of other parts of the country that Michigan is not a wild and wooly state it is a good thing, according to Dennis E. Alward, clerk of the state senate, that wise lawmakers have from time to time changed the names of various counties in this commonwealth.

Mr. Alward is indexing and compiling every local act which has to do with the title of a county. Here are some of the things he has found:

Lake county was laid off as Alschou county in 1840. It was changed to Lake in 1843.

Newegon was the original name of Alcona county. It was changed in 1843.

Alger was formerly a part of Schoolcraft county. It was detached in 1886.

Anamickee was the name of Alpena county labored under until 1843.

Antrim was originally laid off as Meegisee, in 1840, and was changed in 1843.

Arenac was part of Bay county until 1883.

Baraga was detached from Houghton county in 1876.

Menominee was known as Blecker, until 1863.

A county named Brown is now part of the state of Wisconsin.

Charlevoix was originally laid off as Keskauko county. It was changed in 1843.

Chequoquet was the name given to what is now Montmorency county. It was changed in 1843.

Clare was originally labelled Kaykakee, and was changed in the laws of 1843.

Prior to 1843 Crawford was known as Shawano.

Dickinson was organized from territory detached from Menominee, Iron and Marquette.

Dubuque county is now part of the state of Iowa.

Emmett was originally laid off as Tonedagana and was changed in the laws of 1843.

Forest county was organized from territory detached from Presque Isle and Cheboygan, subject to a referendum, but the people failed to ratify.

Iowa county is now part of Wisconsin.

Luce was originally known as Kanotin.

The county of Isle Royal was organized but was later attached to Keweenaw.

Kalkaska was originally known as Wabasse.

Other counties which formerly were Old Indian names were:

Wexford, known as Kautaukat; Mackinac, known as Michilimackinac; Mason, known as Notipekago; Roscommon, known as Mikenauk; Otsego, formerly Okkudo; Grand Traverse, formerly Omeana; Oscoda, formerly Unwattin.

Manitou county was created and made part of Leelanau; the former county of Milwaukee is now part of Wisconsin; a county of Washington was created but the act under which it was organized was held unconstitutional.

REMAINS BROUGHT HOME FOR BURIAL

Body of Carl G. Carlson Arrives Saturday Afternoon

The remains of Carl G. Carlson, who died at Valmore, New Mexico, March 13, arrived in Charlevoix Saturday afternoon, and was taken to the undertaking rooms of S. M. See & Son.

Carlson was 31 years of age, and was born in Elk Rapids, January 29, 1891. He was the son of Gus Carlson of near Ironton. At the age of 17 years he left for Chicago, later accepting the position as traveling salesman for the Quaker Oats company.

During the World war he was called, but when examined was found physically unfit for service. About two years ago he was obliged to give up active work and went to a sanitarium at Valmore, for treatment. He remained there continuously up to the time of his death, which was caused by tuberculosis.

He leaves to mourn their loss a father, mother and three brothers, Elbert at home, Harry of Grand Rapids and Edwja of Buffalo, N. Y., beside many close and intimate friends. Funeral services were held from the Coagregational church Monday afternoon. Interment in Brookside cemetery.

FIX THE TIME IN ALL TOWNS

MATTER SHOULD BE SETTLED FOR ALL TIMES

Charlevoix, to Vote on "Daylight Saving Time at Election Held April 3.

Once more the annual discussion over daylight saving time has started; not only in Charlevoix, but in various Michigan cities and villages. Petitions have been circulated asking the council to submit the proposition to the electors at the spring election, April 3, and this will be one of the four propositions that will be passed upon.

Charlevoix is confronting the same proposition as other Michigan cities. Some prefer the so-called daylight saving time, while others are satisfied with the time we have been operating under the past year or so.

Personally we prefer, during the summer months, the daylight saving time, for the reason that we would far rather start our day's work earlier, and thus have the opportunity of enjoying the extra hour of daylight after the work of the day has been completed.

It is good for the hotel man, because it keeps the resorters up and around, but of course is tough on their pocketbook.

It is a good thing for the merchant because it keeps people around longer, but at the same time it may cause the people to spend more money.

It is a fine thing for the man who puts in a garden—because it gives him time to work it. More gardens were put in during the time we were under the daylight saving plan than during any previous time before or since.

It is a poor thing for the city electric lighting plant, because it reduces its revenue. But at the same time it has proved a saver on the electric light bills.

But why discuss it any longer. It has been discussed ever since the war until everybody is tired of it. It has been agitated again and again in dozens of cities, with arguments pro and con, pulling and hauling, straw votes and real votes—with the result that the confusion is worse than ever. After years of agitation we have got nowhere. Nobody knows to a certainty what his own town is going to do, and nobody knows without inquiry what kind of time prevails in any other town.

NO FROST ON TOURIST CROP!
Writing editorially in the automobile section of the Grand Rapids Herald of Sunday, Carl M. Saunders urges Michigan people to continue the fight for more good roads, better fishing and other things which will attract tourists.

His editorial follows:
Tourists spend $100,000,000 a year in Michigan!

Only farm crops, livestock and minerals exceed the resort and tourist industry as a state resource!

Those are facts hard to believe.
But they're backed by the sound, thorough investigations of the United States census bureau.

For years a number of us enthusiasts have been hollering about the worth of Michigan as the nation's summer playground. Hugh Grey over at the resort bureau has been boosting to beat the band. Fred

Pantlind has been hiding with him.
Fred Lowe and a lot of other live fellows have joined the glad chatter.
But, some of you folks haven't been convinced. You've said, "Oh, that's just propagandism. Michigan is a nice place all right enough and good enough for me. But what do these tourists and resorters put into the pockets of Michigan folks?
Not much I guess."

Well, the census bureau answers
you. The tourists and resorters put more dough into Michigan's pockets than the total of the state's fruit crop—about which we're righteously bragged much—although less than the total of all farm crops. They provide more profit than the lumber industry by close to $20,000,000 a year.

And that means something to you and me. It means that all of this stuff about building roads to bring folks here from Indiana and Ohio and Missouri has real justification.
It means that the foreign licenses which go parading up and down the trail and pike are customers of ours —because we're partners in the state of Michigan.

Of course, you'll say that's all right for the fellows who run resort hotels up at Petoskey or the post-card vendors at Manistee. But that isn't where the thing ends, folks. You and I are interested in bringing dollars into Michigan. Whether you're making newspapers or furniture your prosperity depends upon the market. Dollars brought into Michigan improve the market. Because Baldwin had the most profitable year in its history during 1921, with thousands of resorters and tourists from all over the United States patronizing its camps and its merchants, the people up at Baldwin are more prosperous than they otherwise would be. More of them read The Herald now than used to because more of them have money, and more of them are buying new furniture than would be the case without the tourist traffic. More of them are buying automobiles and fishing tackle and talking machines. Business makes business.

We folks get all excited when a blizzard raises Cain with the fruit crop—and rightfully so, too. The fruit crop means a lot to Michigan.
But how about a cold-shoulder that frosts the tourist crops? That also is disastrous.

Good roads, congenial surroundings, free outdoor camp sites, good fishing, unspoiled Nature—these are the rays of a warming hospitality which brings the tourist crop to a ripe harvest. You and I enter into the program. We're interested from two viewpoints: first, as residents of Michigan, with whom these resorters indirectly do business; second, as tourists ourselves. We spend a part of that $100,000,000 which represents the resort crop.

So, folks, when they talk about cutting down the fish propagation program, or when they want to build tanneries on the good camp sites, or when they suggest that the building of good roads be discontinued—then they're hitting at you and I. Hit 'em back again! Let 'em know you're interested, 'cause you are!

MAKING WILLS

"Every man or woman possessing any property should make a will; and if there is any reason for changing it, make another as soon as the change is desired," advises a leading member of the bar.

Undoubtedly, as he suggests, people are careless about this important matter. Perhaps the chief deterrent is the ordinary conception of the complexity of the thing and the trouble and expense of going to a lawyer.
Such procedure, though desirable, is not necessary. The matter can be attended to very simply by anyone for himself, without even the formality of swearing to the document before a notary public, though there should be a witness to the signature.
The following form, used by the late Chief Justice White of the United States Supreme court—who certainly knew what he was about—is recommended as a model of brevity and accuracy for ordinary cases in which a husband desires to leave his belongings to his wife, or vice versa:
"This is my last will. I give, bequeath and devise to wife, Leita M.
White, in complete and perfect ownership, all my rights and property of every kind and nature, whether real, personal or mixed, wherever situated, appointing her executrix of my estate, without bond, and giving her seisin thereof."

The demand for Tanlac has broken all world's records. Over Twenty Million bottles have been sold since it was placed on the market. F. J.
Fessenden, 1211.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation for the many kindnesses shown us during illness and death of our little son, Harold Charles. We especially desire to thank the Epworth ladies and their acts of kindness and flowers.

Another Game Refuge

A stretch of 560 acres in the heart of the D. H. Day forest in Leelanau county has been turned over to the state as a game refuge through an arrangement entered into by Mr.
Day, District Warden Mark Caw and Commissioner John Baird. This refuge contains the essentials of a good game preserve, having natural cover with plenty of springs and is adjacent to State Park No. 1 and to the Big D. H. Day forest preserve.
Mr. Day was for a number of years president of the Western Development Bureau, and did more to bring success to that organization than any other individual, being its financial backer during all the time he was president.

Recovers His Vest

"A Muskegon man who lost a lucky vest when he went to Manistee to take the salt baths for rheumatism has recovered it," announces C.
D. M. in the Muskegon Chronicle.
"Recently he suffered another attack of rheumatism, went back to the sanitarium and found his vest under his union suit."

Hit It Again, Bo.

A Roscommon county wood cutter, while trying to cut a tree that was bent down by the snow, was greatly astonished when the tree suddenly sprang up, striking him in the face and broke his nose. In our judgment the man will be fully justified, when he recovers, in slipping up behind the tree and hitting it again.

Charged With Shoplifting

A wealthy Michigan man is reported to be held in California on a charge of shoplifting, having taken various articles from the benzoin counter of a department store. We are positively ashamed to have Michigan rich men go away from home and let themselves be caught just as if they were poor men.

People Eating Gelatin

The state food inspector has discovered that residents of Michigan are eating "raspberry jam," composed of gelatin, a small amount of flavoring and hayseed. No wonder some of them think they are in clover when they take a bite of the stuff.

We are ready to repair and overhaul your car now, do not leave it until you want to use it. Benj.

AT THE MOVIES

A beautiful blind girl's love affair with a true, but terribly disfigured young recluse, and the great test that comes to both of them, forms the basis for "The Song of the Soul," starring Vivian Martin, which comes to the Palace Theatre, for one day Wednesday. The picture is the first of a series to be produced by Mess-more Kendall and Robert W. Chambers, and released by Goldwyn.

Wanda Hawley and T. Roy Barnes as a young married couple offer a treat at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday in "Too Much Wife," a Realart comedy-drama and one of the best things of its kind ever seen on the screen.

It's a long story when you try to write it, but it reels along at the limit of speed, with a laugh to mark off every couple of revolutions. Miss Hawley, as a fond little bride, eager to insure the marital happiness of herself and her bridegroom, takes advice from her "masterful" mother, but also, privately, from her hen-pecked father. Her effort to reconcile and act on both conflicting counsels makes the story—one you'll like.

CHARLEVOIX PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Every student studying French in the Charlevoix High School has enrolled in the Bureau of International Educational Correspondence, authorized by the U. S. Government, the U. S. Bureau of Education, and the French Ministry of Education, in order to promote educational letter exchange between the thousands of pupils in France and Belgium who are studying English and the similar number of American pupils, who are studying French. From time to time these letters will appear in this column.

The telling of short stories has aroused much interest in the beginning French class, and the pupils show ability to soon "parler Francais."

Schools will close Friday, March 24th, for the spring vacation.

A large number of teachers and students will attend the basket-ball tournament at Petoskey Friday and Saturday.

FARM LIVE STOCK

MANY DISEASES ARE COSTLY
Three-Fourths of Ailments Which Often Ruin Valuable Herd Can Be Prevented.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Every year the people of the United States lose over $200,000,000 directly (and no one knows how much indirectly) through the diseases of farm animals. There are five principal causes of disease and death of animals—contagious diseases, sporadic diseases, parasitic troubles, accidents, and neglect. Contagious diseases can be avoided, or at least their consequences greatly diminished, if farmers will learn to co-operate with the United States Department of Agriculture and the various state live stock and sanitary authorities, who are striving to maintain animal health. Farmers should report promptly to the nearest official any suspicion of the presence of contagious diseases, and they should observe carefully all regulations in regard to quarantine, sanitation, and

Some of the Toll of the Outbreak of the Foot and Mouth Disease.

care of animals, as protection against contagion.

Parasitic diseases also carry off large numbers of valuable animals every year. They are largely the result of improper housing and neglect.
The average farmer cannot be expected to have the time and aptitude for study which will keep him abreast with the latest developments in feeds and feeding, animal nutrition and medicines, hygiene, and other important matters related to the stock raising industry. He can, however, avail himself of the benefit of the studies and demonstrations of specialists who have devoted their entire time to these subjects. Every state agricultural college maintains a corps of specialists whose publications and services are available.

The Department of Agriculture is constantly giving out important information in books and bulletins which may be had on request and in every state the department has representatives combating animal diseases. The wise breeder is ever on the lookout to prevent disease instead of waiting until a cure is necessary.

This discussion will be largely abstracted from the recent report of the State Health Department to the City of Charlevoix upon the "Possibilities of a Deep Well Water Supply."

Geology.

A deep well project necessitates a thorough study of the local geological formations as well as the other considerations necessary in the development of any water supply.

On the east and west of Charlevoix, limestone rock appears at the surface but in between there is a deposit of as much as 200 feet of drift over the rock, indicating the presence of a deep rock valley filled with drift (sand and gravel.) It is in this drift that the present wells and infiltration gallery are located.

The limestone formation in this area is fissured and highly porous, similar to a rotten log. Holes exist as great as three inches in diameter. This is particularly true of the limestone east of town where the shallower wells are found. Such conditions are typical of limestone formations anywhere. They invariably have fissures and crevices which may carry water for long distances. Pollution may be carried in the same way.

Deep wells exist at Charlevoix. The city mineral well is one. Such wells also exist east of town, but the depths at which water is found are not so great.

Quality of Water.

While flowing over the ground surface or through soil and rock formations, water will dissolve certain substances such as Calcium and Magnesium Sulphates and Carbonates. These in sufficient quantities make the water hard. Similarly Iron, Sulphur, Chlorides and other substances may also be dissolved in water.

Deep well waters have usually been in contact with rock and soil formations longer than shallow well waters and surface waters. Deep wells, therefore, usually furnish a harder water.

Well waters in limestone formations are hard because the waters dissolve sufficient quantities of the limestone which is composed mostly of Calcium and Magnesium Sulphates.

Water from the city mineral well is very hard and contains iron and some sulphur. Well water east of town is not so hard and contains less iron and other objectionable minerals. In any case, however, all of these properties make a water decidedly objectionable for domestic use.

The sanitary quality of the deep well water might be such as to actually require chlorination to render it safe for domestic use, but, it should be chlorinated as a safeguard against accidental pollution.

Hard Water.

The use of hard water is inconvenient and wasteful. Hard water chaps hands, roughens the skin, wastes soap, forms scale and incrustations in boilers, kettles and hot water fixtures and piping, and is objectionable in laundry work, dye plants, some paper mills, steam plants, railroads, house holds, hotels, hospitals, metal plating works, garages, canning and food packing houses, sugar factories, tanneries and photographers. Hardness has no direct effect upon health but it may cause people to change from safe to unsafe supply merely because the unsafe supply is soft and more agreeable.

Quantity.

Extensive investigation and much expense would be involved in determining whether or not a sufficient quantity of water existed for maximum summer needs. The only wells that we know of or have any records of near Charlevoix are not over three inches in diameter, so that it is impossible to get any idea as to the quantity available, from the wells now existing.

The most satisfactory method of determining the quantity of ground water is to sink test wells and pump them for a considerable length of time, preferably in a dry season. The minimum rather than the average flow of ground water must be determined. Natural storage may render the flow rather uniform, and make the draught exceed the minimum flow. In estimating the capacity of a supply this ground storage must be taken into consideration.

Pumping tests of short duration may give results that are very deceptive, because of a storage of ground water caused by various conditions. It is quite evident that several wells would be needed for Charlevoix, and that they should not be less than eight inches in diameter. Last summer it was impossible, due to the condition of the water system, to get even an approximate idea of the water consumption which of course is necessary before a new supply is developed.

The use of deep wells would necessitate additional pumping equipment.

Depth.

The depth necessary would depend upon where the wells are sunk, but it might be as great as 600 feet.

If driven to greater depths in order to get an adequate supply, the mineral content would increase and sulphur water unfit for use would ultimately be reached.

Previous Deep Well Project.

According to the United States Geological Survey in Water Supply Paper 183 dated 1907, "This village (Charlevoix) sunk three wells some years ago for the purpose of obtaining a supply, but this proved unsatisfactory and the present supply was adopted." It would seem logical that the records concerning this project be found and studied in relation to the present agitation for a deep well supply. The city should profit by previous work done along this line.

Potoskey Water Supply.

Deep well conditions at Charlevoix are identical with those at Potoskey. For years this city used an artesian supply but has just recently changed to a surface well water, developed on the beach in the city on Little Traverse Bay. Even the artesian supply was chlorinated. This work was done under hired technical supervision.

Summary.

The situation may be summarized:

1. Whether or not success is attained depends largely upon luck.
2. Investigation would have to be made to determine whether or not a sufficient quantity of ground water exists.
3. A deep well supply would furnish harder and more unsatisfactory water for general use.
4. A deep well supply would probably have to be chlorinated of necessity and should be as a matter of safety and insurance of a potable supply.
5. A preliminary survey and many test wells would be necessary. This would probably cost an appreciable sum of money.
6. A similar project tried many years ago proved unsatisfactory.

Mr. Automobile Owner:

Mr. Automobile Owner, do you realize that in 1921 there were 15,000 death cases and 160,000 personal injury claims caused by automobile accidents? In many of these claims settlements were made for from one to five thousand dollars but few automobile owners could stand such serious losses. With traffic on the increase, with good roads, with the congestion of automobiles upon many highways, it is unwise to go without insurance. You are able to obtain your insurance in a mutual company at a very reasonable rate.

You should select a company that has an organization through out the state so that if you are traveling in any part and have a serious accident, by wiring to the company you can obtain the name of the local agent or attorney who will give you assistance. Select a company that is complying with the request of the insurance department by building up a liability reserve.

If you are not insured or if you would like an agency to write insurance, it will pay you to write to

B. O. HAGERMAN
NEW COUNTY AGENT

Will Be On the Job By the First Week in April

By the action of the Executive Board of the Charlevoix County Farm Bureau at Boyne City, March 16, Charlevoix county will have an agricultural agent on the job by the first week in April.

Much time and conscientious effort has been expended, by the members of the board, to procure the right man to occupy this responsible position.

The Extension Department has of course did their best to locate a man whom they felt would suit the needs of this county. Keeping in mind the showing this county has already made, in the growing of certified seed potatoes, which may in the course of a few years, with the able assistance of an agricultural agent, result in the leading crop in the county.

Due to the diversified farming conditions in the county, there is a broad field of requirements to which a successful agricultural agent must necessarily qualify.

In making the selection, B. O. Hagerman was chosen by the board as the man they felt would make a success of the work. However in making this choice they didn't believe that they had found a man that would suit all the farmers in the county—that could scarcely be hoped for. But in view of the fact that Mr. Hagerman has met with success in dealing with the problems of the farmer, under similar conditions that he will encounter here, with the recommendation of the Extension Department, coupled with the general opinion that an agent, in order to be a success must be able to serve as a leader as well as a hired man, the board feels prove that there is a need for the right sort of a man as an agricultural agent in this county.

"Tally-ho!" was the English hunter's cry to encourage his hounds, especially when the fox broke cover. The word is also used to denote a four-in-hand hunt, or drive. "Tantivy" was the hunter's cry to denote that the game was in full swing. It was probably formed in imitation of the note of the hunting horn.

DAIRY

BEST DEVELOPMENT OF CALF

Good Supply of Milk or Skim Milk Most Important—Quantity Depends on Size and Age.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

No part of dairy farming is more essential than the proper feeding of young calves. Likewise nothing is more important for the best development of calves than a good supply of milk and skim milk in the ration. In the past few years the surplus of these products has been utilized as human food in the form of condensed and powdered milk and skim milk. Exports recently received by the United States Department of Agriculture, however, point to a temporary surplus of these products during the busy season, due to decreased export outlet.

If this situation is adjusted, it would seem advisable to utilize the surplus milk and skim milk as feed for live stock.

In raising dairy calves most dairymen prefer that the calf remain with the cow for the first 48 hours. If it is taken away then the cow will be less nervous when she begins to be milked again for commercial purposes than if they are allowed to run together for a long period.

It is desirable that the calf be in a thrifty, vigorous condition when it is taught to drink. It may be left without food for 12 hours, at the end of which time it will be hungry, and with a little teaching will usually drink milk from the pail. Warm, fresh milk from the mother should be put in a clean pail and held near the floor in front of the calf, which will generally begin to nose about the pail. Once it gets a taste of milk, it will usually drink without further trouble. Sometimes, however, more vigorous measures must be taken.

The quantity of milk fed to a calf depends upon its size and age, and to some extent on the kind and condition of the feed, but experiments by the Department of Agriculture indicate that about one pound a day should be fed for every ten pounds weight of the calf at birth. Many beginners make the mistake of letting the calf have as much milk as it wants. This would be all right if the calf were fed every two or three hours, as when it runs with the cow, but as it is impracticable ordinarily to feed more than two or three times a day, it is best to keep the quantity well below the capacity of the calf and not risk overfeeding.

For the first four days milk from the dam should be fed. After this the milk may be from any cow or cows in the herd, but preferably not from any that are nearly dry. Whole milk is preferable for the first two weeks, after which skim milk may be substituted, commencing with one pound a day and increasing to two or four pounds, depending on the vigor of the calf. No more skim milk should be fed than the calf will drink readily. In most cases at the end of the third week the ration should be approximately one-half whole and one-half separate milk.

At the beginning of the fourth week from one-half to three-fourths of the ration should be separated milk. During the week the change should be continued until by the beginning of the fifth week only separated milk is fed. In specially vigorous calves the change may be made a week earlier. After this time separated milk may be fed entirely, unless the calf is very delicate. The quantity fed can be gradually increased until 19 to 20 pounds a day are given. If milk is very plentiful, more may be fed, but otherwise it will not be found economical.

The time that milk should be discontinued depends upon its cost in relation to the value of the calf, its breed, size, vigor, etc. The season in which it reaches the age of six months, and the other feeds available at that time, must also be taken into consideration. Six months is probably a good average age at which to wean calves from milk. Where there is plenty of skim milk available this time may be lengthened. When the best of hay and sludge and a good variety of grains are available, the calf may be weaned earlier than when such feeds are lacking. The season of good, succulent pastureage presents the best possible condition for weaning the calf.

TWAIN FOND OF BILLIARDS

Biographer Has Told How Great Humorist Would Wear Out His Companions at the Game.

November 30 is Mark Twain's birth day. The beloved humorist would have been eighty-six on that day in 1921, if he had lived. His biographer, Albert Bigelow Paine, in writing of Mark Twain's passion for playing billiards, a hobby which endured to the last, comments upon his great physical endurance and perpetual youth.

"I was comparatively a young man, and by no means an invalid," Mr. Paine writes, "but many a time far in the night, when I was ready to drop with exhaustion, he was still as fresh and buoyant and eager for the game as at the moment of beginning. He smoked and smoked continually, and followed the cue ball track around the billiard table with the light step of youth. At three or four o'clock in the morning he would urge just one more game, and would haunt me for my weariness."

"I can truthfully testify that never until the last year of his life did he willingly lay down the billiard cue, or show the least suggestion of fatigue. He played always at high pressure. Now and then in periods of adversity, he would fly into a perfect passion with things in general. But, in the end, it was a sham battle, and we went on playing as if nothing had happened, only he was very gentle and sweet, like the sun on the meadows after the storm had passed by."

TROUT STREAMS HAVE BEEN CLOSED

Will Be Converted Into Nursery Streams By State

Six of Lake county's finest brook trout streams have been closed to fishing by order of the state conservation department following a hearing by Director John Baird on petition of local residents. They are Blood, Baker, Danaher, Jenks, Tank and Sweetwater creeks, all small, springfed streams, ideal for trout propagation. Lake is the first county in the state to provide nursery streams under the new law. Petitions covered only two streams, but at the hearing held here 50 or more "fans" present were so keen for protecting the speckled trout that Mr. Baird included the other four. Grills will be placed over the mouths of the streams this fall to prevent the large rainbow from entering and destroying the fry and small fish.

Members of the local commercial club planted in these creeks 222 cans of speckled trout fry furnished by the state from eastern spawn, a total of 600,000 fry.

Lake county has a closed deer season, but its sportsmen believe it does more to conserve fish and game than any other Michigan county.

The action taken by the sportsmen of Lake county might well be an example for the residents of Charlevoix and vicinity. It is an established fact that the number of trout in adjacent streams are diminishing each year and at the present rate will soon be exhausted.

In this county there are a large number of small streams which would make ideal nurseries for trout fry. Here the small fish would be safe from the fast high water found in the larger streams. Properly protected they would thrive and emerge into the large bodies of water when reaching the legal size.

Such action should be viewed by the Charlevoix citizens in the same light as building new streets or other public improvements. Our fishing is one of our biggest drawing cards, summer outing and fishing go hand-in-hand, and we should not overlook a bet than can very easily be taken advantage in an exceedingly profitable manner.

STORM SWEEPS NORTHERN MICHIGAN

Country Along Pennsylvania Line Hardest Hit

Northern Michigan was visited with another destructive sleet, rain and snow storm Sunday and Monday, which in some instances proved almost as disastrous as the big storm of February 21.

The storm started Saturday and continued with increased intensity all day Sunday and Monday, lasting up to about noon Tuesday.

The northern edge of the storm seems to have hit Charlevoix, as the damage reported further south is estimated in some places to be equal to the previous blow.

Cadillac and vicinity is reported to be hard hit, more so on account of that vicinity having just recovered from damage from the previous storm. South from Petoskey on the Pennsylvania line, few telegraph and telephone poles are left standing.

The damage is around Charlevoix is small compared with territory to the south and east. Telephone communications on some R. F. D. lines is impossible, but the damage can be repaired in a few days.

Altar Society Nets Better Than Hundred Forty Dollars

The St. Patrick's supper served in the dining room of the congregational church last Saturday evening by the ladies of the Altar Society of St. Mary's church was a great success.

A lovely chicken supper was served to about two hundred and seventy-five. The tables were attractively decorated with green candles and with green dolls as favors. White carnations and wandering Jew on the tables helped to carry out the St. Patrick's effect.

The Altar society netted about one hundred and forty-one dollars. Everyone that attended the supper reported that they certainly got more than their moneys worth.

FIX THE TIME IN ALL TOWNS

But the matter ought no longer to be left to local action, with all its uncertainties, and with some cities out of step with their neighbors both winter and summer. The time nuisance should be abated once for all by an act of the legislature prescribing some uniform system for the entire state. No plan would suit everybody, for some want to use Eastern time the year round, some Central the year round and some half-and-half. But there ought to be only one kind of time whether it suits everybody or not.

Since this is purely a question of individual preference, it is an issue peculiarly suited to a referendum vote. One person's preference is as good as another's and no better, so a count of noses is not only the simplest plan but also the fairest. There surely would be a majority for some plan or other, and whatever the majority want ought to be the uniform system for everybody.

POULTRY

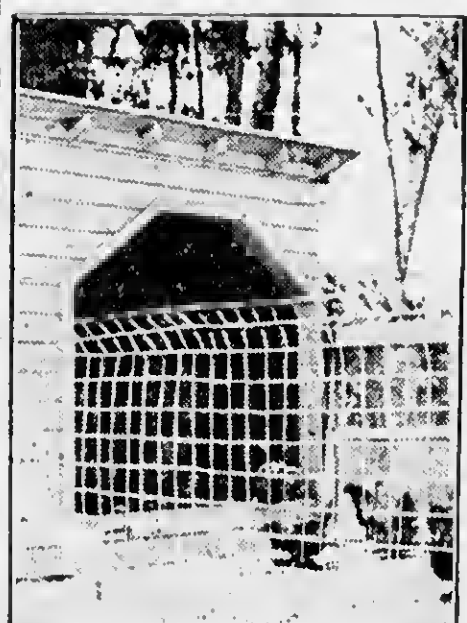

FENCES USED FOR CHICKENS

Cost of Equipment, Labor and Maintenance Is Increased Where Yards Are Divided.

Fences dividing the land used for poultry into yards increase the cost of equipment, labor and maintenance. There should be as few fences as possible, as land can be cultivated and kept sweet more easily if not fenced. The value, too, of fresh, sweet land for poultry can hardly be overestimated. A grass sward can be maintained on good soil by allowing 200 to 250 square feet of land per bird (217 or 174 birds to the acre), while more space is necessary on poor or light land. A larger number of fowls are usually kept to the acre where double yards are used, and the land is frequently cultivated.

Plymouth Rocks and the heavy meat birds in small yards require fences five to six feet high, while a fence six to seven feet high is necessary for Leghorns, say poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. The upper two feet of the fence for the latter may be lath or wire mesh at an angle of 30 degrees, or a strand or two of barbed wire may be used on top of the regular wire to help keep them confined, while it is sometimes necessary to clip the flight feathers of one wing of those birds that persist in getting out. It is not advisable to use a board or strip along the top of the fence, as hens will often fly over one so constructed.

Posts may be set or driven into the ground. They should be set right in ten feet apart for common poultry netting, or 16 to 20 feet for woven wire. Corner posts should be about eight inches in diameter and be set four feet in the ground, while intervening posts may be four or five inches in diameter and set three feet in the ground.

Difficult to Keep Yards Clean Where Fences Are Used.

Lighter posts driven into the ground may be used for temporary fences. That part of the post set in the ground may be charred or treated with some wood preservative to advantage, while corner posts should be firmly braced or set in cement.

HAGERMAN WELL RECOMMENDED

AS NEW COUNTY AGRICULTURAL AGENT

Leaves Washtenaw County After a Successful Year as County's Club Agent

The Grand Rapids Press in a recent issue says some very interesting things about B. O. Hagerman, Charlevoix county's new county agent. If Mr. Hagerman's work here compares favorably as with that done in Washtenaw county, we can pat ourselves on the back as having secured the services of an exceptionally good man for the position of county agent. The Press comments as follows:

After over a year's successful work as county club agent, B. O. Hagerman will resign from the Washtenaw County Farm Bureau on or about April 1 to accept the office of agricultural agent of Charlevoix county, in the lower peninsula.

Succeeding Ernest F. Lyons, who died September 1, 1920, Mr. Hagerman took over the duties of county club agent in Washtenaw January 1, 1921, and in the 15 months since has built up the rural boys' and girls' club to their present plan of efficiency. Mr. Hagerman came to Washtenaw from Houston county, where, for the year and a half prior to his coming here, he was supervisor of girls' and boys' clubs.

Previous to his work in Houston county he was engaged as assistant agricultural agent in Ottawa county. He is a graduate of the Michigan Agricultural college and has a background of practical farm knowledge, gained in several years of partnership with his father on their 380-acre farm in Hillsdale county.

In leaving, Mr. Hagerman pays a tribute to the children, teachers and parents in Washtenaw county. Without their help, he says, it would have been practically impossible to accomplish what he has.

Mr. Hagerman will succeed C. W. Wing, who has filled the position as agent for Charlevoix county for three years, with offices in Boyne City, Mr. Wing will accept a position with Oscoda county, with offices in Reed City.

No Club work has as yet been undertaken in Charlevoix county, says Mr. Hagerman, who has just returned from a survey of the northern part of the state. It will be his part of his duties to organize club work, inasmuch as the county employs no club agent. HOW BONUS BILL WOULD SETTLE UP WITH EX-SOLDIERS

The bonus bill would provide for immediate cash payments to veterans whose adjusted service pay would not exceed $50, and would give to other veterans the options of these four plans:

Adjusted service certificates, with provisions authorizing loans by banks in the first three years after next October 1, and by the government thereafter; the certificates to run for 20 years and to have a face value at maturity of the amount of the adjusted service credit at the rate of $1 a day for domestic service and $1.25 a day for foreign service, increased by 25 per cent plus interest at the rate of 4 1-2 per cent compounded annually.

Vocational training aid after Jan. 1, 1923, at the rate of $1.75 a day, the total payments not to exceed, however, 14 per cent of the adjusted service credit.

Farm and home aid under which veterans purchase or improve farms or homes would be paid after July 1, 1923, a sum equal to their adjusted service credit increased by 25 per cent.

Land settlement under which lands would be reclaimed under the supervision of a special board and farm units established for sale to the veterans at a price fixed by the board, less the amount of the adjusted service credit during the purchase.

In only two important particulars does this measure differ from the one passed by the house two years ago and then shelved in the senate last July. The original cash bonus option was eliminated and the bank loan provision of the adjusted service certificate title substituted.

ternational potato show were won by Charlevoix exhibits.

In order that potatoes may be certified they must, according to Mr. Hagerman, be grown under rigid rules of cultivation; must be sprayed at least five times each season, and must be rogued for diseases and outside varieties. Charlevoix county is situated in the midst of a rich potato-growing region, and in addition grows large quantities of fruit. Dairying and poultry raising are contributing factors to the farmers' incomes. Out of about 1,400 farms in the county, the bureau boasts a membership of approximately 600.

MICHIGAN FARM CENSUS PLANNED

AGRICULTURAL STATISTICS TO BE COLLECTED

Under New State Law This Census Will Be Taken Each Spring—Ask 37 Questions

Michigan's first accurate state farm census will be taken this year in accordance with an act passed by the 1921 legislature. The department of agriculture in co-operation with the federal crop reporting bureau is sending to every township supervisor or assessor and each city assessor, books providing for the collection of agricultural statistics. The work will be done by the supervisors and assessors at the time they list property for taxation. It will be an annual census.

This is an important step to improve statistical reports of Michigan, agricultural department officials say. More than three-fourths of the states in the Union now take such a yearly census. It will make available by the middle of the year nearly accurate statistics regarding Michigan crops and farm lands.

Thirty-seven questions will be asked of the farmers. The report is confidential and not for taxation purposes. This is to be particularly impressed on the farmers in order that they will co-operate in the work.

The total number of acres of all land on the farm is the first question to be asked, followed by how many acres are in corn, winter wheat, spring wheat, oats for grain, barley, rye, buckwheat, potatoes, clover and timothy hay, alfalfa hay, marsh to be cut for hay, other crops to be cut for hay, field peas (dry), field (dry edible) beans, soy beans (grown alone), sugar beets for sugar, cabbage, onions, other root and truck crops, mint, farm woodlot, other improved land, acres of crop land in pastures or lying idle this year, acres of clover cut for seed during 1921, timothy cut for seed during 1921, number of apple, peach, pear, cherry trees of bearing age, number of grape vines of bearing age, number of hives of bees, number of dairy cows all ages, number all other cattle all ages, number of sheep all ages, number swine all ages and the number of silos.

"A farm," according to a list of instructions to supervisors and assessors, "is all land owned or rented which is directly farmed by one person either by his own labor with the assistance of members of his household or hired employees." The farm statistics asked for are to be collected from every owner or occupant of three or more acres of land used for agricultural purposes, either inside or outside the corporate limits of a city.

The statistics asked on the number of hives of bees, cattle, horses, sheep and swine should be collected from every person assessed, the instructions say. Also the report should include not only what is already planted, but also an estimate of the acreage of crops yet to be planted.

The information is required to be delivered to the commissioner of agriculture not later than the first Monday in June. Most of the data probably will be on hand sooner than that, it is estimated. The figures will then be tabulated so that accurate statistics should be available by August.

Supervisors or assessors who refuse or fail to make this farm census are punishable by a fine of not exceeding $300 or six months in the county jail.

Late Friday afternoon the second round of games of the first part of Class C were played, Onaway playing Pickford and Charlevoix playing Harbor Springs. The close game was between Charlevoix and Harbor Springs the first half being 6 to 6. Harbor came back strong in the second half, winning 11 to 9, although at no stage of the game was it certain what the outcome would be, the game going with the breaks.

TAX COMMISSION SENDS J. R. SNODY

LAND CONTRACTS ARE TO BE PLACED ON TAX ROLLS

Prevailing Rate to Apply When Holders Neglect to Pay One-Half of One Per Cent Tax

James R. Snody, representing the board of state tax commissioners, who was in Charlevoix last Thursday, issued a warning to the Charlevoix county holders of land contracts to the effect that all land contracts on which no tax has been paid will be placed on the tax rolls by the assessing officers and taxed at the rate prevailing where the property is situated.

Under an act of the legislature, land contracts are required to be recorded with the county treasurer and a tax of one-half of one percent is paid once, which removes the contract from further taxation, in a like manner in which a mortgage is handled.

The tax commission has discovered that the holders of many land contracts have omitted to pay the required one-half of one percent, and have paid no tax of any sort, which is contrary to the statutes.

Assessing officers have been instructed to place every land contract on their tax rolls, and they will be assessed at the prevailing rate unless the holder of the contract can exhibit to the boards of review a certificate from the county treasurer showing the one-half of one per cent tax has been paid.

Later on in the year work will be done in the various townships under the supervision of Foreman Snody. A personal property expert and also a corporation special assessor will also later review local assessments, on behalf of the board of state tax commissioners.

ACCEPT NEW WATER SYSTEM

CHARLEVOIX TO ABANDON ITS PRESENT WATER PLANT

New System to Be Installed and Ready for Use By the Opening of Resort Season

Charlevoix's water problem has been finally solved and plans for an entirely new system, prepared by Hoard, Decker & Drury, experts on water systems was adopted by the council at its regular meeting last Monday evening.

The situation has been under consideration for several months. Plan after plan has been discussed, but until last Monday evening, no definite solution was adopted.

The new plans call for the installation of a filter gallery 500 feet long to be placed on the shore of the bay west and south of the station a considerable distance from the present source of supply. The pumping station with necessary pumps and equipment will be built in about the center of the 500 foot gallery, thereby drawing the water from each direction, thus greatly lessening the distance to lift the water from the well.

Upon the completion of the new plant, the old wells will be abandoned and pumping station and engine house removed with the exception of the electric receiving station. There will be no change made in the location of the water tower, and when the new plant is ready, connections will be made by the extension of the water mains practically without interruption of service.

Charlevoix's water supply has been a topic which has been under discussion since August of last year. The council has put forth effort to formulate plans which would definitely settle the question, and at the same time insure the people of the city that when the change was made, we will have an unlimited supply of water from a source that will meet the approval of all—both year round residents and the hundreds of summer people whom make Charlevoix their home during July, August and September.

In accepting the present plans, the council believes its decision will have the approval of every citizen of Charlevoix. They believe they have accepted a plan which calls for the least expenditure of money, and at the same time will result in a final solution of the water question. They believe the proposed change will result in a pure water supply of sufficient quantity to supply the city's needs for years to come, and one that will insure the welfare of Charlevoix as a summer resort.

To have the new plant in operation by the opening of the resort season will require quick action. The proposition will be submitted to the people within a short time at a special election, as funds must be provided to make the change. Plans of the new system are on file in the office of the city clerk. Look them over yourself—become acquainted with the details and actual necessity for making the change, and when you vote, vote YES.

WHAT OF THESE OLD MEN?

Congress enacted a law in 1890 requiring all heads of departments and independent establishments in the federal service to report each year to the secretary of the treasury the number of employees under them who were below a fair standard of efficiency. Every year this is done and the letters to the secretary of the treasury from the various departments and bureaus are printed in the book of estimates of appropriations compiled for use by congress in making up the annual supply bills. Congress never pays the slightest heed to these reports. They are made up year after year, but the inefficient are never fired.

For example, last year the chief clerk of the treasury reported 170 employees of the Treasury department as below a fair standard of efficiency. But nothing will be done about it. The Interior department reported 139 inefficient, and will probably go on reporting them till they die of old age. There are employees of the government in Washington who are totally blind and who are led from their homes to their offices each day and back home again in the afternoon.

I knew in 1920 one gentleman of ninety-two years who had been in the government service for seventy-two years. He was being paid at that time $900 a year. His maximum pay during his long service was $1800 a year. James K. Polk was President when this old gentleman came into the service. He was born on January 10, 1828. His father was a captain of the regular army in the war of 1812. After that service he led an active life in other occupations until 1818, when he died, leaving a dependent family of nine persons, three of them boys. It fell to the lot of one of them to be the chief support of the family.

It came to pass, then, that at the age of twenty he revolved through the influence of many friends of his father a small clerkship at the naval observatory, then under the superintendence of that accomplished officer, Matthew Fontaine Maury, whom he served as an assistant for ten years, accounting it a great privilege and pleasure to have heard Maury's voice dictating the words of sense and wisdom which make up the sailing directions, the wind and current charts and other publications issued from the observatory for the benefit of the world.

From a copyist at first, November 9, 1848, at $3 a day, the young man was advanced as follows:

July 1, 1853, clerk at $1,200 a year; July 1, 1854, clerk at $1,500 a year; July 1, 1870, principal clerk at $1,800 a year; December 6, 1911, clerk at $1,400 a year; May 1, 1918, stenographer and typewriter at $900 a year.

It will be seen that he was demoted in December, 1911, and again in May, 1918, to lower positions, involving less work and responsibility. These demotions were at his own request. In October, 1917, he received from the assistant secretary of the navy, Mr. Roosevelt, the following letter:

"I have to inform you that you have been granted leave without pay for six months beginning October 13, 1917.

"As you have been in the employ of the government now nearly sixty-nine years, and during all that time your record has been excellent, I regret that there is no way in which the department could continue you on the rolls with compensation.

"I desire at this time to express the appreciation of the department for your long and satisfactory service, and the hope that you will be so benefited by this leave that you can return and resume your duties at its expiration."

I talked with one of the cabinet officers about the old and feeble employees.

He said: "I don't know what congress intends to do about them, but I know what I intend to do with those in my department. I intend to leave them alone. They can stay here as long as they like, until some provision is made for them. When I was new in the department I dismissed two of these old people and demoted another, on the ground that they were super-annuated and inefficient and were a hindrance to the work.

"All three of them wrote me sad letters and promptly committed suicide. That was enough and more than enough for me. Never again will I disturb one of them. I do not choose to have it on my conscience that I pronounced sentence of death on an old man or an old woman in the service of the government. They can all stay on here as long as they like. I found them here and some of them will be here when I leave. If congress chooses to provide for them that is its obligation. But I will never sentence another one of them to self-destruction, no matter what the cost to the taxpayer and the government."

NO REWARD FOR LOYALTY

What can a man hope for who enters the government service as a career? Let us look at some actual cases. Here is the story of one as told by E. J. Ayers, chief clerk, Department of the Interior. He cites it as a case similar to that of many others in his department, and says there are many others who are in worse circumstances:

"The records of our department show that he entered the service as a laborer at $960 a year, after a service of three and a half years in the United States navy as a first-class fireman, with an honorable discharge. He has been with us for more than thirty-three years, and is sixty-six years old, and has given more than half his life to the service of the government.

"He owns a little property three miles beyond the Chesapeake Junction, and he gets up early in the morning, before daylight, and comes in to work and goes out after dark at night. Today he is getting $810 a year. He has raised a family of nine children—three of whom are now dead—eight boys and one daughter. His older sons are married and have established homes of their own. Two of his sons were in the military service in France, and his daughter, twelve years old, lives with her grandmother, where he is supporting, educating and clothing her.

"He is a white man, a very intelligent man, eminently qualified for this particular line of work. This wife is dead. He is his own housekeeper and he does the cooking and the washing and the ironing.

"His home was established in its present location because it was not thought practicable to raise a family in the district, and he bought a piece of property in Prince George's county three miles beyond the railroad terminal, which distance, as I said, he walks twice a day leaving in the morning most of the year before daylight, and returning home by dark. This small place consists of a shack and a few acres of land on which he has a mortgage of $1,000, and you can judge that he enjoys no conveniences other than the small house, which protects him from the elements.

"The house is divided into four rooms, the partitions being of paper tacked to the framework, there being no lath or plaster.

"The small stove standing in the center of the room he has used for more than twenty years, and the pot on the stove contains his Sunday dinner, which he has prepared for living self, consisting of white navy beans and fatback. Those beans are a good thing, but they are not good for a quart, and the fatback costs him forty cents a pound. It could have been purchased a few years ago for seventeen cents a pound, and the beans for ten cents. He does not get any fresh meat because he cannot afford to buy it.

"To my mind it seems a pity that the United States government should employ men of that type, or any other type for that matter, and not give them enough to live on decently. It is particularly a pity in this case because he is somewhat superior to many of the employees. He has stayed with us as a matter of faithfulness to the government, and has stayed with us when he could make more in one week outside of the government than we pay him for one month.

"Others have left us, but instances of that kind have been very few. At one time I had in our auditorium our employees and I made an appeal to them to stand by us during the war period, and there were more than 300 of them present, and they all of one accord assured us that they would stand by us and would give us the benefit of their labor in our department during the war period, notwithstanding the fact that the price for labor outside was a great deal more."

This curious pride in their work and loyalty to the government and the government service was a thing that cropped up in the most unexpected places.

As one employee put it: "I think you will find that every service seems to be quite proud of its work. I know you will find it in our service as far as compensation and such as that are concerned. The pay in this office is small, but that element, that feeling in a man's mind that he is really helping to accomplish good work and that pride is really what gets things done. I think that is true everywhere in the whole service, and particularly throughout the executive departments."

That is curiously true, and it is one of the reasons, possibly the chief reason, why men stay on in the department year after year at a low rate of pay and not much possibility of promotion.

Circulation counts—we have it.

THE VEXING PROBLEM OF A PURE WATER SUPPLY

Charlevoix as Well as All Leading Michigan Cities, is Facing the Same Problem

Filter Galleries

When more water is desired than a well easily furnishes it becomes necessary to extend the circle of influence of the well and secure a greater flow. This may be done by deepening the well, lowering the pump, increasing the size of pumps or driving additional wells, as the solution of the problem may indicate. A filter gallery attains the same result.

Where ground-water can be reached at moderate depths it is sometimes intercepted by galleries constructed across the line of flow. If these are placed at a sufficient depth they will evidently enable the entire flow of the ground-water to be intercepted. In form a gallery may consist merely of an open ditch which leads the water away, or it may be a closed conduit of masonry, wood, iron, or vitrified clay pipe, provided with numerous small openings to allow the entrance of the water. Unless constantly submerged, wood should not be used. Masonry and vitrified pipe are preferable to iron, as these materials are uninjured by exposure to water. If galleries are not covered, excessive vegetable growth is apt to occur which may injure the quality of the water.

Galleries are usually constructed in open trench. To prevent the entrance of fine material the back-filling near the openings should be of gravel of graded size, and as an additional precaution the openings may be made in the bottom only. Manholes should be provided to permit of inspection and cleaning. Galleries need be of a size only large enough to carry the estimated quantity, or in case trouble with sand is feared, large enough to permit of inspection. They are arranged to lead the water to the pump-well, and may be provided with gates so that the water may be shut off from various sections.

The cost of galleries is about the same as that of sewers in similar ground. It increases rapidly with the depth, but up to a depth of 20 or 25 feet it is sufficiently low so that the construction of galleries can often be advantageously undertaken. A gallery not only intercepts the water more completely than wells, but replaces the suction-pipe, it is more durable than either pipe or wells, and all trouble from the pumping of air is avoided.

As an example of their use for ground-water collectors, mention may be made of the gallery at Naples, Italy. The supply there is taken from a gravel stratum 10 to 13 feet thick, overlaid by 30 feet of clay. The gallery is 2,000 feet long. It was constructed in open trench and back-filled with gravel and clay. The yield is 38 million gallons per day.

Many cities in Holland secure their supplies from open ditches and galleries in the sand-lens. Amsterdam collects in this way about 10 inches out of a total rainfall of 30 inches per year. Other yields have obtained as high as 20 to 25 inches.

Galleries have been constructed at several places in the west for collecting water from the large deposits beneath and adjacent to the streams. Such are the older works of Denver and of Golden, Colorado and Eureka, Cal.

Tunnels or galleries are also sometimes run from the bottom of large wells for the purpose of increasing the yield. This method of increasing the flow is advantageous where it is necessary to lower the pumps and to concentrate the flow in a single well.

Wells and galleries are often constructed near streams for the purpose of getting all or a portion of the supply therefrom; and, on the other hand, it often happens that wells sunk near streams obtain much of their water from them when they are supposed to get it all from the opposite direction. In general the natural ground-water surface will slope towards a stream and until a well is pumped from, the water-level therein will stand higher than the surface of the water in the stream.

The city of Painesville, Ohio, has adopted this method of securing water from Lake Erie. Wooden galleries 500 feet long constructed close to the lake receive about 1,000,000 gallons per day. Galleries are also successfully used at Laredo, Texas, under a sandy island in the Rio Grande river.

Horizontal or Push Wells are tubular wells—pushed approximately horizontally into a water-bearing stratum, or under the bed of a lake or stream. They are forced into the ground from a trench by means of jacks braced against the opposite side. These wells have been most successful when extended out under a body of water. At South Haven, Michigan, three 6-inch Cocks wells with 30-foot strainers were pushed out 150 feet under Lake Michigan. The wells were 25 feet apart and yielded 1,250,000 gallons per day. Another similar plant at Crystal City, Mo., consisted of two 8-inch wells with 65 feet of strainer, extending 200 feet under the Mississippi river in a sand stratum 20 feet thick. The yield was 1,300,000 gallons per day.

Topeka, Kansas and Muskegon Heights, Michigan, secured supplies from filter galleries under the direction of the consulting engineer whose services Charlevoix has secured.

In clean sand it is sometimes possible to drive two rows of double or triple sheet piling five or six feet apart. The material between the piling is excavated to a depth of three or four feet below the water level with a drifter or clamshell. A backfill is made of a couple feet of clean gravel and a perforated sewer tile is laid on the gravel with the perforated half down. This tile slopes to a cistern or well at one end from which water is to be pumped. After placing, the tile is covered with gravel and finally a six inch layer of lean concrete is placed on the top and the trench back filled.

No surface water can enter thru the concrete top so all flow is slowly up thru the natural sand, then thru the gravel and into the tile.

Water from a filter gallery at Charlevoix would be similar in hardness to the present water. Providing the gallery is removed from sources of contamination the water would be safe. The guarantee of safety of water lies in its inspection and tests, after as scrupulous care as to cleanliness and neatness has been observed in the pumping plant and over the drainage area as would be expected in the collection preparation of any food. Chlorine should always be available, but its use in quantities offensive to the taste ought not to be necessary.

Think how much of their attractiveness is due to the homelike effect of the shingle roof. Try that on some of your friends. Four out of five will tell you the "nicest", "prettiest" houses they know have shingle roofs.

Any architect will tell you that the most attractive houses in the best suburbs of the big cities usually have shingle roofs. Any farmer will tell you that the most economical long-service barn roof is a shingle roof. And here in the Central West most of these roofs are laid with

"HALF CENTURY" BRAND WHITE CEDAR SHINGLES
Laid With Galvanized or Copper Nails

First, because White Cedar is the best "weather wearing" shingle wood. Second, because "Half Century" Brand Shingles are all "air cured". No rushing of these through excessively heated dry kilns that take all the life and strength out of the wood, making it curl and warp.

Third, because "Half Century" Shingles are always the right thickness. You won't find them splitting under the nails as will happen to a shingle that is cut too thin.

Fourth, because they are White Cedar they take any shade of stain or paint beautifully. "Half Century" Shingles live as long as their name. It pays to insist on having them for your roof. And remember this: "Half Century" Shingles outlast common steel nails by a long, long way. Be sure to use galvanized or copper shingle nails. All lumber dealers can supply you. Why Chevrolet Leads in Sales

Chevrolet New Superior Model is a completely modern, fully equipped car, built to deliver all the real service you can get from any automobile, at the lowest price for which you can get it.

In every line, people pay different prices for the same thing, or what is essentially the same thing.

You can hear an opera for from $1.00 to $50.00.

You can buy a square meal from 50c to $25.00.

You can take a ride for from 1-2c a mile to $2.00 a mile.

In this year of common sense, 1922, people are weighing values. They realize how much they have been spending for show, for vanity, and for non-essentials, and how they are making each dollar work.

That is why Chevrolet is first in sales of standard fully equipped cars

FUNERAL HELD MONDAY AFTERNOON

Charlevoix Loses Another of Its Pioneer Residents

Mary-Ann Moore was born in Hampshire, England, August 7th, 1866, and died at her home on Lincoln avenue, Charlevoix, Michigan, March 25th, 1922 from a paralytic stroke.

Mrs. Moore came to this country in 1876, and in 1880 moved to Charlevoix, where she has made her home since. Four years later she was married to Mr. Moore and to this union four sons: Joe, Walter, Dean of Charlevoix, and Leon, of Casey, Washington, and one daughter, Amy, now Mrs. Eri Babcock of Atlanta, were born, who survive her, besides her sister, Mrs. George Ager of Charlevoix, and four brothers, George Willis and Jim Willis of Charlevoix and Walter Willis of Wild, Virginia.

The funeral was held from the house Monday afternoon, Rev. H. R. E. Quant, officiating. Interment in Brookside.

HOUSE PASSES BONUS 333 TO 70

Overwhelming Majority is Recorded
When Voting Gets Underway

Amid scenes of wild disorder the house Friday passed the four billion dollar federal soldiers' bonus measure by an overwhelming vote of 333 to 70, or 64 votes more than the required two thirds. A two-thirds vote made necessary by the parliamentary procedure decided upon by house leaders for action on the bonus.

Party lines were shattered in the voting on the measure, as well as in the general debate. The Republicans voting for the measure numbered 248, while 84 Democrats and one Socialist voted for the bill. Opposing passage of the act were 42 Republicans and 28 Democrats.

During the four hours of debating allowed under the special house rule adopted for this particular bill 67 speeches were made, and were about equally divided between supporters and opponents of the bill.

The measure now goes to the senate where no time has been agreed upon for its consideration. The senate is now busy with consideration of the Washington conference treaties.

"I have taken eight bottles of Tanlac and have actually gained 40 pounds in weight and feel better and stronger than I have felt before in twenty-five years," says O. H. Mahaffy, of Nashville, Tenn. F. J. Fessenden. Adv. 131t.

SPENT EVENING PLAYING "BUNKO"

Friends Entertained at Home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jacobs entertained twelve of their friends and neighbors on Friday evening last at their home on Clinton street.

The evening was spent playing "bunko," after which a delicious luncheon was served. If you have never played "bunko" get a set of dice and try it. You will find it quite essential to be able to talk to the bones.

Honors of the evening were won by Mrs. A. J. Usher and Mrs. Sarah Emrey. One proved an expert player, and the winner of the consolation prize was advised to gain possession of a rabbit's foot. It might change her luck.

What is The First Thing

You Look for When you Buy a Petticoat?

If you have just purchased a new gown no doubt color will be the first thing that holds your attention.

If the last petticoat purchased did not give the service expected you are going to examine each garment carefully to see whether they are liberally cut, perfectly sewn and have a non-rip placket.

The closer you examine "Fitrite" petticoats the more satisfied you will be that they offer everything any woman could desire—and the prices are very moderate

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES.

Will Install Radio-Phone

East Jordan will have a radio-telephone for their high school, at a total cost of around $150. The announcement of this bit of news goes on to explain as follows: "Perhaps there are many people who do not understand the meaning of radio-telephone. For their information, it might be said that it is a sort of wireless instrument with a machine something on the principle of a phonograph but will give us such concerts as the Schubert, in the auditorium, coming direct from Pittsburgh, Detroit, Chicago or St. Louis; in fact the finest concerts within a radius of fifteen hundred miles can be heard by a whole audience almost as well as if they were in the concert hall of the big cities."

Hard Trip Over Ice

George Williams, of St. James, on Beaver Island, who was in Petoskey this week for a load of mail and supplies, is reported to have experienced trouble in attempting the return trip to the island. Mr. Williams made the trip over with a horse-drawn rig by way of Cross Village. On his return trip his horses are reported to have broken through the ice several times, not far out of Cross Village. He is said to have kept up the attempt to reach St. James but to have been forced to turn back and wait for colder weather, or opening of navigation. Williams carried a load of mail and supplies for the islanders. —Petoskey Evening News.

How To Run Pig Farm

Benton Harbor has started a municipal pig farm and writes to Lansing to inquire how a successful pig farm is run. Any farmer can tell them that—hire cheap labor, feed cheap corn, and sell the hogs at a high price. Of course one must take reasonable precautions and begin by living in a time of agricultural prosperity.

Remarkable Record

The state board of health reports that not a single case of sickness has been caused during the last two years by drinking water on trains or electric cars. It can't be possible that men have drunk no water, either, as we are certain some of the bottled stuff must require a chaser.

The North Side Circle of the Congregational church will hold a baked goods sale and serve lunches from 11:30 a. m. to 6:30 p. m., Saturday, April 8, at the Charlevoix Hardware Co.'s store.—adv. 131t.

AT THE MOVIES

Mary Miles Minter, supported by a large and unusually well chosen cast will appear here next Saturday and Sunday at the Palace Theatre in "Tillie," an adaptation of Helen R. Martin's famous story of the Menominee maid. Alan Forrest is leading man, and other roles are handled by Noah Beery, Lucien Littlefield, Lilian Leighton, Marie Trebol, Virginia Adair, Robert Anderson and Ashley Cooper. Frank Urson directed the production, a Realart release.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for all their kindness, help and beautiful flowers during the sickness and death of our darling Frederick Jr. White.
Little ray of sunshine,
Loaned to us of earth;
To our home a blessing,

Eyes so blue and cheering,
Like violets of the spring;
How our hearts are aching,
Since the Angels took him.

Rural Carrier Examination
The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination to be held at Charlevoix, Michigan, on May 13, 1922, to fill the position of rural carrier at Charlevoix, and vacancies that may later occur on rural routes from that post office. The salary of a rural carrier on a standard daily wagon route of 24 miles is $1,800 per annum, with an additional $30 per mile per annum for each mile or major fraction thereof in excess of 24 miles. The salary on motor routes ranges from $2,450 to $2,600 per annum, according to length. Separate examinations for motor routes and wagon routes are no longer held. Appointments to both positions will be made from the same register. The examination will be open only to citizens who are actually domiciled in the territory of the Post Office where the vacancy exists and who meet the other requirements set forth in Form 1977. Both men and women, if re-qualified, may enter this examination, but appointing officers have the legal right to specify the sex desired in requesting certification of eligibles. Women will not be considered for rural carrier appointment unless they are widows of U. S. soldiers, sailors or marines, or the wives of U. S. soldiers, sailors or marines who are physically disqualified for examination by reason of induty. Form 1977 and application blanks may be obtained from Mason

H. Rose, Local Secretary.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH NOTES

We are glad for a beautiful Sunday with clear sidewalks and the splendid way the people turned out to the services. It is a practical thing to have the habit of church-going and spend the Lord's day in a worshipful manner.

Next Sunday morning we will continue the "Call of the church in a World Program." "Go ye into the world" is a command whose boundary only has the great blue sky.

What country is foreign to God and what people is there whom his Son did not die for?

The Sunday School at noon each week on Lord's day will continue their zeal in attendance. We will work toward Easter Day and make this year's offering a record breaker. Rev. L. E. Lovejoy Stewardship Secretary for the whole country, writes that the Easter offering project has spread throughout the church like wild fire and will be an assured success. This church of course not be behind its peers.

Junior and Epworth Leagues are giving good satisfaction to their several workers. Even visitors commend the good work. Juniors ought to be in their place promptly at 3 P. M. and the Seniors at 6. The leader for the 6 o'clock this Sunday is Persis VanDerStreek.

The subject that the pastor will discuss in the evening service is "The Danger of Neglecting Christ." We neglect prayer, the bible, worship and service. Does that mean you?

Shall there be many or few who attend prayer meeting on Thursday night? Does the ringing of the bells make you think you would like to go? Why should others need prayer and you neglect it. Come to Prayer Meeting Thursday.

Barnard services will be held with Sunday School at 1 p. m. and preaching at 2 P. M. Mrs. George Block teaches the primary, Mrs. Will Burns has a splendid class of intermediates. Mrs. Peter Block is the leader among the Juniors and Mr. Will Burns takes charge of the Seniors. The whole school is efficiently presided over by Brother Frank Matchett.

B. Y. P. U. NOTES

Last Sunday evening our topic was, "Our work in South China" which proved to be a very interesting and instructive lesson. Had a very good attendance and hope for more next Sunday evening.

April 2nd topic, Better Bible Reading, Deut. 6:1-9; 2 Tim. 2:15 Come out and help us discuss this very important subject. "There is a great deal of talk and always has been about the importance of reading the Bible. All this talk and writing is useless unless we practice. The best way and the only way to have better Bible reading is to read the Bible."

Marshall Foch: "The Bible is certainly the best preparation that you can give an American soldier about to go into battle to sustain his magnificent ideal and his faith."

We are planning a B. Y. P. U. Rally with the Petoskey Young People in the near future. Watch for further announcements.

We were disappointed not to see quite a number of our young people last Sunday evening, but we know that they are enjoying their well earned vacation from school.

Women's Emergency Committee, Near East Relief

1. Mrs. Philip North Moore. 2. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, chairman. 3. Mrs. Thomas G. Winter. 4. Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip. 5. Mrs. Josephus Daniels. 6. Mrs. George Maynard Minor.

These six women and over fifty others equally well-known nationally are making an emergency appeal to the women of the land to defeat the threat of death that hangs over the children of the Near East.

ARCHBISHOP HAYES ENDORSES NEAR EAST RELIEF

Archbishop Hayes.

His Grace, Archbishop Hayes, recently sent the following letter to Near East Relief: "I enclose check for five thousand ($5,000) from the Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of New York for the appealing Christian work of your committee. 'I am shocked to learn how terrifying are the present conditions in the Near East, especially in Armenia. A stop must be put by the Christian world to this reign of massacre, famine, disease and horrors of every description. All must help. I commend most earnestly the appeal of the Near East Relief to the charitably thinking and mercifully disposed people of New York and in particular to the Catholic portion of the community.'"

"Very sincerely yours, (Signed) 'PATRICK J. HAYES, Archbishop of New York.' National headquarters of the Near East Relief are located at 151 Fifth Avenue, New York.

WOMEN MEET CRISIS IN NEAR EAST RELIEF

Sponsor Lives of 25,000 Children to Keep Them From Starving.

Twelve million women in America are rallying to the cry of the starving children cared for by Near East Relief in Constantinople and Asia Minor. Lack of funds has forced the organization to make a 25 per cent cut in its orphanage appropriations during the spring months. When relief work is more seriously needed than at any other time during the year.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt has formed a Women's Emergency Committee of representative women from every corner of the land. The committee represents 12,000,000 American women, and they appeal to the motherhood of America to save the 25,000 children now under sentence of death because of the cut by Near East Relief. It must be a super-gift, the women say, and must be added over and over to whatever gifts their communities may have made during the year to the work of Near East Relief.

Mrs. Vanderlip a Witness—Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, recently returned from the Near East, says: "Galsworthy said that one of the striking American qualities is a deep adoration for all children. Not just one's own, but for every child anyone of us meets anywhere. When I saw the pale, thin faces, dumb, hopeless eyes and the emaciated bodies under the scanty clothes of the refugee children in the Near East I longed to bring home to the child-loving people here a poignant appeal for help to save their lives and restore childish peace to their hearts. The respect which knowing these people gives one, makes my desire to save these children on a serious recognition of the terrible loss the world will sustain if this fine population perishes."

Near East Relief officers estimate that if the women of the United States will keep 25,000 children alive it will be possible to meet the needs of the other 75,000 under American care and protection in the Near East.

Among the women who compose the Women's Emergency Committee that will make every effort to "finish the job" are:

RESULT OF CITY ELECTION

ALL FOUR AMENDMENTS WERE DEFEATED

But 424 Votes Cast in the Three Wards of City—Men Who Will Head City Government

The spring election of April 3 for Charlevoix is over and a post mortem reveals that only a small percentage of our citizens fully realized the importance of the numerous amendments placed before them.

Each of the four amendments met a most decisive defeat. It seemed that everyone had the habit of using the X on their ballot. Amendments that should have carried—which are of vital importance to the future prosperity of the city, met the same treatment as those of lesser importance.

In the three wards of the city but 424 votes were cast—some contrast from the number cast at the March primary. The vote plainly shows that not a third of the voters were interested in their own welfare to the extent of asking for information regarding the amendments.

Yet the city administration comes in for its usual share of criticism over the conduct of city affairs. Regardless of their efforts to conduct the business of the city in a manner it should be, their recommendations are turned down—in most instances on account of indifference shown by the voters themselves.

We honestly believe that if it had been possible to have vote NO in the city ticket, some would have done so.

The following men, however, were elected to direct the city affairs for the coming year:

Mayor, Arthur Bergeon.
City Clerk, Charles H. Lamphar.
City Treasurer, Elma H. Cook.
Park Commissioner, S. M. Rose.

First Ward
Supervisor, D. F. Meech.
Alderman, Robert Bridge.
Constable, Robert McDonald.

Second Ward

Alderman, William Marshall.
Constable, E. L. Johnson.

Third Ward

EASTERN MICH. GAN PROVIDES TOURIST CAMPS

Boards of Commerce in every part of eastern Michigan are being urged by the Huron Shore Tourist association to provide convenient camp sites for automobile tourists and to have these sites ready as soon as possible after the coming of spring. The step is in line with the association's efforts to entertain the visitors expected in that part of the state during the year.

The appeal carries a suggestion that every possible accommodation for benefit of the tourists be provided at the camp sites. Those out include avens and a good supply of water. It also is suggested that the boards appoint committees to obtain lists of places where summer tourists may find rooms and board. The lists would be kept at a central office in each locality.

Inquiries from prospective tourists are being received by the association in such large numbers that a prediction is made the total visitors for this year will surpass that of any previous season. The increased interest is said by association officials to be due in part to an extensive campaign of advertising being carried on in many parts of the country. In these advertisements the beauties of northeastern Michigan are spoken of.

3rd Ward 156 77

The continuance of this commission means that they have absolute control of all park grounds and city owned property designated for park purposes, regardless of the wishes of the common council. Their powers are such that they can stop any public improvements ordered by the council on lands designated for park purposes. The commission has been a menace to Charlevoix's advancement since it was authorized, and without doubt will continue so until abolished.

Proposition to Amend Section 5 of Chapter 24

The object of this proposition was to enable the city to assess each piece of property, according to benefits received, when public improvements are made:

	Yes	No
1st Ward	27	40
2nd Ward	70	120
3rd Ward	47	82
Total	144	242

The defeat of this amendment means that owners of vacant property on streets where improvements such as sewers pavements, etc. are being made, can be assessed only to the extent of 25 per cent of valuation. In other words, a lot on the assessment roll valued at $100.00 can be assessed for only 25 per cent of its valuation, which amounts to $25.00. The lot next door, with a house and other improvements, as—

SOUTHERN MICH. HIT BY SLEET STORM

Wires Down All Over Section With Detroit Isolated

A storm of rain and sleet which, for damage caused to telephone and telegraph lines, will rival the heavy storm of snow, rain and sleet of Feb. 21, hit southern Michigan Thursday last. Telephone company heads fear the damage will exceed half a million dollars. The storm went across Michigan from the east, going as far north as Flint. Grand Rapids appeared to be the most northerly point reached in the central part of the state. On the west coast the storm hit Manistee.

Telephone communication to the south was broken Thursday afternoon south of Howard City, at Bay City, south of Grand Rapids on the Chicago circuit, while telegraph wires south of Grand Rapids were also put out of commission. The Petoskey Western Union office reports one wire into Chicago, and none to eastern points.

Up to today telephone and telegraph communications has not been entirely resumed.

CUT TROUT CATCH LIMIT FOR NORTH

Conservation Move Ordered to Curb Activities of Angler Army

The limit of trout which may be taken from streams in the five northern row of counties in the lower peninsula has been reduced from 35 to 20 for a single day's catch and from 50 to 35 in possession at one time, according to an announcement Friday by the state conservation department.

This ruling covers the best trout fishing streams in the lower peninsula. It has been ordered by the state conservation commission in an effort to conserve the number of trout in Michigan streams.

According to statistics of the department millions of trout are taken from the streams each year and the number of trout fishermen has increased so rapidly during the past few years that a reduction in the limit has been decided upon.

The trout hatcheries for the state plan on planting more trout this summer than ever before in the history of the state.

The outfit will be of 1000 mile receiving range and with other appliances will be installed at their store on Bridge street.

Present indications are that several outfits of this kind will be installed here this spring, and that Charlevoix residents will be able to hear from all parts of the country by this method.

CUTTING TREES IS ILLEGAL

MUST NOT BE TOUCHED ALONG HIGHWAYS

State Highway Commissioner Calls Attention to New Law and Cautious Landholders

Many people are not aware that they cannot cut trees within the public highways without making themselves liable to a fine or imprisonment. In the extra session of the legislature of 1921, a law was passed making it a misdemeanor to cut trees or shrubs within the limits of the public highways in the State of Michigan without a permit from the authorities having jurisdiction over such roads. The State Highway Commissioner has jurisdiction in the case of State Trunk Line and Federal Aided Roads, and Commissioner Rogers is determined that the law shall be strictly enforced as far as such roads are concerned in which he has the co-operation of the State Department of Public Safety and the county highway authorities.

Some violations of this act have been noticed, due to land owners cutting trees along their frontage in ignorance of this law. It should be understood, however, that the law makes no exceptions and any land owner who cuts trees in the highway along his land is liable to arrest, fine or imprisonment.

Somewhat similar laws have been passed in other state consistent with a progressive conservation policy. The people, not only of Michigan but of the whole country, are beginning to realize that the conservation of our tree growth is a vital necessity and there is a strong sentiment for the planting and preservation of trees along the highways.

While trees add greatly to the beauty of a region, they are valuable to the land owners and to the public at large for many other reasons. Trees temper the climate and protect the land from washing; they give shelter to birds, the farmers' best friends; they serve as windbreaks to protect crops; they furnish fruit, nuts and other food products and when properly conserved furnish a perpetual supply of timber. They add shade and beauty to the highway and add value to the adjoining farm lands by making farm homes more attractive. This may be a sentimental value but it is none less real for it is well known fact that land with trees is more desirable for a home than land lacking this natural attraction.

Michigan derives a large revenue from the summer tourist traffic and the conservation of her tree growth is absolutely essential to retain and increase this tourist and resort business.

It is expected that this new law, which not only protects existing roadside trees but also authorizes the planting of desirable trees and shrubs will materially increase the beauty of the highways and benefit the public at large as well as the abutting property owners by making the state more attractive to residents and to the ever increasing number of people who spend their summers here.

CLOTHING FOR NEEDY CHILDREN

Who Will Help These Kids Who Need Clothes?

The attention of the Courier has been called to an instance where two children, a girl of seven years and a boy of nine years, are in need of coats and shoes.

The youngsters want to attend school regularly, but cannot do so on account of not having proper clothing and shoes. They are both deserving of help, but their parents have been unable to furnish them with the things they need in this line.

The boy and girl need coats and shoes. Who will help them? A pair of shoes, size 9 and 12 1-2, and a coat for each, is needed.

Leave them at this office or with Henry C. Cooper, or notify either of these mentioned and they will be called for.

North Side Circle of Congregational church will serve lunches at Charlevoix hardware, Saturday, April 8, from 11:30 to 7:00, 14tf.

A. L. Darbee Says Charlevoix County Has Tremendous Advantage in Growing Apples

Charlevoix county fruit growers and agriculturists have been given considerable publicity through the Grand Rapids Herald, in a series of articles from the pen of Frank M. Sparks. We reproduce below what they had to say about A. L. Darbee, local manager of the Taft Fruit Farm, believing it will be of interest to all engaged in this line of production. The Herald's article of March 1, follows:

In one great respect the fruit growers of Charlevoix county, as indeed most of the other counties in northern Michigan, have a tremendous advantage over the fruit growers of the older sections. This is that in Charlevoix county they have yet to find San Jose scale to fight. They must spray against bugs and worms and scab, but the scale which has brought havoc to fine orchards elsewhere has never yet appeared and the fruit growers have no intention of letting it appear.

The utmost care is taken that all new stock shall be free from the pest and they spray against it lest it might find its way in some manner. Therefore the men who have specialized in fruit growing in Charlevoix county have been great successes at it and are driving forward to still greater success.

One of the best examples of successful fruit growing in the county is the big orchard near here and which is managed by A. L. Darbee. It was in 1910 that a small stock company, chiefly of local men, was organized to set out a big orchard, with Mr. Darbee, a member of the company, as manager of the farm. In that farm Mr. Darbee put his all and he has worked night and day to bring success. How well he has succeeded is shown by the results of the last two years. On this orchard, only 10 years old, they picked and shipped 10 carload of apples in 1920 and last year about eight carloads.

The apple orchard contains 120 acres with 7,000 trees of nine varieties, which Mr. Darbee says is a few too many varieties. The wealthy has proved the heaviest yielder and is in greatest demand. The principal market is in Chicago, although Mr. Darbee ships to that market which careful observation shows pay the best price. Last year his heaviest shipments were to Springfield, Ill., where they had a failure of the local crop.

In bringing his trees into bearing so early and in increasing the yield to the proportions it already has attained, Mr. Darbee carefully cultivates between rows and sows to and sweet clover for a cover crop. But he also is experimenting just a bit and has some 15 acres growing in sod.

"I can't see," he says, "but that the trees growing in sod are doing just as well as those in the cultivated land, but this I find is true: The natural growth on the land in the sod section is not efficient to feed the trees, so I am not particular what that much is. I use almost anything that is handy. You will find a lot of cornstalks out there around the trees and that seems to be doing the business.

Mr. Darbee last year experimented a bit with boxes. All fruit growers here in the north hold that Michigan is a barrel state and that it is neither necessary nor desirable to pack apples in boxes as the western growers do. But Mr. Darbee decided to try it a little and now says he is sorry he did it, that the buyers do not want them, still preferring Michigan apples in barrels.

"We can't compete with the western growers in the matter of boxing anyway," says Mr. Darbee. "In order to pack in boxes as they do, it is necessary to go to school for about three months to learn the art. We haven't time to do that and beside in Michigan we sell apples and not boxes. We don't have to dress up our fruit in order to create a demand. Buyers can see and smell and taste our apples in the barrel."

Mr. Darbee sprays every two weeks from the first leaf to the middle of August but he sprays against bugs and worms and scab and has no worry about scale, codling moth and many of the other pests of other sections. He uses lime, sulphur and poison and sometimes a little tobacco for lice.

"Some seem to think that Bordeaux is best but I don't and so do not use it," he says.

HAVE UNIQUE WINDOW DISPLAY

Hamlin Bros. Window to Be Attractive One

As a follow up to their annual broom sale of Saturday last, Hamlin Bros. are planning on a unique and somewhat unusual window display for Saturday of this week.

During the afternoon Mont Withers' dog "Repeater" and her family of eleven puppies will be placed in the window of the store, which will be specially prepared for their reception.

This dog, by the way, recently broke the birth record of this section. About three weeks ago she gave birth to a litter of fifteen puppies, eleven of which are alive today. Her name, "Repeater," is a very proper one. If you should want further information regarding the dog's pedigree, ask Mont or Mike.

"Mike" believes in advertising. He believes "Repeater's" recent record should be known world wide. In placing the dog and her puppies in his window, he will attract the attention of hundreds of people. We wouldn't be at all surprised if something in the line of special prices would be offered.

At any event Mike's action will bear watching.

"FORTY-NINERS" MEET AT WILKINSON HOME

Birthday Dinner Given by Member of the Club

On Tuesday of this week Dr. and Mrs. Frank Wilkinson entertained at their home on Dixon avenue for Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Wilkinson the occasion being Mr. Wilkinson's 73d birthday. The guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. James O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred VanDusen and Mrs. Robert Trimble. An interesting feature of this dinner was that the men of the party and Mrs. Trimble were all born in 1849 and are known as the "Fortyniners."

This was one of a series of dinners given on the various birthdays of the members of the club.

The guest spent a very pleasant afternoon and were entertained with old music and songs by F. H. Wilkinson.

CHARLEVOIX IS RATED HIGH

AS A SUMMER RESORT AND PLACE TO LIVE

Tourist Camp of Vital Importance to Success of All Resort Towns—Meeting Well Attended

A joint meeting of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association, and the West Michigan Development Bureau was held in Press hall, Grand Rapids, on Wednesday last, with a good number present representing all parts of western Michigan.

The rumor of a merging of the two organizations which has been in the air for the past few months was soon dispelled when the meeting took the form of a round table talk, and friends of both organizations expressed themselves very forcibly as being opposed to the combining of the two organizations under one management, and a resolution was carried almost unanimously to continue both separate and distinct from each other, believing that the work of each would be much more effective in this way.

D. S. Day of Glen Haven, was elected president, William M. Connelly of Spring Lake, vice-president; and A. J. Maynard of Grand Rapids, treasurer. W. J. Tindall and Elmer Ingalls were named as directors for Charlevoix county.

A new outline for work in the future leading to developing of the fruit interests of western Michigan, and the packing and marketing of our fruits under the copy-righted trade mark of the Bureau, which is "Sunny Ripe," and under a Michigan pack, in special cartons, with the purpose of retaining the home market now being invaded by western fruit. Good active work along those lines of endeavor will soon put the Development Bureau in high favor and the matter of financing will become much easier.

The work of the Michigan Tourist Association has been very effective in building up and protecting the resort interests of Michigan as was shown by the reports of the secretary, backed up by the statements of Dr. R. M. Olin State Health Commissioner and others, who characterized the work of the association as both constructive and protective, and of great value to the summer visitors of Michigan, making it a pleasanter and safer place to live.

One hundred thirty-two resort towns were inspected last year and rated by this department, of which thirty-two were put in class A, twenty-five in B, fifteen in C and one in D. This information enables the association to help the clean towns get more business and the careless ones to mend their ways or suffer accordingly. Hotels, restaurants and boarding houses are rated in the same manner, and while the standing of our city as a whole is very good, yet there is always room for improvement, and the best possible rating is what will help Charlevoix to draw summer crowds.

The report of secretary, showed seventy-five thousand inquiries received last year from people seeking a location in which to spend part of the summer, and that personal letters or printed matter, when available, were returned. Fifty thousand copies of the road map of Western Michigan were distributed and proved a good drawing feature.

MEMORIAL HALL FUND REACHES FOUR THOUSAND

The community memorial hall fund has reached four thousand dollars. The committee has been well received by all, and has yet to receive the first refusal to the fund.

Everyone feels the need of a community hall, and now that it is taking real form are becoming enthusiastic as to what it will do for our city.

Do not despair, the committee will not forget you, just give the matter thought and be ready to enter your subscription, when called upon, as a second call requires time of the committee, which can be used to advantage elsewhere.

A common interest, with jealousy and dissension dispelled entirely in Charlevoix, is our goal. Let's all help.

Where Your Taxes Go

How Uncle Sam Spends Your Money in Conducting Your Business

READ LANE'S DIAGNOSIS

In his final report to the President, upon completing his work as secretary of the Interior, Franklin K. Lane sketched with a sure hand out of the abundance of his experience the present Washington condition:

The call is for thinking, planning, engineering, statesmanship. For we are quickly passing out of the rough-and-ready period of our national life, in which we have dealt wholesale with men and things, into a period of more intensive development, in which we must seek to find the special and the individual, until, whether that unit be an acre of desert, a barrel of oil, a mountain canyon, the flow of a river or the capacity of the human mind, we can conquer and to master—the same old task is ours; but not in the same old way. We have discovered this land and made it ours; but this is not the end of our journey; for now we are to give thought, the deepest thought, to the ways in which it may be made to yield most abundantly in the things which a complex society with a most imperious curiosity demands.

Washington is a combination of political caucus, drawing-room and civil service bureau. It contains statesmen who are politicians and politicians who are not statesmen. It is rich in brains and in character. It is honest beyond any commercial standard. It wishes to do everything that will promote the public good. But it is poorly organized for the task that belongs to it. Fewer men of larger capacity would do the task better. Ability is not lacking; but it is pressed to the point of paralysis because of an innumerable details and an unwillingness on the part of the great body of public servants to take responsibility. Every one seems to be afraid of everyone. The self-protective sense is developed abnormally; the creative sense atrophied. Trust, confidence, enthusiasm—these simple virtues of all great business are the ones most lacking in government organization. We have so many checks and brakes upon our work that our progress does not keep pace with the nation's requirements. We could save money for the government if we had more discretion as to how we should use that given us.

For the body of the civil servants there should be quicker promotion or discharge and a sure insurance when disability comes. For the higher administrative officers there should be salaries twice as high as those now given, and they should be made to feel that they are the ones responsible for the work of the department, the head being merely an adviser and a constructor of policies.

As matters are now, there are too few in the government whose business it is to plan. Every man is held to detail, to the narrower view, which comes too often to be the department view or some sort of parochial view. We need for the day that is here and upon us men who have little to do but study the problems of the time and test their capacity at meeting them. In a word, we need more opportunity for planning, engineering, statesmanship above, and more fixed authority and responsibility below.

The employment methods of the government could be improved. Under the civil service law of 1883 a good system of competitive examinations and appointments on merit has been built up for the classes of positions covered by the law. But beyond certification by the civil service commission for appointment of those applicants who are proved by examination to be eligible, the merit system is not fully operative even in connection with the positions to which it applies. Haphazard practices in assignments of work and in promotions, over which no central authority has jurisdiction, have brought about inequalities which are discouraging to the workers. This condition and the relatively low salaries paid by the government cause a "turnover" in government forces that could not long be withstood by a private business.

The readjustment of government salaries in the District of Columbia has recently received the attention of the joint commission on reclassification of salaries, which was authorized by a provision in the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation act approved March 1, 1919. The report of this commission is now in the hands of congress and its fate remains to be seen. The report represents many months of work and an effort to present data which will enable congress to understand conditions as they exist.

The present civil service law was enacted to correct the evils of the "spoils system" which had become intolerable. That the plan provided by the law, that of appointments through competitive examinations for certain positions, has been a vast improvement over the old patronage method is generally conceded; but the law failed to be a completely effective instrument by not providing for the application of the merit system to the more responsible and, therefore, the more remunerative positions.

The administrative offices, aside from the cabinet, which do not come within the scope of the civil service law, are postmasters at offices of the first, second and third classes, collectors of internal revenue, collectors of customs, registers, receivers, and surveyors general of the land office; assistant treasurers, surveyors, special examiners, appraisers and naval officers in the customs service; superintendents of mints, assayers in mints, supervising inspectors in the steamboat inspection service, commissioners of immigration and naturalization, assistant secretaries and heads of bureaus of the departments at Washington, etc.—about 15,000 positions in all.

NIX.

JUST KEPT GROWING

The origins of these antiquated, cumbersome, costly, inefficient pieces of the national machinery that we call the executive departments show how any establishment if well watered with government money will expand and hold together, no matter how conflicting and incongruous its functions. Hardly one of these great business establishments—for that is what they are—was planned. As they are today they just happened.

Take the Department of Agriculture, for example, one of the greatest and most complex and widespread of all the departments. It is in closer touch and more directly affects the greatest number of people in the United States than any other branch of the government with the possible exception of the post office. It began in 1839 with an appropriation of $1,000, taken from the patent funds for the distribution of free seeds and the collection of agricultural statistics by the patent office, then a bureau in the State department. Now look at the department. It is all over the place.

The title of the department indicates its most important field of activities, but its functions have been extended to include the whole range of rural industry and some branches of administration only very indirectly related to agricultural interests. For about 60 years subsequent to the revolution the general interests of agriculture were left almost entirely to individual initiative. Federal activity was confined to relatively narrow limits and was merely sporadic. Soon after the national government was organized some attempts were made to establish a bureau of agriculture; but neither the first proposal in 1796 nor a second effort in 1817 was successful.

Shortly after the Revolution, following the example of Benjamin Franklin while in England, as agent of the colony of Pennsylvania during the years 1764 to 1775, American consuls and naval officers began the practice of sending home foreign seeds and cuttings for new crops, and of aiding in the introduction into the United States of new breeds of domestic animals. Even such small governmental participation was, in the beginning, rather extra-official.

In 1836 the commissioner of patents, one H. L. Ellsworth, began the distribution of considerable quantities of seeds and plants received from government representatives in foreign countries; and three years later through his influence an appropriation of $1,000 was made for the purpose of procuring and distributing seeds of new plants, carrying agricultural investigations and collecting agricultural statistics. This was the historic beginning of the much-talked-about free seed distribution.

By an act of congress in May, 1862, since generally called the organic act, the activities of the government affecting agriculture were placed under a separate and distinct organization known as the Department of Agriculture. In charge of a commissioner of agriculture. It did not rank, however, with the other executive departments, and the commissioner was not entitled to a seat in the President's cabinet. Isaac Newton, chief of the agricultural section in the patent office, was appointed the first commissioner of agriculture. Other officers provided by the organic act included a statistician, a chemist, an entomologist and a superintendent of the propagating garden and experimental farm.

The chrysalis was now ready to be broken. In 1889 the Department of Agriculture was elevated to the rank of the other executive departments and its commissioner was made secretary of agriculture with a seat in the President's cabinet. This was in Grover Cleveland's administration. In honor of its new rank a few more functions were taken on.

Not that's enough detail. It kept on growing. Beginning with an appropriation of $1,000 and two or three clerks, the department had, in 1910, employees to the number of 12,490, and an appropriation of $12,995,000. Five years later the appropriation had grown to $19,865,832 and the employees to 16,223. The employees in May, 1920, numbered 18,008 and the appropriation given by congress for the fiscal year 1921 was $31,475,368.

The department has increased its cost of living in 82 years from a mere $1,000—that is, $43.33 a month—to more than $31,000,000 a year—$2,622,947.38 every month. That shows as clearly and as sharply as it can be shown how the high cost of government living affects your own cost of living.

We, you and I, paid out of our savings and earnings every red cent of that increase from $1,000 a year to more than $31,000,000. It may have been well spent. We probably got a run for our money; but nobody knows, except in a general way. We have a right to know. It is simply fatheadedness on our part not to find out.

We have a number of bicycles, all new, that we will sell at bargain prices. See us before buying. Lake-way Garage, Block & Burns.—adv. 131f.

RESULT OF THE CITY ELECTION

essed at $1000.00, can if the expense of proposed improvement warrant it, be assessed for $250.00. In each instance the benefits derived from the improvement made are identical yet vacant lot owners can be compelled to pay but a small proportion of the cost of improvements made, yet receives the same benefit as the owner of improved property. In every instance where these improvements have been made, the city at large pay out of the general funds the shortage thus caused from not being able to compel the owner of vacant property to pay his just share. And the people howl about their taxes and deliberately turn down a proposition that means a reduction in their taxes.

Proposition to Amend Sections 5 and 9 of Chapter 30

If this proposition had received a favorable vote, it would have resulted in a slight increase in taxes, also increasing the sinking fund, used to pay off the bonded indebtedness of the city:

	Yes	No
1st Ward	22	44
2nd Ward	63	133
3rd Ward	40	95

125 272

The object of this amendment was to provide sufficient funds raised by taxation to meet the current running expenses of the city and at the same time provide enough in the sinking fund to pay off bonded indebtedness. No city can prosper if its fails to meet its obligations, and the only way to meet these obligations is to raise money by taxation to pay them. This has not been done in the past. Bond issues sold twenty years ago remain the same today as the day they were sold. Interest has been paid on these bond issues to an amount more than the original bond issue. Is this good business? But the raise in the assessed valuation of Charlevoix inflicted by the state tax commission will take care of this matter, regardless of the defeat of the amendment.

IS CHAMPION TREE SPRAYER

the fruit grown on this big farm, however. Mr. Darbee also has 700 sour cherry trees from which two years ago he picked $6,000 worth of cherries. He recently has set 300 cherry trees but says these do not pay, that the only demand for these comes from resorters who like to stop at the farm and buy a few to eat. He has 850 plum trees which pay fairly well, but it is the apples and sour cherries that he finds his best cash producers and as the apple trees make more age and so become heavier yielders he expects to find a real success.

Mr. Darbee is a very quiet man. He has little to say but he can and does work. He believes that anything worth having is worth working for and he sets the example by working from early morning to late at night and working so fast that it is said he can walk ragged any man who seeks to follow him in spraying season.

But he has made a success. His orchard is young yet but it is bearing well and gives evidence of giving a heavy yield when the trees have attained some age. Then will come the return for the money invested and for the hard work done.

AUTOMOBILE SPEED
Speed regulations is found to be less simple than it used to appear. As in the case of many other kinds of legislation, the laws often fail to accomplish their purpose.

The most obvious fact about automobile traffic in cities is that, for the sake of safety, cars should move slowly through busy streets. Yet as soon as they are made to move slowly, there enters an efficiency engineering problem. The more deliberately they proceed, the more cars there are on a given stretch of street at a given time, and the more traffic is crowded. This crowding in itself makes additional traffic troubles and dangers.

Another fact not always recognized in this—that the rate of speed may be of less importance than the care and skill of the driver. A car driven by an incapable or reckless person may, be more dangerous at 15 miles an hour than the same car driven by a competent and conscientious driver at 25 or 30 miles. Admittedly the faster a car is going the harder it is to control, but the fact remains that rapid driving is not necessarily careless driving, as many a good citizen will testify.

Cities, therefore, while making every effort to curb the careless and criminal driver, are finding it more necessary to recognize the two facts mentioned, and make some kind of compromise. Traffic rules theoretically ought to be perfectly definite, and yet in practice it is often found wise to allow a considerable amount of flexibility.

In some cities automobilists, by open or tacit consent, are given a margin of several miles an hour over the strict legal speed limit, of which they may avail themselves on streets where there is little traffic interference, or at any time and places that reduce the danger. Thus traffic is kept moving and the driver themselves are accommodated. Drivers are held to a moral accountability, with legal technicalities invoked only when there is evidence of real carelessness. This policy will work just to the extent that automobilists show themselves morally responsible.

Business Will Be Continued by Lemieux and Pearl

After conducting the business under lease, formerly owned by E. V. Madison, during the winter months, Hime Pearl and Phillip Lemieux closed a deal the first of the week whereby they become owners of the stock and fixtures.

They have entered into a three year lease with Mr. Madison, and will continue business at the old location. The boys have enjoyed a fine business during the winter, and will stock heavily within a short time for the summer trade.

John McCall, 110 E. Upright Ave., Charlevoix, says: "My kidneys were weak and irregular in action and were sore as could be. TEMPLE PLAYERS GREETED BY CROWD

Masonic Temple Filled to Capacity Monday Evening

A full house greeted the Temple Players at the Masonic Temple, Monday evening, invitations having been issued to Masons, Stars and families to enjoy an evening of amateur vaudeville.

After several popular selections by the orchestra, consisting of Miss Doris Vincent and Messrs. Glenn Kirby and Robert Bridge, the entertainment opened with "A Bert Williams act by Leo Carcy."

Second, Clarence Hanshaw and Ralph Coulter created a little diversion with a bottle of "hootch" and jokes on local residents which may or may not have been good—the sound of the entertainer's voices failed to penetrate to our corner.

Leon Taylor's "Leave Me With a Smile" and genial good humor won him some applause and he favored the audience with an encore of "Wabash Blues."

In the fourth number, Warren Kibbe was introduced by Everz Nordrum as "Thurston" the magician. His tricks were clever although his black covered table solved many of his mysteries to the delight of the audience.

This was followed by two songs and a guitar solo by Glenn Kirby which was encored several times. Last on the program was Bert Carey as Bud Fisher, in a cartoon act, which though amusing was a bit overdrawn.

Miss LaRue Davis, of Chattanooga, Tenn., only weighed 76 pounds. After taking three bottles of Tanlae, she now weighs over 100 pounds and is enjoying the best health. F. J. Fessenden. 14tl.

The product of the Sinclair Oil Company will be used exclusively. Announcement of their opening will appear in these columns at a later date.

AFTERNOON BLAZE SPECTACULAR ONE

Fire From Unknown Source Badly Damages Easton Home

The house owned by Mrs. Hugh Easton on Antrim street was badly damaged by fire Tuesday afternoon, almost the entire upper structure being destroyed.

The lower part of the house was occupied by Emerson Hull; Mrs. Easton and a family by the name of Hosler were living in the upper part.

The source of the fire is unknown, but the greater part of the back end and second story was destroyed and the front of the house was partly destroyed by fire and water. Most of the furniture was taken out unharmed.

SPRING FESTIVAL A GREAT SUCCESS

Crowds Attend During Afternoon and Evening

"The Spring Festival," which was given by the Mary Brewster Circle at the Lakeside Pavilion last Friday, was a great success, both financially and socially.

Those who did not visit the "Congress of Beauties" missed it. All the booths made a fine appearance, especially the Japanese, apron, flower, candy, hambug, baked goods and coffee booths. Not forgetting "Mutt and Jeff Doughnut Factory." The young ladies went to a lot of work, but were well repaid for it. The chop suey supper was well patronized. Everyone enjoyed themselves.

Entertained With Dinner Party

Miss Wilma Stevenson entertained last Tuesday evening with a dinner party at her home on State street. A general good time was enjoyed by the guests who included the Misses Leone MacNeill, Alice Schweitzer, Mary Newton, Irene Holecbeck and Olive Nixon.

Plant More Trout Fry

Thirty cans of brook trout fry received by the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club from the state hatchery at Oden Tuesday morning were planted in creeks adjacent to Charlevoix. This is but a small portion of fry expected by the local club this spring.

HOMES WANTED FOR CHILDREN

County Agent H. C. Cooper Asks People to Help

County Agent Henry C. Cooper has asked the Courier to assist in finding homes for three children left in his charge.

One is a boy, eleven years of age; another a boy twelve years of age, also a colored girl fifteen years of age. These children are in urgent need of homes and without a doubt will appreciate them when found.

This is but a part of the work of the county agent. Homes must be found for these children, if possible, or they will be placed in some state institution.

There are probably several families in Charlevoix county who could give any one of the above children a good home. They are all old enough to be of considerable help, and Mr. Cooper says they are deserving, and will make good if given a chance.

WELL REPAID FOR THEIR EFFORTS

Rebekah Dance and Supper Was Well Patronized

The dance given by the Rebekah lodge last Saturday evening was a great success both financially, as it netted them about sixty-five dollars and socially, as ever one reports a fine time.

Besides the dance with music by Jones Durance's orchestra, one of the big features of the evening was the maple syrup and biscuit which was served from 5 o'clock until the close of the dance. Besides these things there was a candy booth which was another attraction to the place. Altogether the ladies can feel well repaid for their efforts.

Miss Nellie Ingalls entertained about fifteen of her friends at the farm home of her parents at Marion Center, Wednesday, March 29th. The evening was spent in playing games; after which a dainty lunch was served.

She suffered intensely for several hours, but at present is on the road to recovery.

You can buy a square meal from 50c to $25.00.

You can take a ride for from 1-2c a mile to $2.00 a mile.

attention to it. In fact, it isn't useful as signal for anything at all, for not only are the children not ready to go in at that time but the parents are not ready to go out.

'Tis So Everywhere
A notable feature of a recent dance at Coldwater was that the younger set were taking up the older forms of dancing, and several such groups could be seen in the corners learning the old fashion steps. Of course, though, the center of the floor was overcrowded with the older set, learning the new steps.

No Killing Around Here
A Cadillac citizen who took a razor strap to some boys who were climbing the leaning poles in his back yard after the storm, explained, inhospitably, that "the boys refused to get down when ordered to keep away from the wreckage and he decided that if they wanted to get killed they couldn't have their wish in his yard."

New Process is Best
The old method of the pioneers in making maple syrup, writes Stanley Stone, of Hudson, in sending a consignment of this product to a resident of Detroit, "was to boil down in a big flat pan, then after it got to a certain point they poured it off, took this syrup and put it in a big copper bottomed kettle and cleaned it with the aid of fresh milk, eggs, etc. In the old days when the boiling down process was left to kids, various varnishes used to get into the syrup, and it sure needed cleansing. I got to talking with an old resident a while back on the merits of the new process of evaporation which guarantees a perfectly clean article free from all crows, airplanes and other winged and four-legged creatures, and he claimed that the only syrup that had the real true blue maple flavor was the sap boiled down by the old process and then you some of the product per the old idea, and it sure is fine."

HUNDREDS PLEDGE AID TO TOWNSEND

STATE REPUBLICAN LEADERS ENTHUSIASTIC OVER SENATOR'S RE-ELECTION CANDIDACY.

PRaise RECORD IN CONGRESS

Unit in Condemnation of Interests which Oppose Him, as Political Persecutors and Self-Seekers.

More than 600 men and women, leading Republicans representing practically every county of the state met in Detroit last week, and, in a gathering marked for enthusiasm and determination hitherto unequalled, formally launched the campaign for the re-nomination and re-election of Charles E. Townsend, of Jackson, as United States senator from Michigan. The conference was held in the Hotel Statler on Wednesday, March 22. The accomplishments of Senator Townsend as a public servant, as set forth by the scores of more of leaders from all sections of the state who addressed the meeting, and as contained in the resolutions adopted by the conference, have written a record for the Jackson man seldom, if ever, surpassed in the history of the country, his friends declare. It is on this record of achievement that they propose to make the campaign for Senator Townsend, and unqualified confidence in his success was expressed on every hand.

Opposition is Scored.
A significant feature of the meeting was the unity with which the speakers denounced the forces which are seeking to bring about the defeat of Senator Townsend and it was frequently charged that the agitation over the Senator's vote on the seating of Senator Newberry was but the manufactured issue of the opposing party and of those interests which seek revenge for past defeats, rather than the welfare of the state and nation.

The list of speakers at the meeting reads like a roll call of the Republican leaders of the state. The first speaker was Milo D. Campbell, of Coldwater, candidate for governor in the campaign of 1920 and an outstanding figure in the Republican party for many years. Mr. Campbell was unqualified in his praise of the record of Senator Townsend and unhesitating in his condemnation of the Democratic party.

"There would be no opposition to Senator Townsend now had it not been for selfish ambitions," he declared. "The voice of Michigan is dominant in national affairs, with Charles E. Townsend as senator, and must continue so."

His Foes Against Treaties.

"It is significant to note that every one of the 30 senators who voted against the treaties resulting from the Washington conference on disarmament voted also against Senator Newberry, and that not one of the 46 senators who voted with Senator Townsend on that occasion opposed the treaties. This is nothing more than a plain parallel to the present dastardly attempt to besmirch Senator Townsend this early in his campaign."

Rep. Patrick O'Brien, of Iron River, was another speaker who gave his unqualified endorsement to the Jackson man's candidacy, declaring that if it were not for a slight support of an ex-serviceman candidate by the former soldiers of his district there would be no opposition at all to Senator Townsend.

R. J. McLean, of Detroit, chairman of the Michigan Deep Waterways Association, paid glowing tribute to Senator Townsend for his long and earnest work in behalf of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence river waterway to the sea. Other speakers from all over the state, and representing every class of voter, added their praise for the public service of the senator and declared their confidence in his renomination and re-election.

Women Enthusiastic.

A number of women leaders who were in attendance also expressed themselves and the various women's organizations they represented as being enthusiastic over the candidate's qualifications. These speakers included Mrs. Eleanor E. Gage, of Saginaw, Mrs. Mary Veenendaal, of Alpena, and several others.

The resolutions committee presented for the approval of the conference, a striking tabulation of the accomplishments of Senator Townsend. The resolutions, which were adopted by acclamation, included citations of his record in behalf of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway movement, his efforts for the furthering of the good roads program of the nation, on behalf of the bill authorizing the association of farmers for the joint marketing of agricultural products, the appropriation for the investigation and encouragement of the production of American sugar-beet seed, in every endeavor seeking the relief and welfare of veterans of the World War, for his "courageous and loyal stand in upholding the fair name of the State of Michigan when it was slandered, blasphemed and attacked by the Democrats, thereby finally, permanently and completely ending the most outrageous political persecution in American history."

LAST MINUTE ELECTION RALLY

Expected Tame Affair Turns Into a Lively Election Day

The regular election of township officers held here Monday and figured by a large percent of the voters of the township as being a tame affair by reason of there being but one ticket in the field developed an unexpected pick when Ralph Wilste came up on slips in an endeavor to retain the office of supervisor which he has held for the past year. Owing to the rain and the almost impassable condition of the roads a light vote was polled from the west and southwest sections of the township, the conceded Whitney stronghold, and as a result Mr. Wilste came within seventeen votes of tying with the regular nominee. Final results, Whitney 115, Wilste 98. The balance of the regular ticket was of course elected.

One-half of one percent was voted for highway improvement and one-fourth of one per cent for highway repairs. The township officers for the ensuing year will be Supervisor, H. H. Whitney; Clerk, T. E. Boss, Treasurer; H. S. Peebles, Highway Commissioner, J. H. Elzinga, Overseer of Highways, John Parson; Justice, E. J. Chellis and Member Board of Review, W. P. Smith.

National Emblems.

The rose, England's national flower, was chosen as the country's symbol at the close of the War of the Roses. The shamrock is firmly imbedded in Irish hearts because St. Patrick used it to illustrate one of his sermons. The thistle was adopted as the national emblem of Scotland because, in the reign of Malcolm II, a moat filled with thistles saved a Scotch fortress from Danish invasion.

High Cost of Dirt.

Tests made in England of men and women in factories working behind dirty windows and the same employees working behind clean windows, reveal an average of from 5 to 15 per cent more efficiency in the latter than in the former. This is because the dirty windows cut off a certain amount of sunlight.

BOYNE CITY CUTS SCHOOL EXPENSE

Slash Salary Schedule and May Have New Superintendent

At a meeting of the board of education last week at Boyne City it was decided to abolish the positions of physical director and penmanship supervisor, and it was voted to confine the teaching of domestic science and manual training to pupils of the fifth to ninth grades, with no credits allowed in the ninth.

The present salary schedule of teachers was cut $100 per year, but positions will be offered the teachers who are now employed, providing they are recommended by the Superintendent, at the salary now being paid.

The application of Supt. Metcalf, which called for $3,500 per year, was declined and he was not re-engaged. Two of the board favored the retention of Mr. Metcalf while three of its members sought a change.

Bogart Sells to Widdifield
James Bogart, who last week purchased the People's Wood & Coal Co. of G. C. Geiken, has disposed of it to Harry Widdifield, the deal being closed last Saturday. Mr. Bogart has again entered the services of the Argo Milling Co.

It will save your hands too!

HERE is a washing machine that does ALL the work—that not only washes the clothes, but dries them for the line! This washer can't break buttons or fasteners, because it has no wringer to crush them. This washer keeps the hands soft and white—because it makes it unnecessary to put them into the water.

Get the Laun-Dry-Ette, and let it save your buttons, your clothes, and your hands. Let us give you a demonstration of this electrical machine which does the most work for you with the least work by you.

EASTER MESSAGE

By Meyer A. Madsen

To those who believe in immortality, in a resurrection, and in eternal life, Easter has a deep and solemn significance. Easter has a message that is peculiarly its own. It also has a promise that is found nowhere else throughout the celestial calendar of coming eternity.

Easter comes with a message and with a hope that break through the deepest despair and gloom. It comes with a solace and with a comfort that are healing to the broken heart and to the soul in distress. As the first Easter sunrise long ago drove back the deep dejection of the Master's faithful followers, so does today's Easter morn'g light up the world and shows us where the Lord lay—calls us to look through the tomb's open door into the eternal life beyond. Easter speaks to every soul, and it brings a promise alike to all.

The Disciple's faith is founded upon the belief in Christ's resurrection, and of the resurrection of the soul of man. This belief has been the world's best asset and the most potent force in civilizing and humanizing mankind. It has made us stronger, braver and happier. It has bridged across the gloom and silence of the grave and made it possible for us to bear our grief and sorrow for our dead. We dread the thought that death destroys our earthly ties and loves, and we cling to the belief and hope that death is but the morning of a new and brighter day—that a love's farewell is only for the night and until we too awake in eternity's new day.

Easter's message is a message of hope, and it bids us take courage and keep a firm grip on our faith in immortality.

"And entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed in a long white garment; and they were affrighted. And he said unto them, Be not affrighted: ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: he is risen, he is not here: behold the place where they laid him."

PASSING OF WATER BOND ISSUE OF VITAL IMPORTANCE TO CHARLEVOIX

Future Prosperity of City Depends Upon a Safe and Sufficient Supply of Water — Public Mass Meeting at Court House, Friday Night

At the last session of the City Council a final definite decision was made regarding the measures to be taken to perfect the Charlevoix water supply. The people of this city are to be congratulated in having city officials who have stood firm and steadfast in a purpose to arrive at a sound and business like determination of a vexing and troublesome matter. The City Council has gone quietly and coolly forward in the face of conflicting opinions, criticisms, influences, and sometimes unjust charges of inaction. Its members were bound that the final result should be backed by conservative judgment and mature deliberation. Once a final decision was made, they were ready to stand behind it to a man and put it before the people for their consideration.

It should be profitable now, to strip the question of all verbiage and entanglements, and look at the bare facts. At the outset, the Council went thoroughly into an investigation of the present source of supply. It watched the analysis received from day to day. The advice of the State Department of Health were carefully considered. It was advised that a slight chlorination should be made as a precaution. It instilled the necessary apparatus for this purpose. It was discovered that the claimed contamination was intermittent. It was also discovered that no authority could determine to a positive certainty the source of supply to the present well. Believing that the situation demanded the advice of expert engineers, the council called Prof. W. C. Hoad of the University of Michigan for consultation. Prof. Hoad made two visits to Charlevoix and presented a complete and exhaustive report which is now on file with the city clerk where it may be read by anyone interested. It should be read by all of us.

Then came the question of deciding whether the present well should be retained or a new source of supply secured. The council listened to every suggestion available. It examined letters and comments from summer residents. It sounded out public sentiment and secured the opinions of our own citizens and taxpayers. The conclusion was irresistible that no matter how pure and wholesome the present supply might prove to be, in the minds of many there would still be a suspicion, a fear of a recurrence of difficulty of last season. In short, the plain fact was and still is, that the present supply was condemned in the minds of so many people that it became the clear duty of the council to see what could be done toward obtaining an entirely new and independent supply.

Right on top of this, there came the opinion of engineers that it was unsafe for a city of the size of Charlevoix to rely upon one well. That even though the present well was to be continued in use, an additional well should be built. In this situation, three propositions were presented. One was to sink a number of deep wells. Another to take the water from beyond south point. Still another, to install a filtration system similar to but an improvement over our present system.

The deep well plan was found objectionable for several reasons. It was learned that the City of Petoskey had abandoned its deep wells and was installing the filtration system by the use of shallow wells, and that the quality of the water was much improved, and not so hard. Major Rich of the State Board of Health and Prof. Hoad showed the Council that the water obtained from deep wells in this section was so

DRY LAW MADE MORE BINDING

House Bill Provides For Deportation of Alien Violators

After a bitter "wet and dry" contest, the house passed and sent to the senate Wednesday of last week, a bill providing deportation of aliens convicted of violation of the narcotic and prohibition enforcement act.

A vote by roll call was demanded on its passage after the house had rejected 112 to 54 a motion by Representative Walsh, Republican, Massachusetts, to send the bill back to the immigration committee reporting it, with instructions to eliminate the section permitting deportation of aliens convicted of violating the law in state courts.

CLEAN-UP WEEK SET FOR MAY 1-6

VANDERCOOK ASKS STATE TO JOIN IN CAMPAIGN

Says Statistics Show That Fully 75 Per Cent of All Fires Are Due to Carelessness.

In a statement issued Monday, Col. Roy C. Vandercok, commission of public safety, calls upon the people of Michigan to observe "Clean-Up-Week" May 1 to 6, in order that "greater results along fire prevention lines, may be obtained. Vandercok's statement follows:

"Each year we enjoy a week which is designated by the state fire marshal as one which the people of Michigan shall observe by a general cleaning up of their premises.

"Statistics show that 75 per cent of the fires are due to carelessness. Last year there was $12,000,000 property loss, accounting for over 12,000 fires. There were 69 school houses, 59 churches, 29 hotels, 16 theatres and 15 hospitals on fire last year and 30 people were burned to death. Defective heating plants and chimneys caused 1,809 fires, gasoline and kerosene 579, and the careless use of matches and smokers contributed 1,191 fires.

"Let our people observe Clean-Up Week by removing all rubbish and inflammable material from their homes, factories and all public buildings. See that the local authorities give special attention to fire regulations, and where necessary install additional fire fighting apparatus. Cause fire drills to be conducted in all public and private institutions, factories, schools and let teachers instruct their pupils in fire prevention.

"The people of Michigan have to pay this tremendous fire loss of $12,000,000. By their earnest cooperation the citizens of this state, can obtain greater results along fire prevention lines.

"Therefore, I urge most earnestly that everything possible be done to minimize the danger of fire, lessen the fire hazards, reduce the loss of life and property of Michigan."

REMAINS IDENTIFIED AS MRS. GREINER

Missing Woman Had Wandered About For Several Months

The Detroit Free Press of April 11, contained the following item dated from Harbor Springs. An unidentified woman, giving the name of Stella Schultz, arrived in the village Saturday, looking for work. The village marshal provided her with a night's lodging and during the night she was taken sick and died. More than $100.00 was found in her purse.

Later investigation revealed that the woman was Mrs. Louie Greiner, wife of Louie Greiner, living in Mar- ion township, who had left her home some time ago. Search had been made for her, but no trace could be found. She had evidently roamed from place to place, under the name of Stella Schultz, and for a time had been ill in the Petoskey hospital.

LAST NUMBER LECTURE COURSE

SIDNEY LANDON AT M. E. CHURCH TUESDAY

Impersonator of Great Authors and Interpreter of Their Works — Spoken of Highly

Sidney Landon, impersonator of great authors and interpreter of their works, will appear here as last number on the Lyceum course at the Methodist church Tuesday evening. He has found that the only way to know celebrities and receive their inspiration is through personal contact or by studying their lifetime surroundings. With this in mind, he has interviewed relatives and friends of Longfellow, Poe, and others, securing intimate touches that are given realistic interpretation in the Landon entertainment.

Many of the later writers, such as F. Hopkinson Smith, Mark Twain, and James Whitcomb Riley, Mr. Landon knew personally. Others, in both England and America, he has learned to know through visits to their former homes and libraries.

Mr. Landon, with wigs, grease paints, and a precisely vivid imagination, impersonates Victor Hugo, Longfellow, Thackeray, Poe, and other literary lights.

He recently made a tour of one of the big Redpath Chautauques circuits and everywhere the Landon entertainment was enthusiastically received and hailed as one of the big attractions of the entire Chautauque.

WILL DISCUSS WATER PROBLEM

Mass Meeting at Court House Friday Evening

A public mass meeting has been called for Friday evening of this week at the court house, to discuss the various angles of the proposed water works extension bonding issue. Speakers familiar with the subject will carefully go over the matter and explain any feature of the proposition that may be asked of them. Questions not understood will be answered. Members of the council will have the meeting in charge, and the room should be packed to capacity.

It must be remembered that right at the present time Charlevoix is facing the most serious problem that has ever confronted. A sufficient supply of pure water must be provided for if we expect continued prosperity and growth as a resort. It matters little what our private opinion may be—we must satisfy the people who come here summer after summer, many of whom are waiting for the solution of the water question before they renew their leases and make reservations for the coming season.

Every property owner and voter in the city should attend this meeting.

AMERICAN LEGION CABARET SUPPER

Held at Beach Hotel, Wednesday Evening, May 3

The third annual cabaret supper under the auspices of Leslie T. Shapton Post, American Legion, is scheduled to take place the evening of Wednesday, May 3, at the Charlevoix Beach hotel.

This is the annual event staged by the Legion boys that is eagerly looked for by all, and without doubt this year, as in past years, those in charge will have their hands full taking care of the people who attend.

Many special features will add to the amusement of the evening, which will be announced as soon as definite details are arranged. It is needless to say, however, that there will be something doing every minute.

The money derived from this event will be added to the Community Memorial Fund. This is one of the important events of the season and every citizen of Charlevoix should attend.

To Telephone Users---

A Giant Cut The Wires

Our entire long distance wire system in southern Michigan and many of our smaller exchanges was crushed and wrecked in the sleet storm a week ago.

Every city suffered, even those not touched by the storm, because of severed lines to other points.

The material loss is very great. The cost to business cannot be estimated.

But our men, augmented by hundreds, pushed out into the storm zone by train, by truck and on foot, working night and day to restore service.

We realize the importance of the wires to the conduct of business and to the people of our cities and our country districts. Therefore we are doing our utmost to re-establish the lines of business and social communication.

But, the wire system that took years to build and perfect and that was destroyed in a night, cannot be rebuilt in a day.

We, therefore, appeal to all users of the telephone to be patient in this emergency.

Our promise is, that the emergency service already established will be strengthened rapidly and that permanent reconstruction will be pushed with all speed.

HAPHAZARD EXTENSION

The Department of Agriculture is one instance of how governmental establishments grow and spread until they get started. The bureau of fisheries, in the Department of Commerce, is another. It had a modest beginning, and not so very long ago. Prior to 1871 there was no branch of the federal government especially charged with the consideration of fishery affairs.

Several of the states had established fish commissions and these state authorities, supported by private interests, began to agitate for a national bureau devoted to fishery interests.

So it came about that by 1871 congress was ready to yield and begin to make appropriations. The first one was for $5,000 and provided for a commissioner of fish and fisheries to prosecute investigations and inquiries "with the view of ascertaining whether any and what diminution in the number of food fishes of the coast and in the lakes of the United States has taken place; and also whether any and what protective, prohibitory or precautionary measures should be adopted in the premises; and shall report upon the same to congress."

The commissioner was to draw no pay, for it was provided by congress in the same joint resolution that he should be a civil officer of the government, of proved scientific and practical acquaintance with the fishes of the coast, who should serve without additional compensation. The then assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, by name Spencer Fullerton Baird, was chosen as the best man for the job, and so he proved to be. He made the little agency grow. He was industrious and competent and knew how to get along with congress. He was diligent and he stood before kings. See what happened.

Remember, he started out with $5,000 to discover whether there had been any diminution of the supply of food fishes along the coasts or in the lakes. He was at the head of an independent investigation and reported directly to congress. The thing was kept alive by annual appropriations as an independent institution until 1903, when it was incorporated into the newly formed Department of Commerce and Labor as the bureau of fisheries.

By 1900 the annual appropriation had grown to $803,220, and the bureau had a permanent personnel of 325. At that time the land owned and occupied by the bureau at its fish cultural and biological stations had an aggregate area of over 12,000 acres, with a value of $240,000. The improvements and equipment at these stations represented an investment of more than $1,000,000. Other property of the bureau, at that time included four sailing steam and sail vessels, 20 steam launches and 150 small sail, power and rowboats, with equipment had a value of $300,000. Its six fish-transportation cars were valued at $150,000. Indeed, the total investment of the government in fishery-service property ran to about $1,585,000. That was back in 1900.

Well, it hasn't stopped growing; bigger and busier than ever, as the advertisements say. The appropriation by congress for the fiscal year 1919 was $1,183,140, and for 1921, $1,307,110. Besides what congress gave, the President allotted in 1918 and 1919, out of his private fund "for the national security and defense," $100,000. With the years of its growth and increasing funds the bureau had taken on many new functions and activities.

Until recently the bureau was administering to the best of its ability the laws relating to the terrestrial and arboreal fur bearers of Alaska, but the duty was incongruous to its legitimate functions. Congress finally conceded that the pursuit of foxes does not constitute a fishery. The cultivation of minnows cannot be successfully conducted in a fish hatchery.

Apparently, as so many other establishments under the executive branch have, the fisheries service had become all-cluttered up with duties and jobs

It is not fitted or equipped to handle. All of which, is a long, long way from an investigation of the possible diminution of food fish along the coast.

I don't pretend to say of the fisheries bureau that it has performed inefficiently either its proper work or the added activities that have been imposed upon it. For all I know it may be and is a great national blessing, and managed with maximum skill, intelligence and real economy. I hope it is.

I cite it here only as an example of a branch of governmental activity that has grown up haphazard from a small beginning to be a great, costly, far-reaching enterprise that by its own confession is overlaid with duties, functions and activities unrelated to its legitimate and essential business—the care, propagation and study of all manner of food fish.

OUR COSTLY NEGLIGENCE

"Co-ordination" is a tired, baggy, nervous wreck of a word that was newly worked to death at Washington during the early days of the war. It was the first of the dollar-a-year words to come forward to do war work, and it was worn to a frazzle. I hate to drag the poor word thing out from the quiet retreat in my dictionary where it has been resting and recuperating, but I must say that this lack of co-ordination, lack of organization, duplication, inefficiency, waste, and haphazard hodge-podge structure of the national governmental machine is no secret to those at Washington, who run and manage it for us, and who are even more directly responsible than we are for the condition into which it has fallen.

I submit pleas of avoidance and confession from both Democrats and Republicans. It is not a matter of politics. It is a matter of proved and confessed negligence on the part of the men we have hired to run the machine, and have kept year after year in places of trust and power and responsibility. They haven't kept up the plant. The form of organization is grotesquely inadequate. The morale of the working force is badly impaired, as I have set forth at length in previous articles. We have paid the price for this, grossly and hugely, in money and in poor service. This has been costly negligence on our part.

I said I had confessions. Here they are, Reed Smoot, Republican and a senator from Utah, speaking:

"The administrative branches of the government have undergone no fundamental change since the organization was devised by Alexander Hamilton."

No other government in the world could have gone on as ours has done, and paid the bills involved in our wasteful methods of administration. We have been able to do it because this country has had resources and wealth unparalleled. But the war has brought us at last to realize that these will not last always. We need a complete survey of the whole situation de novo by a committee of men willing to recognize that it is a task of day and night for a year, and very likely two years.

There is needless duplication of work among different departments, and even in the same department. It is the same through all the government functions, and how with the burden of carrying our enormous debt is weighing on the people, we can no longer neglect to give it consideration.

When he said these things, Mr. Smoot was urging a concrete proposal to bring about the reformation so badly needed.

And now Franklin D. Roosevelt, for seven years assistant secretary of the navy and recently the Democratic candidate for vice president:

"The entire system of relationship which exists between congress and the executive departments is fundamentally wrong. Let me illustrate: I made an offer one spring to the appropriations committee of both houses and senate, telling them that I would tomorrow discharge 15 per cent of the employees of the Navy department if they, the committee, would give me complete authority to take one-half of the salaries of the employees so discharged and add it to the salaries of the other 85 per cent of the employees still left in the department. . . . Of course, however, under the present system congress would not think of giving executive discretion of this kind."

Congress, for various reasons, has so tied the hands of the executive officers of the government that they have no discretion in the fundamental questions of employment. . . . My own wonder is that, considering the existing circumstances, the employees of the government are as efficient as they actually are. Congress legislates for every minute item of employment. There is a lot of work being done in other departments which ought properly to be under the Navy department, and in the same way there is a lot of work done by the Navy department which could perfectly properly be transferred to other departments.

After seven years down here in an executive position . . . I cannot help the conclusion that our governmental methods are cumbersome and wasteful. The first improvement must come in what is, after all, the source of governmental activities—that is, the legislative branch. . . . This must come from congress. We need also a reclassification and redistribution of the work of the executive departments. This can only come if congress, working in accord with itself and with the executives, will discuss the whole question simultaneously and not merely piecemeal.

Well, there you are! A Republican who has been in the legislative branch of the government for seventeen years, and a Democrat who has been in the executive branch for seven years, both telling the same story of how badly the national business is managed.

The odd thing about it is that our agents and representatives at Washington who let this waste and inefficiency run on, year after year, pay no penalty. We pay the piper to the tune of millions and billions—literally that much. And the condition will endure until we make a real roar about it. Congress increasingly shakes its head over the situation and brings its various proposals of reform, and says how wrong it all is, but lacking a lively, inflamed public pressure, nothing gets done.

A SUMMER NIGHT in Two Parts

By Gordon W. Parker

I.

The Missus and I went down to the Palace Sunday evening and enjoyed the program. We think Harold Lloyd a keen cut-up at all times; and in "The City of Silent Men" Thomas Meighan and cast were excellent with convict Bill Hawkins and detective Jim Kearney outstanding.

But as this started out to be a story—and a true one—I must get on. From the moment detective Kearney's keen visage and aggressive bearing flashed on the screen I was carried back a couple of decades to a summer spent in New Jersey.

It happened in this way: My mother's brother had loaned us his nice estate in the foothills of the Orange mountain, Uncle Bert and family left in June for the rock-bound Maine coast and we had a clear title to the mosquitoes and tramps till fall. But it was preferable to half-deserted West Side street in New York on which we lived, and we were soon nicely settled across the Hudson.

But a great many houses in Short Hills were closed or had been left in charge of caretakers for the summer. I spent the first few days looking through my uncle's extensive greenhouses, being particularly interested in the beautiful orchids suspended above long steaming pools that ran the full length of the ventilated glass houses.

"What do the orchids live on?" I asked, turning to a group of men working near by. But they only shrugged their shoulders and looked sullen, almost defiant, I thought. A young superintendent came through and explained.

"These are pretty hard times, financially, and we've been instructed to reduce the force. Those fellows don't speak English, anyway. We're shipping buck a bunch today. If I were you folks I'd keep an eye on things until they've left," he suggested pleasantly.

I thanked him and asked about these orchids.

"They seemingly obtain all their nourishment from the air. Notice this one clinging to this bit of cork—beautiful, eh?"

It was gorgeous, of delicately mottled gold and brown, blue and scarlet, and very large and waxy.

"Quite an improvement on the lady's slipper," he remarked, regarding it with manifest pleasure, and explained a lot more about orchids.

The mater was seated on the porch when I returned to the house.

"Oswald," she began—I never liked the name Oswald—"there are a lot of rough-looking men hanging around, I wish you had a pistol."

My heart leaped. While I had been permitted a twenty-two rifle and a small shotgun, a revolver, heretofore had been frowned upon.

So it was arranged that I should run in to town and buy a revolver. I regarded this as a very serious business, my father being on a trip West, and began to feel that the safety of my mother and sisters had devolved on me.

I stood before a shiny case of revolvers in a Fifth Avenue shop. I knew I ought to get a blued-steel thirty-two or thirty-eight, but I hesitated. The salesman noticed my indecision and brought forth a splendid twenty-two. It had a pearl handle and two barrels, and was elaborately engraved. As it lay before me in its green plush case, the salesman played his trump.

"A nice job to show your friends," he suggested quietly.

"But will it kill tramps?" a small voice whispered. "Will it kill tramps?"

The salesman snatched the long-barrel to the butt and drew down on a wooden mallard decoy across the store.

"Nice for target practice," he remarked, with his pleasant smile. "Wrap it up," I said, and filled in a check for $60.00, a big price in those days.

When I got home I was met at the station by my sister. I jumped into the car and as Gallagher galloped off, Elsie informed me that Uncle Kent had arrived.

"He's been in Central America and is almost black—you wouldn't know him," she said joyously. "He brought me some perfectly darling coral beads—made by the natives there. He's been away a year."

I thought no more of my purchase until, after dinner that night, the mater suggested that I show it to Uncle Kent.

My heart sank. While at that time I was not certain that Uncle Kent was a civil service detective, I knew vaguely that he was a fine shot and spent much of his time on long trips after criminals. Once he had arrived at our New York home with a bullet in his shoulder, and once I had seen him standing in a doorway in Maiden Lane and arrest a diamond thief of international reputation.

It was on a Saturday, and we fellows were down there to order medals for the spring track meet of our school. Wasn't I proud!

Uncle Kent now sat before me on the veranda, brown and hard, and looked just like detective Jim Kearney in "The City of Silent Men."

I felt that he would disapprove of my purchase, I felt he should. But having no very good reason for refusing the mater's request I unwrapped the parcel and handed him the leather case. He opened the case, took out the revolver with the short barrel attached, glanced at the empty cylinder and then spun the weapon on his forefingers, twirled it aloft and picked it out of the air as it descended.

The mater smiled indulgently. "A very serviceable little weapon," pronounced Uncle Kent, holding it at arm's length, where it fitted his palm like the hand of a friend. "That ought to keep an army of tramps away, Nellie." He leaned over and made a queer coughing noise, and it seemed that the stern lines of his face relaxed.

He told us about his travels that night, but as a summer storm threatened, we drifted off to bed about ten o'clock. I left my watch on the dresser, a little change and a few dollars in currency, broke a box of cartridges and loaded the cylinder. I put the revolver under my pillow and dropped off to sleep.

About midnight I was awakened suddenly, I thought, by a queer rasping sound. I rose cautiously on my elbow and looked into the direction of the sound.

The black form of a man, head and shoulders, rose slowly before a window on the veranda roof. I lowered my head and pushed a trembling hand under the pillow, and noisily, but still frantically, felt for my pistol.

The pearl handled revolver was gone!

KEEP-THU-LAW STICKERS

There is a "Keep-the-Law" drive on in the eastern states which will probably sweep the country, and ought to. Its object is to set before people in very simple form the good results of prohibition.

The work is sponsored by charitable agencies and workers. These people have found prohibition a most helpful force in the conditions they handle. They believe that the opposition to prohibition in many instances is due to indifference or to ignorance of the fact that the law is still a tremendous factor for good. Hence they propose to set before the public the economic and sociological advantages as they have found them, and stickers bearing the facts in brief and pithy wording are to be broadcast and pasted everywhere.

By way of example, one sticker states: "Before prohibition drinking was at the bottom of 27 per cent of the cases handled by a single welfare society in a single year. In 1921 only 1 1-2 per cent were due to drink."

Another quotes Lincoln: "Let every man remember that to violate the law is to trample on the blood of his fathered and tear the charter of his own and his children's liberty."

The slogan of the drive is "Prohibition is the Law—keep the law." So much is made of the faults and failings of the dry regime that this wide and telling publicity as to its proved advantages should be a valuable counter influence for the keeping of the law in the present and its preservation in the future.

eat, and Mrs. Bergeon served a six o'clock supper. Every member was present and with the quantity of "eats" brought, every boy was filled to utmost capacity.

After the feed the meeting was called to order by Patrol Leader Bergeon. Numerous motions were carried leading to the good of the patrol. Scout Clare Usher was selected to act as editor, with special instruction to write a good report of every meeting, hikes, etc., and present them to the local newspapers for publication. A hike was arranged for Saturday of this week.

Members of this Patrol are going to put some pep in their work, even if other patrols fail to do so. The fun of the evening ended at nine, and the members left for their homes after thanking their hostess for the good time she had made possible for them. The action of the city council in recommending an entirely new source of water supply for Charlevoix was endorsed by members of Charlevoix Association of Commerce at its regular meeting last Monday evening, and the following resolution was passed.

Resolved, That the Charlevoix Association of Commerce go on record as in favor of the proposed plan of water extension, and pledge our support to the city council in their effort to have it ready for use by July 1st, 1922.

Practically the entire evening was spent in the discussion of the new water extension plan. The need of the change was plainly shown, and the association will lend every effort towards carrying the issue at the special election April 25.

Little business other than routing was transacted. The attendance was up to standard, and the meeting resulted in all having a better understanding of the city's needs.

UNFAIR METHODS IN SELLING HAY

Conditions and Practices Often Tend to Make Producer and Buyer Suspicious.

EXPERTS GIVE SUGGESTIONS

Careful Observations Made at Principal Markets for the Purpose of Eliminating Lame Methods in Handling Product.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Hay is marketed too often under conditions and practices that tend to make the producer somewhat suspicious of the buyer and the buyer suspicious of the producer. Such practices should be eliminated altogether, in the opinion of the bureau of markets and crop estimates, United States Department of Agriculture, and in a new bulletin, No. 979, "Marketing Hay Through Terminal Markets," federal officials make suggestions as to how that may be brought about. Copies of the bulletin may be obtained upon application to the department at Washington.

Loose Methods of Business.

"While a good many unfair methods," says the bulletin, "are at present practiced by those concerned in the marketing of hay it appears that most of them are related to loose methods of business on the part of various agencies engaged in the handling of hay. On the basis of careful observations made throughout the hay producing and consuming sections, and at the principal markets, it is thought that some improvement in the methods of marketing hay can be obtained by observing the following suggestions:

"On the part of the country shipper: More care in grading, weighing and loading the hay; better forms for use in confirming sales, tabulating and stating weights, and for invoicing hay; and more care and accuracy in stating terms of sale.

"On the part of dealers in terminal markets: The elimination of the practice of allowing the state of the market to influence the fulfillment of contracts with country shippers; more uniform methods of handling in terminal markets; better weighing methods and more consideration of contents of weight certificates; more uniform grading practices; grading inbound and outbound hay on the same basis when hay is bought and sold on grade designations; and the elimination of the practice of boosting grades on shipments.

Suggestions to Dealers.
"On the part of dealers in consuming sections: More careful weighing of purchases; elimination of rejections

Hay Taken From a Car in "Plug" Method of Inspection.

when price decline is the only factor; and better records relative to contents and weight of a car when unloading."

The bulletin goes into the details of methods followed in shipping and disposing of hay at various cities; cites common trade practices and faults; illustrates methods of car loading and of selling, and contains much valuable information relative to the industry.

Great Deal of Concentrated Feed Is Given Where Table Scraps Are Fed to Flock.

Owners of back-yard flocks, and sometimes farmers, depend to a considerable extent upon table scraps as feed for the hens. Feed of this sort varies a good deal in composition with different families and also with the season, but in winter it is usually free from large quantities of coarse green stuff and contains a great deal of fairly concentrated feed.

The United States Department of Agriculture has designed a ration specially to be fed to flocks that receive all of the table scraps. The mash of this ration is made up of three pounds corn meal, one pound bran, one pound middlings, one-half pound meat scrap. The scratch feed contains two pounds cracked corn, one pound wheat and one pound oats. If scraps are not available, feed five pounds of cooked vegetables daily to 30 hens. Two per cent of bone meal may be added to the mash without changing any of the other constituents. Five per cent of bone meal may be added if the content of meat scrap is reduced slightly.

Again health authorities are advising us through the state papers of the horrible results likely to follow if we do not promptly swat the March fly. But did you ever think of the desperate problems confronting the fly?

Now comes the time to swat the festive fly.

But, too, the fly that missed a single swatter

AT THE MOVIES

"Bebe Daniels, the 'good little bad girl' of the screen, has temporarily forsaken her mischievous way and in 'Nancy From Nowhere,' which opens next Saturday at the Palace Theatre, will be seen as a shy and wistful orphan girl."

Innumerable well conceived comedy situations, as unusual as they are laughable, are presented in Douglas MacLean's latest Paramount picture, which comes to the Palace Theatre next Wednesday.

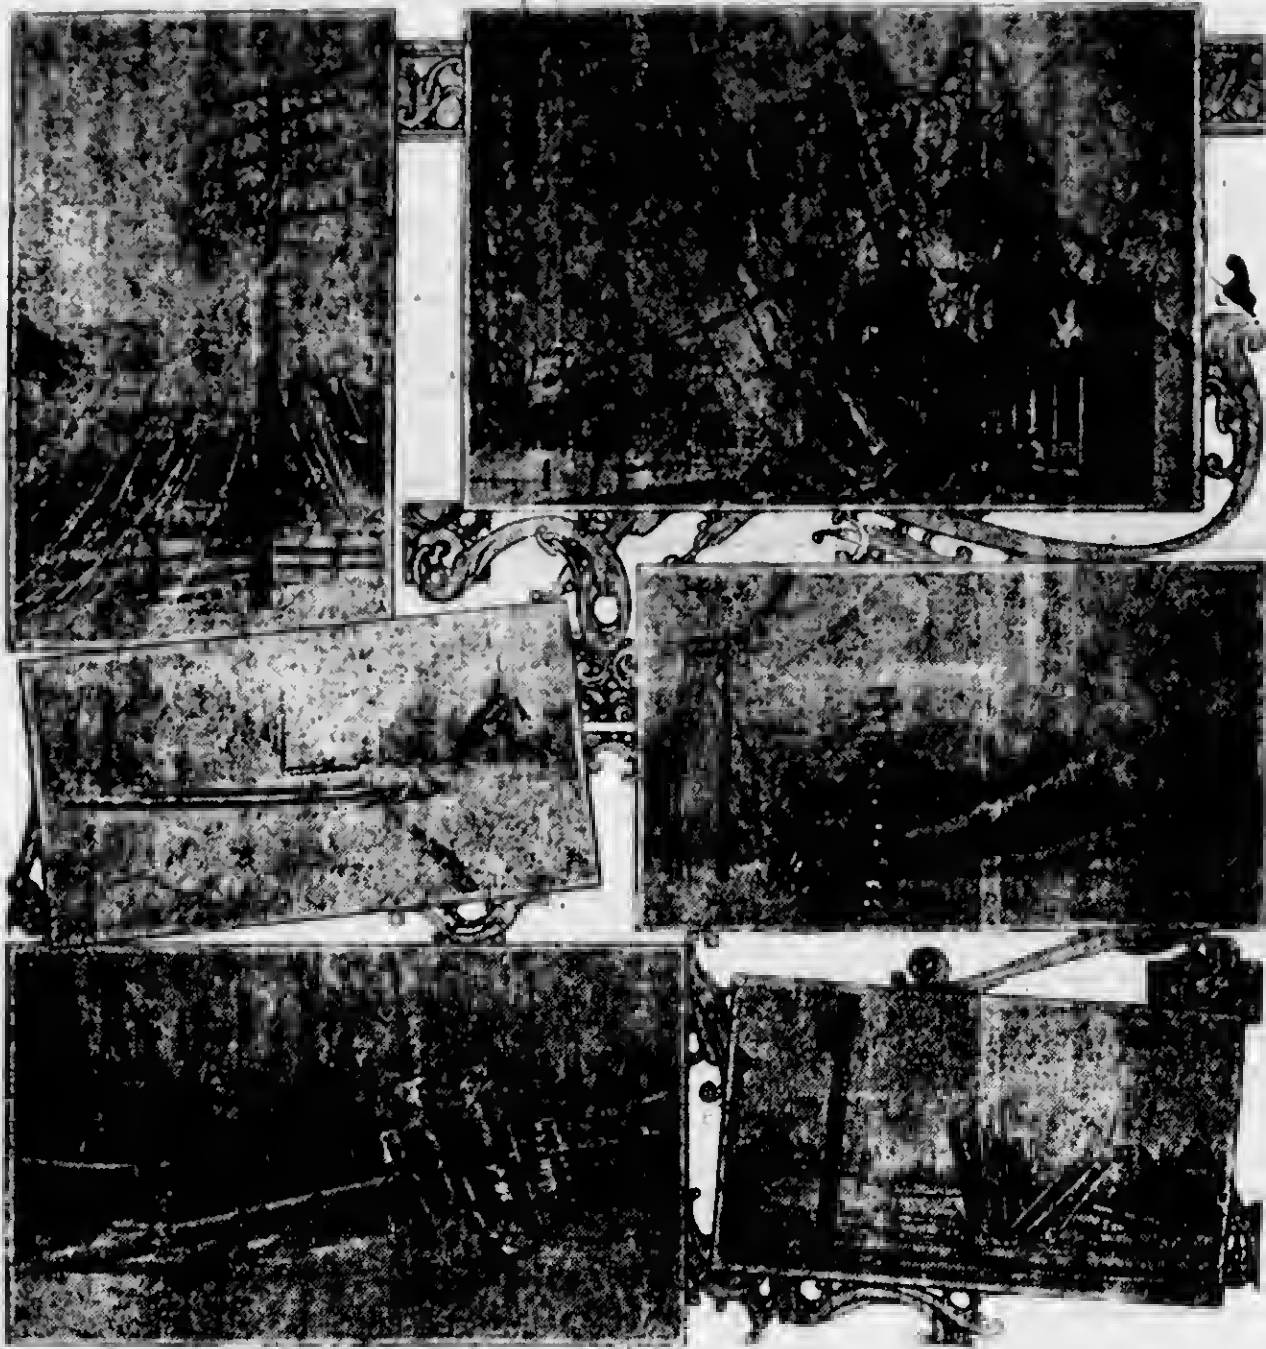

The youthful soldier, no longer a rookie, but a seasoned veteran of months at the front, returns to wrestle with the problems of adjustment of himself of the humdrum existence of civilian life. However, he finds that post-war conditions are not as devoid of action and excitement as he had thought, and his fighting blood, roused by a household of rebellious servants, a rival for the hand of the young lady of his choice, an adopted father, and other things supply him with as much excitement.

Have you read "The Sheik?" Everybody is asking that question these days, for it's one of the big sellers. It is a brilliant story by E. M. Hull and tells a graphic story of love in the Saharan desert. And of tragedy, too, by the way.

This famous novel has been pictured by George Melford for Paramount in a lavish manner and we will show it at the Palace Theatre for two days beginning April 22 next. Some of the scenic effects are remarkable, and while the situations are thrilling, the love appeal is most compelling. Agnes Ayers, Paramount star and Rudolph Valentino, a rising screen player who won fame by his performance in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," are the featured players.

When a Giant Cut the Wires

The two late spring sleet storms that swept across the southern peninsula of Michigan and caused many millions of dollars of damage, suspension of rail service and completely wrecked the wire systems, were the worst the state ever suffered. Total loss to business cannot be estimated, of course. Loss to the wire system is estimated at one and a half million dollars.

Miles of telephone poles were crushed to the ground and whole exchange plants at many towns were put out of business. Many of the smaller companies were unable to resume business because of their losses. Rural service through a great portion of the state was completely wrecked. The blow was the most severe any wire system of the middle west ever has sustained.

Thousands of men were sent out into the storm zone to re-establish the lines of communication, working day and night to put up the poles and wires, but were enabled to establish only temporary lines after days of work, so widespread was the damage. Permanent reconstruction is going ahead rapidly, however, both on long distance lines and in the exchange plants. The Michigan State Telephone company ordered additional equipment, poles by the trainload and miles of wire to make repairs. Its linemen braved zero weather and untold hardships.

It is estimated, closely, that the two storms cost the company 13,000 poles and 12,000 air-miles of wire, which will be replaced from the depreciation reserve.

Why Chevrolet Leads in Sales

Chevrolet New Superior Model is a completely modern, fully equipped car, built to deliver all the real service you can get from any automobile, at the lowest price for which you can get it.

In every line, people pay different prices for the same thing, or what is essentially the same thing.

You can hear an opera for from $1.00 to $50.00.

You can buy a square meal from 50c to $25.00.

You can take a ride for from 1-2c a mile to $2.00 a mile.

In this year of common sense, 1922, people are weighing values. They realize how much they have been spending for show, for vanity, and for non-essentials, and how they are making each dollar work.

That is why Chevrolet is first in sales of standard fully equipped cars

The Grand American Prerogative

The right to choose is the grand American prerogative—the glory of American democracy.

And a most important part of it—the right to choose What you buy—was bestowed upon you by advertising.

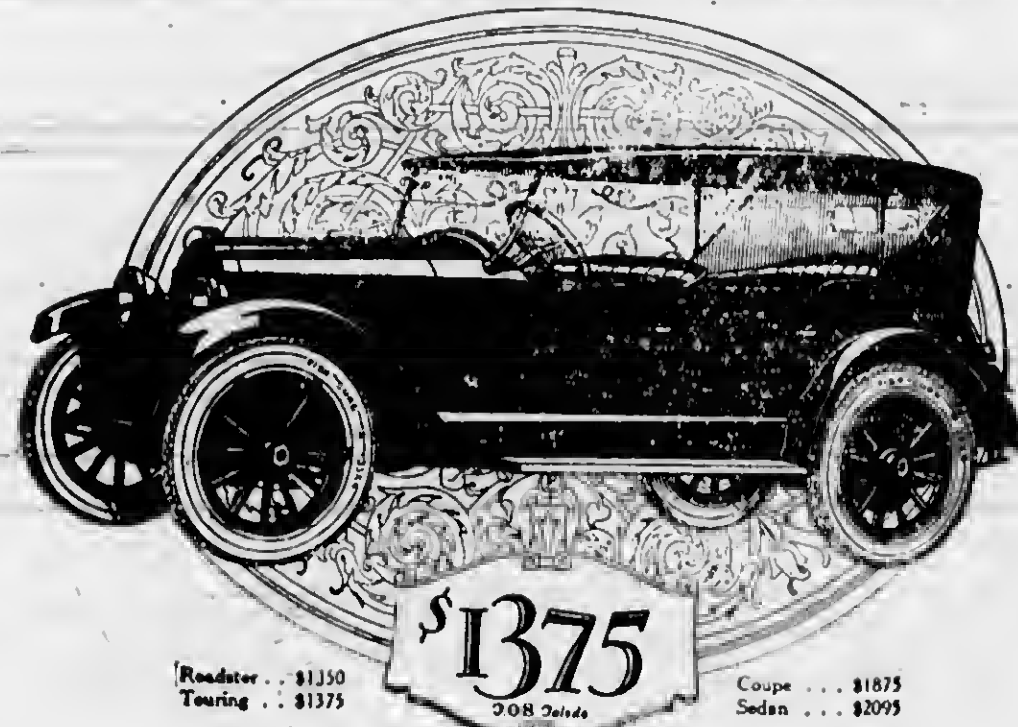

Advertising is as much a part of today's life as electricity, antiseptic surgery or motor traction. It is the system whereby a man who has something to sell tells about it to those who do or should use it. For no one can want anything until he knows of its existence.

Advertising is the way by which you are told why you should have certain goods and how to identify those goods. So the advertisements you find in this newspaper make up a catalog of needed merchandise.

Articles of all kinds and for all purposes are presented in a pleasant way through the medium of type and pictures. The outstanding requirements of every member of the family are met by offers of good merchandise of proved value.

The advertisements will help you in the selection of all manner of things.

NEVER before has the amazing Knight sleeve-valve motor been available in so fine a car at so low a price. Europe uses the Knight motor in her most famous and expensive cars. Now Willys engineering, Willys quantity production, put it in the reach of all in a car equally famous, but far less costly.

The Motor

The Willys-Knight motor is the highest development of the Knight sliding sleeve-valve principle. It gets more power out of less gas than any other motor of its size and weight. It is free from valve trouble, free from carbon trouble, smooth, quiet, flexible. Scientific tests and driver experience show that it grows more powerful with use. And its life-limit has never yet been ascertained.

The Car

The Willys-Knight Car is especially designed to match the motor in long life and distinction. Graceful, refined, dignified, its sturdy steel chassis bears off jolts and jars and holds the body permanently free from rattles and squeaks. Vigilant springs translate the roll of the road into undulating ease. It is fleet, comfortable, responsible—and a sound investment.

ENORMOUS DAMAGE BY RATS TO FOODSTUFFS

Loss of $200,000,000 Annually In United States.

To Effect Complete Extirpation of Rodent Pests United Efforts of Every Home Owner and Tenant Are Needed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Damage totalling $200,000,000 in stored foodstuffs, grain, field crops, and other injurious materials is done by rats in the United States annually. Only the united efforts of every home owner and tenant can effect the abolition of these rodent pests. The Biological Survey, United States Department of Agriculture, is starting a big campaign against rodents throughout the eastern United States. Much already has been accomplished in the matter of control in the Western and Middle Western states, where effective co-operation was secured. On the other hand, residents of the Eastern and Southern states, as a rule, have been exposed to widespread ravages and attacks from rodents for such long periods that they have become so accustomed to the nuisances as to accept them as a matter of course. Uncle Sam is doing his utmost to awaken these sections to the need for eradicating rats.

To illustrate the enormous damages which rats annually accomplish in grain and corn fields, the experience of the state penitentiary farm, covering 2,500 acres, at Baton Rouge, La., is of interest. Last year a 200-acre field of corn was planted on this farm. The rats worked their way through the field, stealing all the seed before the kernels could germinate. The field was planted a second time, and again the rats overran the prospective cornfield, leaving in their wake paths of destruction. Undeterred, the farm manager planted the field to corn a third time, and ultimately secured a poor stand, which resulted in the production of about one-third of a normal corn crop.

Rats Menace Food Supplies With Disease and Cause Much Loss and Waste.

SUNFLOWER SEED IS COSTLY

Ordinarily It Does Not Pay to Use Product for Feed Except in Case of Chickens.

It ordinarily costs considerably more to produce 100 pounds of sunflower seed than 100 pounds of corn or oats and for that reason sunflower seed is ordinarily so high in price that it does not pay to use it as a feed, except perhaps in the case of chickens. Sunflower seed contains in every 100 pounds 11 or 12 pounds of digestible protein and 92 units of energy, whereas corn contains in each 100 pounds about six or seven pounds of digestible protein and 80 units of energy. Theoretically, 100 pounds of sunflower seed should be worth around $1.00 a hundred when corn is worth 70 cents a bushel.

PREVENT INJURY IN ORCHARD

Clear Away All Litter, Such as Weeds and Grass From the Base of Fruit Trees.

Guard against mice and rabbits by first clearing away all litter, such as much weeds and grass from the base of fruit trees. They form ideal places for mice to spend the winter. Little damage occurs in the cultivated orchard except from the rabbits. Soil can be mounded about the base of the trees before the soil freezes. If this is done and the grass and weeds removed, little damage can be expected from mice. Such mounding is not a protection against rabbits, however. There are many methods of tree protection that give good results.

SAME RESULT, AND CHEAPER

Somewhat Rough on the Cat, but Five Dollars Is Something These Hard Times.

Expert testimony may be valuable from a scientific point of view, but there are often cheaper ways of establishing a certainty, as the following shows.

An Irish laborer entered a drug store, and drawing a paper bag from his pocket, poured on the counter a number of very sticky and unattractive looking pieces of candy.

"Can you examine this candy?" he asked.

"It looks queer. What's the matter with it?" asked the druggist.

"Plaze, Ol'm thinkin'. Did ye ever see such stuff? Dinuls McGuire give thim to me by an' Dinuls is no friend of noone."

"Well, I can make an analysis."

"All right. Ol'm come in tomorrow on me way from work."

The Irishman had reached the door, but he suddenly stopped with his hand on the latch.

"Add how much will that analysis cost me?" he inquired.

"Five dollars," was the answer.

The man walked over to the counter and swept the candy into the bag, which he replaced in his pocket.

"Niver mind," he said. "Ol'm feed wan to the cat."—Philadelphia Ledger.

WILD LEMONS IN PROFUSION

According to Traveler, They Are a Generous Gift of Nature to Island of Norfolk.

Lemons grow wild all over the island of Norfolk, a British possession in the South Pacific, according to Thomas J. McMahon, in the Trans-Pacific Magazine. He writes that in every garden and paddock are clumps of trees ever bearing fruit in wonderful abundance, and of a variety full of rich juice and with a rind most suitable for lemon peel.

Little factories, family concerns, are dotted all over the islands. They are usually roughly constructed wooden buildings divided into three rooms. There, with rather primitive instruments, the women cut and squeeze the lemons in huge frames, and the skins are soaked in brine preparatory to making lemon peel. During the lemon season, which is most of the year, the boys and girls are engaged daily in picking the fruit.

While there are only 800 people on the island, it could comfortably and prosperously house 5,000 persons, according to Mr. McMahon. The island is five miles long, three miles broad and contains 8,000 acres.

Whether it made this stopping-place its permanent home or returned toward the starting-point is not recorded in the accounts that have appeared.

The Insecurity of Office.

"A public career has its compensations."

"What are they?" asked Senator Shortworthly suspiciously.

"Well, you enjoy a certain honorable distinction, you are much in the public eye and your fellow citizens pay you the respect due a statesman."

"Maybe so, but I'm never the center of an admiring crowd of my constituents that I don't wonder which one of them cherishes a secret ambition to stand in my shoes and is figuring out a little combination that may in a few years have me back in the house town practicing law."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Poisoned by Matches.

Cases of poisoning from safety matches seem to be common in Denmark. Dr. C. Rasch reports to the Ugeskrift for Læger (Copenhagen) on thirteen recent cases in his own practice. The trouble took the form of a severe inflammation of the skin on fingers, neck and face, with badly swollen eyelids. In men it appears below the pocket in which the matches are carried; in women on the fingers with which they light their cigarettes. Dr. Rasch ascribes it to the use of phosphorus sesquisulphide when amorphous phosphorus was not to be had.

Take Views From Airplane.

For the first time an American archaeologist has used aerial photography to obtain bird's-eye views of the oldest man-made topographical features of America, the Indian mounds. David I. Bushnell, Jr., is using such photographs of the mounds near East St. Louis to illustrate a report of the bureau of ethnology of the Smithsonian institution at Washington.

Giraffe Disappearing.

The giraffe seems to be disappearing from its natural haunts in Africa. A few years ago it was quite common to encounter them in herds of 80 or 100, but now herds of 20 seem to be the average.

AVOID ROUP BY VENTILATION

Good Plan Not to Use Muslin Curtains at Any Time Except to Keep Out Rain and Snow.

Roup is largely a question of ventilation, and properly ventilated chickenhouses seldom contain chickens that have roup. In the openings in the front it is a good idea to have chicken wire, and not use the muslin curtains at any time of the year except to keep out snow and rain.—G. S. Vickers.

SIDNEY LONDON.

By reviewing the greatest literary men of a century Sidney London has contributed new dignity to the art of impersonation. With wigs, false palates and a precisely vivid imagination, he gives faithful reproductions of Mark Twain, Josh Billings, Victor Hugo, Bill Nye, Longfellow, Thackeray, Tennyson, Kipling, Holmes and numerous others. He completely loses his own identity, assumes a new role and quotes from the works of the genius impersonated.

One of Mr. London's most popular presentiments is of Mark Twain making his historic birthday speech.

Edgar Allan Poe is pictured in his story of "Annabelle Lee." A humorous selection by P. Hopkinson Smith, a Rudyard Kipling poem, a humorous reading from James Whitcomb Riley, Bill Nye's "American Boy" and a group of Longfellow poems are favorites in his repertoire.

Many of the later-day writers Mr. London knew personally. Others in both England and America he learned to know through visits to their former homes and libraries, and through interviews with relatives and close friends.

Sidney London's "Great Literary Men" is a masterpiece in popular and unique intellectual diversion.

When the Ellsworth High girls basket ball team, hung the final game of the season over on East Jordan by a 28-9 score last Thursday night they finished the season with a record of which any girls team in northern Michigan may be proud.

WINTER KILLING OF WHEAT CROP

LESS THAN WAS PREDICTED
THROUGHOUT STATE

Conditions of Michigan Crops as Found By Commissioner of Agriculture Church.

Winter Wheat: The damage to winter wheat from winter killing is not nearly as great as many had predicted nor as much as might have been expected under the existing conditions. The ground was bare throughout southern Michigan during much of the winter, but the weather was not severe at any time, particularly in March when the plant is most susceptible to injury. In central and northern Michigan, the ground was well covered with snow practically all of the time. The joint State and Federal report issued today by John A. Doelle, Commissioner of Agriculture and Verne H. Church, Agricultural Statistician, U. S. Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates gives the condition of winter wheat as 83 per cent, seven per cent lower than on the same date last year and one per cent below the ten-year average for April 1. The condition for the United States as a whole averages 78.4 per cent, or nearly 13 per cent below that of last year and six per cent less than the ten-year average.

Rye: Rye suffered much less than wheat and the present condition equals the ten-year average of 88 per cent, although four points lower than it was one year ago. The poor fields are mainly the late planted ones. The average condition for the United States is 89 per cent, which is practically normal.

Breeding Sows: Better prices of hogs and a good corn supply have tended to renew interest in the industry, and the number of brood sows now on the farms of the State is estimated to be seven per cent larger than one year ago. This increase equals the decline that took place in the previous year. The demand has been strong in recent months in nearly all parts of the state, and good prices have been paid.

Farm Labor: The results of the inquiry relative to farm labor show that the supply is about normal, as compared with the usual, and nine per cent greater than it was one year ago. Some sections of the state report a very marked increase, but in other localities the supply has not materially changed.

The demand is ten per cent below normal and eight per cent less than it was one year ago. During the period when labor was scarce, farmers revised their farming methods in order to meet the situation, and now are returning to their former system only to a very limited extent. The acute financial conditions of the past year are preventing many from hiring that otherwise would do so. Therefore, we have the unique situation of practically a normal supply of labor which exceeds the demand by approximately 13 per cent. There has been a marked reduction of wages in most sections, although some men are insisting on more than the prevailing price.

FORCED TO BE CENSUS TAKER

Supervisors Must Obtain Long List of Questions

Supervisors will have no easy job this year. Besides making the regular assessments, the U. S. government and state have wished on them the arduous task of taking a complete census of production of all farm crops, live stock, etc.

It is stated in big black faced type that this census is not taken for the purpose of taxation but for purposes of the census only, and the supervisors are required to do it under penalty of a heavy fine or imprisonment if they fail. So if you are the owner of three or more acres of land or even of one cow, read these over carefully and be ready to answer so as not to delay longer than necessary the work of the supervisor.

Here are the things the supervisor or assessor must report—Name of occupant or tenant; postoffice address; owner or renter; total acres of all land farmed; acres of corn, winter wheat, spring wheat, oats, barley; rye, buckwheat, potatoes, clover and timothy alfalfa, marsh hay cut for feed, other crops cut for hay, field peas, field beans, soy beans, sugar beet, cabbage, onions, roots, mint, farm wood lot, other improved land, pasture, seed clover, seed timothy, apple trees, peach trees, pear trees, cherry trees, grape vines, honey bees, horses, cows, cattle, sheep, sows, etc.

CATCH LIMITED TO TWENTY A DAY

New Trout Law Explained By Deputy
E. R. Jones

With the near approach of the trout fishing season trout fishermen of Charlevoix and northern Michigan will be interested in news from David R. Jones, chief deputy for the Michigan department of conservation regarding the recent changes in the trout fishing laws.

Mr. Jones writes that under the recent order of the conservation commission a day's catch of brook trout has been fixed at twenty, with twenty in possession on stream, and forty in possession away from stream. The size or length of trout remains the same, as fixed by statute at seven inches.

This order effects all territory in the lower peninsula north of the south line of Mason, Lake, Oseola, Clare, Gladwin and Arenac counties, except the north branch of the Au Sable river, on which a previous order identical to the recent one of the commission, fixed the legal length at eight inches. This order will be in effect for five years, from date of issue, unless annulled or revoked.

PASSING OF WATER BOND ISSUE OF VITAL IMPORTANCE TO CHARLEVOIX

excessively hard as to be unsuitable for domestic uses. It was explained that the nearer the supply approached the lime rock deposits, the harder the water. It was further found that deep wells in this section frequently failed to hold up the supply first shown, necessitating the sinking of additional wells and frequent replacements.

The estimated cost of the South Point proposition was above $150,000 and therefore beyond our reach.

The council asked for complete and detailed information regarding the suggested filtration plan of Prof. Hoad. It studied the plans thoroughly and obtained an estimate of the cost. It was believed that it presented a solution within our means and one that was feasible and that would insure us of a complete, safe and adequate supply of water. The engineers estimate put the cost at about $34,000. This did not include the purchase price and cost of installation of the new pump which the council purchased last fall. The total estimate is $40,000. It is believed that the actual expense will fall below this figure, but it is not safe to cut down the margin allowed.

So we have now a definite plan to examine and investigate as citizens. By citizens, we mean every man and woman in Charlevoix, no matter what his or her occupation may be. All are engaged in Business of one kind or another. The success of one means the success of another. We all want a safe and sufficient supply of water. We don't want to be restricted in the amount we require. There are many places not now supplied with water. The mains should be extended to these places as speedily as possible so that all may share in the benefits.

Our view is, that having selected public officials charged with the duty of investigating all these matters and to transact our business, we should give their judgment full weight. We should co-operate with them by considering their recommendations carefully. The city council has arranged for a public meeting to be held in the Court Room Friday evening of this week for the purpose of giving the public full information, and this meeting should be well attended by our people.

It looks to us that our summer visitors will now have an answer to their many inquiries and that they will be relieved of all anxiety as whether it will be safe for them to come to Charlevoix this season and the seasons to follow and enjoy the benefits of the best Summer Resort anywhere. We have always felt confident of the outcome, and HERE WE ARE. Let us CO-OPERATE.

WOLF PROBLEM CONFRONTS STATE

Northern Sportsmen Will Discuss the Question at Banquet

Getting rid of the timber wolves in the upper peninsula, which annually destroy large quantities of wild game—deer and birds—is one of the state's big problems, according to A. C. Richards, secretary of the Upper Peninsula Associated Sportsmen's clubs. Mr. Richards, whose home is at Marquette, writes that his organization will be represented at the big congress of sportsmen in Petoskey late this month, and asks for an opportunity to present to the other sportsmen some of the problems facing Michigan.

Another representative of the northern part of Michigan at this gathering of hunters and fishermen will be Edward Voight, president of the upper peninsula association, whose home is at Escanaba.

Co-operation is to be the keynote of the program at the conference and speakers will be called upon to tell how best Michigan sportsmen may enjoy hunting deer and game birds and still keep plenty of them in the woods and wild places for future generations.

MEETING LASTED FOR TWO HOURS

WATER BONDING PROPOSITION FULLY EXPLAINED

Mass Meeting at Court House Friday Evening Attended By People Interested in Issue

Charlevoix revived the old-fashioned "town meeting" Friday night at the court house. More than two hundred and fifty citizens appeared to discuss, attack or hear defense of the city's proposed water works extension project.

Called to bring out constructive criticism of the city's expenditure for this proposition, the meeting gave full play to any interested voter who wanted to air his views.

Members of the council, mayor, members of the board of health and heads of city departments were seated within the railing, ready to rise and reply to questions or meet criticisms. Mayor Bergeon as chairman, explained the purpose of the meeting, and from time to time asked individuals in the audience to speak. The meeting lasted two hours with few dull moments.

Objectors were conspicuously absent. If there are any in the city opposed to the improvement, they failed to appear at this meeting, called wholly to hear objections and fully explain the real situation. If anyone present was opposed to the improvement when they entered the court room, they left fully convinced of its necessity. At the close of the meeting those in favor of the improvement were asked to rise to their feet. Not a person in the room remained seated. The one purpose—that of providing a safe and adequate supply of water—could not have been more plainly and convincingly expressed.

Dr. R. B. Armstrong, city health officer, went into the matter thoroughly and explained the present situation from every angle. He said he firmly believed the present city water supply was inadequate and came from a source that had at one time become contaminated, and would without doubt again show the same condition. Without mincing matters he told what the result would be in case of an epidemic of any kind. "Charlevoix would be emptied of its summer visitors inside of forty-eight hours, should such a condition arise," he said. "People come here with their families to spend the summer because we have always had pure water, a pure milk supply and pure air. These conditions must continue if we expect them to continue to come." He said no matter what our private opinion of prevailing conditions may be, we must satisfy those who have made possible the success of Charlevoix as a resort.

Alderman Archie Livingston, chairman of the water committee, read a part of Prof. Hoard's report of conditions, and his recommendations.

Deputy City Clerk D. S. Payton made a careful speech, classifying the city's bonded indebtedness, and the methods of payment of bonds.

"Charlevoix is in better financial condition today than it has been in years," he stated, and gave figures to prove his statements.

Others were called upon and re-

DO FISH DRINK MILK?—BAIRD SAYS NO

Do fish drink milk? Evidently not, according to placards recently sent out by the state department of conservation of Lansing, for promiscuous posting in dairies, creameries and cheese factories in this district. It has been found that the fouling of water by dumping milk and milk waste into streams has caused the destruction of fish and as a result of this discovery an old state law of 1865 has been amended making it unlawful to put milk into the waters of this state.

This announcement may open up an interesting field for conjecture among anglers as it has long been one of the pet ideas of the plunker, or catch-as-catch-can fisherman, that there is no better diet for big, healthy night crawlers than bread and milk. The foremost angling authorities of the country advocate the use of bread and milk to keep worms alive and "wriggly."

And now comes the announcement that milk is destructive to the fish and the fly fisherman and bait eater may again look with withering contempt at the poor plunker, who kills his fish with milk-fed angleworms.

sponded with short talks. Conditions not clear to many were explained, and the audience dispersed, all pledging themselves to put forth every effort to carry the issue through to a successful finish.

FARMED OUT TO COFFEYVILLE TEAM

Left "Indians at St. Louis, Mo., on Tuesday Last

Frank Tubbs, who has been with the Cleveland Baseball Club on its spring training trip, has been farmed out to the Coffeyville team of the Missouri Valley league. In a wire to a friend here Tubby stated that he and Pat McNulty, Ohio State university outfielder, were leaving the Indians at St. Louis Tuesday for Coffeyville, a glass manufacturing city in southeastern Kansas.

Tubby has had an eventful trip in spite of horrible weather. He was able to pitch but six innings all told, and in these two starts did well. He had to correct his foot work, wind-up and curve ball, but has learned a lot and has worked hard. He pitched in batting practice for three games at Cleveland and St. Louis last week. He is encouraged by the action of the Indian management in farming him out and will do his best.

BIRTHDAY AND EASTER PARTY

Mrs. Charles A. Emrey Entertains in Honor of Young Son

Mrs. Charles Emrey entertained Saturday, April 15th, in honor of her small son, Bobby, the occasion being his fourth birthday. The party was a combined birthday and Easter party, the table on which a dainty luncheon was served being attractively decorated in colored Easter eggs, much to the delight of the guests present who included Floyd Eccleston, Alice Usher, Chas. Carey, Jane Miller, Franklin Ochs, Franklin Olmstead and Jeanne Graves.

The afternoon was spent in playing games, after which the guests departed leaving Bobby with many gifts and wishes for many more happy birthdays.

Wednesday May third, is the date when J. Leahy, the Optometrist, will be at the Hotel Charlevoix, curing headache a specialty, glasses guaranteed to fit. 1612.

BANQUET NOW ANNUAL AFFAIR

DICKENS' CLUB MEMBERS EN- TERTAIN HUSBANDS

Covers Laid For Thirty-five at Home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Wilkinson

The Dickens' Club of Charlevoix, delightfully entertained their husbands with a banquet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Wilkinson, on Tuesday evening, April 11th.

Although this occasion has become an annual affair, each year seems to increase its popularity with the club and their guests and the banquet of Tuesday evening was acclaimed by all to be the "best yet."

Covers were laid for thirty-five on tables decorated with gleaming tapers and doily yellow flowers. Above the guests were dozens of bluebirds, apparently pausing in their flight to add their mysterious gift of happiness to the guests assembled.

After a delicious five course banquet the toast-mistress, Mrs. Katherine Rose announced the name of a new member of the club, Miss Martha Imogene Craig and a toast was given to her.

Mrs. Marjorie Livingston gave two selections in her usual charming manner and following this a "Literary Pot-Pourri" was enjoyed with the following menu:

Appetizer—George Finucan.
Main Course—Gail Vandermade.
Salad—Herschel Miller.
Dessert—Sadie Faulkner.
Demi Tasse—Don Campbell.
Concluding, Dr. F. H. Wilkinson sang the "Gypsy Trail" and graciously responded to an encore.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Peter Vandermade of Traverse City.

ELLSWORTH VISITED BY SERIOUS FIRE

Hotel Orient and Eastcott Home Go Up in Flames

Charlevoix's fire truck made a record run to Ellsworth about eight o'clock Sunday evening, in response to a call that the entire village was in danger of being wiped out by fire. The run of 12 miles was made in less than twenty minutes, but the fire was found to be under control when they reached there, and little assistance could be given.

The fire was first discovered in the basement of the Hotel Orient, owned and operated by Lou VanSkiver. The exterior of the building was a mass of flames when discovered, and as the village has no fire fighting apparatus, was soon burned to the ground, with the barn to the north and the house of Wm. Eastcott, a short distance across the street to the northeast.

The loss of the hotel is complete, hardly a thing being removed. Furniture was removed from the Eastcott home and saved. The property loss will reach over $20,000 with small insurance. Mr. VanSkiver will rebuild.

RATE REDUCTION BY MICHIGAN TRANSIT

Both Passenger and Freight Rates to Be Slashed

W. D. Dolan, travelling passenger and freight agent and Capt. George Johnson of the Michigan Transit Company, were in the city last week and while here announced big slashes in freight rates by water shipment out of Chicago and other Lake Michigan ports for the season of 1922.

The reduction range from 7 per cent on class shipments to 40 per cent on commodity shipments. Boats of this company are to be placed in commission soon, the steamer Missouri coming to Charlevoix once a week or more often during the early season and twice a week after that, with freight and passengers.

The passenger service will be about as that maintained last year with the steamers Manitou, Puritan and Missouri.

A new, reduced fair round trip rate is announced for passenger travel. The ticket is a fifteen-day limit at a reduction of about one-third from the regular rate.

USEFUL LIFE ENDED FRIDAY

DEATH TAKES WELL KNOWN CHARLEVOIX WOMAN

Mrs. Geik. C. Geiken Succumbs to Illness of Period Covering Over a Year

The long and useful life of Mrs. Geik C. Geiken passed out at 10:10 p. m. Friday evening, at her home on Belvedere avenue, after a gradual failing of health covering a period of more than a year. The direct cause of her death was pernicious anemia. Her illness was not considered serious however, until about a month ago, when her condition became alarming, and she steadily failed until the end came Friday evening.

Emma Risto was born in St. Joseph, Michigan, July 23, 1860. Here she lived until after her marriage on November 26, 1876, to Geik C. Geiken. After their marriage they moved to Charlevoix, where she has been a resident for the past thirty-eight years.

Mrs. Geiken was a member of the local W. C. T. U., O. E. S., White Shrine of Petoskey, and Congregational church of this city. Besides her husband, she is survived by four children, Frank of Pellston, Cornelius of Marquette, and Harold and Caroline of Charlevoix.

Deceased was a devoted Christian and for many years was a member of the Congregational church. She was an earnest worker for any good cause, her sympathy was warm and true, and she never failed to extend a helping hand to all who came to her in their hour of trouble. She was a good wife and mother and lived for those near her. For this exemplary life the children have given her their affection and respect in return, and she goes hence with that affection and respect still lingering in their memory.

Burial took place in Brookside cemetery, Monday afternoon, following funeral services held from the family home at 2:30 p. m., Rev. C. W. Long, the W. C. T. U. and Order of Eastern Star officiating.

PROTECT YOURSELF WHEN BUYING PAINT

Buy From Dealers You Know and Are Reliable

Protect yourselves. This is the season of the year when salesmen for cheap and worthless paints are traveling up and down through the country telling those who propose to paint how many dollars they can save if they will give them their order. We do not say that the paints they offer you are good or bad but before you spend your good money with strangers who are here today and gone tomorrow, would it not be good common sense to know what this paint is made of? Take a sample of it to some good reputable man in whom you have confidence and see if it is composed of white lead, zinc and pure oil or of iron pyrites, calcium carbonate, silicates and kerosene. There is more chance for fraud in the purchase of paint than in anything you can buy. The fraudulent article looks all right in the can and when first put on, but it lacks body, weather enduring qualities and within a year it cracks, washes off, and looks worse than no paint at all. Again we say, protect yourselves.

If you contemplate painting this year, secure your paint of someone you know, someone who stands behind what he sells, someone who will be here where you can get to him, while the outside order taker will be gone and be careful never to return. Protect yourself.

Enjoyable Pot Luck Supper
Miss Maggie Colter was pleasantly surprised last Tuesday evening, when six of her lady friends came in for a six o'clock dinner.

The occasion was Miss Colter's birthday. The guests who included Mrs. Henry Cooper, Mrs. John Burns, Mrs. H. A. Carr, Mrs. Henry Marshall, Mrs. Rosa Nettleton, and Mrs. Richard Lewis enjoyed a very pleasant evening and before leaving they presented Miss Colter with an electric toaster by which to remember this happy gathering.

The Ladies' Literary and Sewing Club of the M. E. church will serve a 15c tea at the home of Mrs. W. B. Marshall, Thursday afternoon, April 27. All are cordially invited. adv. 1611.

FLOOD SITUATION REPORTED BETTER

Cheboygan Danger Said to Be Lessened As Water Recedes

Conditions at the Cheboygan river dam and the Cheboygan Electric Light and Power company's dam at Black river, remains about the same. Workmen still guard the dams and are on duty day and night watching for possible leaks which might prove serious. It is believed the danger point at both structures has been passed and that with fair weather the waters will gradually recede.

A. J. Lalonde, local D. & M. passenger agent, has returned from Tower where he investigated flood conditions. He reports the water there receded four and a half feet since they forced an outlet through the channel formed at the west of the dam Monday. This channel he states is 500 feet long, 300 feet wide and between 20 and 25 feet deep. Mr. Lalonde also reports that Guy Stanton, the Tower man said to have lost his life while engaged with a crew of men in fighting back the flood waters, was drowned while fishing some distance from the dam. He was 55 years old and is survived by his wife and two children.

EAST JORDAN HAS BAD FIRE

BLAZE STARTS AT EARLY HOUR WEDNESDAY

George Carr Grocery and Albert Touch Shoe Shop Go Up in Smoke.—Loss Heavy

Fire of an unknown origin completely destroyed the George Carr grocery and Albert Touch shoe shop on State street in East Jordan at an early hour Wednesday morning of last week.

The fire when first discovered had gained considerable headway and seemed centered between the two buildings. A high wind was blowing and before the fire department could arrive the buildings were a mass of flames. By good work the firemen were able to hold the fire to the two buildings, saving those across the street and directly in the path of the flames and flying cinders.

The buildings occupied by Carr's grocery and meat market was owned by Walter French, and although some insurance was carried on the building and contents, both gentlemen are heavy losers. Mr. Carr has been located in this building for the past sixteen years.

Mr. Touch owned the building which he occupied. He estimates his loss at about $3500 on building and contents, with an insurance of $2500.

The corner building was a well-known landmark, having been erected some forty years ago. We understand it was first used as a furniture store.

Owing to the intense heat, about 100 feet of telephone cable was melted, throwing about fifty lines out of commission, among them being a number of farm lines. A cable crew was at work putting in a new cable and will have it again in order in a few days.

LAST NUMBER OF LECTURE COURSE

Greatly Enjoyed at Methodist Church, Last Evening

Through the inability of Sidney Landon, entertainer to complete his season, the Redpath Bureau were forced to substitute for the last number on our lecture course but certainly stretched a point when they gave us a Bennett lecture as a substitute.

William Rainey Bennett, one of the Big Six of the Redpath lecturers, one of America's Who's Who, certainly lived up to his reputation in his performance at the Methodist church last night.

For nearly two hours he drove home in rapid-fire succession hard stinging facts sugar coated with a spontaneous humor that drove his audience into convulsions.

The fact that he was enthusiastically received and that the Bennett lecture is the principal topic of conversation today is not significant but only the natural outcome of a visit to Charlevoix of a man of Bennett's caliber.

MEN MAY LOSE THEIR VOTES

HOLDERS OF OLD FIRST PAPERS FACE LOSS

Reported Their Eligibility to Exercise Right of Franchise Expires January 1, 1922

A number of Charlevoix county residents who have in the past been voting on old first papers are facing the loss of their franchise rights.

A person, properly qualified as to residence, who took out first papers prior to May 8, 1892, can vote on these papers up to January 1, 1924. After January 1, 1924, however, these papers are of no value and will not entitle the holder or his wife to vote. Thus a large number of women, some of them possibly native born Americans, are facing the loss of their franchise rights in the 1924 presidential elections through the failure of their husbands to complete their naturalization.

There is still time for such first paper voters to complete their naturalization so they can vote in the presidential election in 1924. Most of them are doomed to lose their franchise rights in the spring elections in 1924, but they can, by acting promptly, regain them by November, 1924.

The way to get them back is to make immediate application to the county clerk for new first papers. After these first papers are granted, which they will be immediately upon complying with the provisions of the law, an interval of two years must elapse before application can be made for second papers. After that, the application must be posted for 90 days and at the next following term of circuit court the application is passed upon.

Applicants who take out first papers before June of this year and then complete their naturalization as soon as the law will permit, can regain their votes before the 1924 presidential election. They will, however, lose their rights to vote between January 1, 1924 and September 1924, but this cannot now be avoided.

If they fail to make application at once and to carry it through when they have started it, they will lose their franchise on January 1, 1924, and cannot regain it until they have complied with the law, which will take more than two years and three months.

XXII. WE'RE COLD, TO REFORMS

We have not had in our time a President who was a business man or who had close acquaintance with business methods. The Chief Executives have, for the most part, not been executives as that term is now understood. Anything but. They regarded the governmental machine as one regards a hired motor car—a piece of mechanism in which to get somewhere, and with no thought of its power-transmission system or economy of operation.

Mr. Taft did sense the fact that he was at the head of an organization whose activities are almost as varied as those of the entire business world. Mr. Harding, I believe, shares this feeling.

As Mr. Taft pointed out, this great organization has never been studied in detail as one piece of administrative mechanism. No comprehensive effort has been made, until very recently, to list its many activities or to group them in such a way as to present a clear picture of what the government is doing. No satisfactory statement has ever been published of the financial transactions of the government as a whole. With large interests at stake congress and the executive have never had all the information which should be currently available if the most intelligent direction is to be given to the daily national business.

Congress, the President and the administrative officers have been attempting to discharge their duties without full information as to the agencies through which the work of the government is being performed. In the past, services, agencies, bureaus, what not, have been created one by one as exigencies have seemed to demand, with little or no reference to any scheme of organization of the government as a whole.

Mr. Taft pointed out all this and made an earnest effort to change it. With what result? Why, just exactly none. Congress was cold. The public—meaning you and me—was colder. We didn't take any interest in the project, and therefore congress politely yawned it away into the tall grass and out of sight. Mr. Taft was given enough money to employ an efficiency and economy commission and to make inquiry into the methods of transacting the public business of the executive departments and other government establishments.

The inquiry was made and the changes recommended, but nothing has ever been done about it. This economy and efficiency commission was very conservative and cautious. It took Mr. Taft's view that the problem of good administration is not one that can be solved at one time. It is a continuously present one. This commission, made up of excellent men, suggested that the revenue-cutter service be abolished and its activities be taken over by other services. It was estimated that by so doing a saving of not less than $1,000,000 could be made.

Another report recommended that the lighthouse and life-saving services be administered by a single bureau instead of as at that time, by two bureaus located in different departments. It was estimated that this consolidation would result in a saving of not less than $100,000 yearly.

The abolition of the returns office of the interior department was recommended, at an estimated direct saving of about $25,000 a year, in addition to a large indirect economy in the reduction of work to be performed in the several offices.

The consolidation of the six auditing offices of the treasury and the inclusion in the auditing system of the seven naval officers who audited customs accounts at the principal ports was urged. The change was expected to produce an immediate saving of at least $130,000 yearly.

From this modest start other changes and reforms and savings were to be made.

But we weren't interested in the high cost of government or the high cost of living eleven years ago. Mr.

Taft didn't get a rise out of us. He didn't have much of a pull with congress, either, poor man, and all his inquiry went for nothing as far as any action was concerned.

He and his commission did bring out and establish, however, certain facts and conditions. It was a trustworthy and competent investigation as far as it went. That is something to the good.

There is a patent disposition in congress now to take the whole problem of the routine administrative processes of the government under consideration and see how best to improve them. Whether anything really worth while will come out of it will depend entirely on the degree of interest you display. If you will take the trouble to show that you know that the national business is mismanaged and costs too much, and that you are tired of it, there will be action.

XXIII. WHY GOOD MEN QUIT

Go today into the Treasury department, the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Commerce, or into any other establishment of the government doing important technical work, and they will tell you that their chief difficulty is to retain competent employees in the supervisory and technical positions. Their turnover is abnormally high in these positions.

Every day men leave the service to accept private employment at materially increased salaries, so that the departments are continuously going through a process of selecting and training executives and technical employees, only to lose them, as they become really valuable, on account of the inadequacy of their compensation.

The second factor which contributes to the present ineffectiveness of the government as a business establishment is found in the improper organization of the executive branch of the government for effective service. You are familiar, at least in a general way, with the defects of the present administrative machinery.

You know, for example, that the interior department now has jurisdiction over a great number of bureaus of a miscellaneous character that have nothing to do with each other or with the functions which the interior department was originally established to perform.

You know that many agencies have been located in the Treasury department, the great fiscal department of the government, which are purely non-fiscal in character, such as the coast guard, the public health service, the supervising architect's office and the bureau of war risk insurance.

You know that the great bulk of the civil public works of the government are executed under the supervision of the War department, although the bureau of public roads is located in the Department of Agriculture, and the reclamation service in the Department of the Interior.

You know, furthermore, of the independent existence outside the jurisdiction of any of the great executive departments of some 40-old boards, commissions, offices and bureaus.

These are merely examples of a condition that would require volumes to describe fully, but it is generally known that the executive branch of the government is at the present time illogically and uneconomically organized in many important particulars.

It should be remembered, however, that even with an ideal personnel and a perfect organization it is doubtful if the high degree of economy and efficiency that characterizes private business can ever be attained in the government offices. This is so because economies made by government officials are not transformed into dividends for themselves as they are in private business.

There is an impression in congress and throughout the country that men of great ability are not found in government service; that the salaries are not sufficient to attract and hold them. On the contrary, there are a great many people of distinguished ability in the government service. One is more and more impressed by that fact, especially since the war sent to Washington so many men of large means and famous names with whom the government employees could be compared. The comparison was time and again to the advantage of the government employee. But the salaries are not the attraction; it is the work itself. This is well understood by some eminent observers of public life. Secretary of State Hughes declared himself as follows before the advisory committees of the war risk insurance bureau:

It has been my experience that with the higher officers, the officers of greater institutions, where efficiency is rewarded by public representation—while the field is a limited one because of the great opportunity to men of ability—it is still entirely possible to draw to the public service men of great ability and distinction, because of the desire to render public service, and the number of men who are available for that purpose, while relatively small, is still sufficient if the appointing officer wants men of that class. In order to obtain them, however, he must give a free field. He must not interfere as to political action to control administration tendencies and must permit them to be given the reward which a well-conducted office of importance will give to its incumbent in the public estimation.

Now the difficulty increases when you pass those heads that get the credit and come to the technical expert who has got to do the regular work and upon whose efficiency the operation of the department finally depends. These men are little known. The public hasn't time even to learn their names. They are interested in work to a degree of being willing to make sacrifices.

There is active competition for men of brains and great ability of that sort, and the government will never be served unless it pays the price for those men. Now I think that is a plain situation. You may be able to get a director in the bureau of war risk insurance for $5,000 a year, or for nothing at all, but you can not get an actuary. You cannot get insurance men. You cannot get superintendents. That would be my judgment.

A SUMMER NIGHT In Two Parts

By Gordon W. Parker

I. Oswald Hick buys an engraved twenty-two caliber revolver to protect his mother and sisters from tramps. The Hicks are summering in New Jersey. Oswald's Uncle Kent a detective arrives and is shown the weapon. Oswald is awakened at midnight and sees a man at his bedroom window. He reaches under the pillow for his pistol, but it is gone.

II. The menacing black form at the window, I felt, had paused to flash a dark lantern toward my bed. I went hot and cold by turns, then fought back a chill as I realized the pistol must have fallen to the floor. In that brief glance the intruder's shoulders had looked as wide as a yardstick. I worked over to the side of the bed and groped for the revolver, but my trembling fingers failed to find it. It was maddening.

The rasping sound was soon renewed, but was drowned by a terrific crash of thunder, such as often precedes a summer storm. In desperation I slid across the bed and with my left hand felt for my gun. Again I was bitterly disappointed, and concluding it had dropped between the head of the mattress and the bed, with both hands made a quick search there. The room was now pitch dark except for the lightning flashes, which, with the sharp crashes of thunder, and a settled feeling that I was about to be thoroughly burgled, perhaps killed, left me without an ounce of fight, too cowardly to run for the door and down the hall to Uncle Kent's room.

That very afternoon I had glanced through one of Frank Merriwell's adventures and now recalled some lively lines which ran something like this:

"Look ye, boy," cried Purple Whiskered Pete, the pirate, "ye shall join my crew or feed the sharks!" "Never!" shouted Frank Merriwell. And seizing the buccaneer in his arms, with one herculean effort hurled him into the seething brine."

In my distress I told myself a boy in a sleeveless night shirt—I had cut em off to make it cooler—had no chance with a New York thug. I would have given ten years of my life if Uncle Kent had been there with his ugly-looking Colt. You read things in stories and enjoyed reading them, but in real life it was different. I had also read that these thugs carried a brace of guns and could make you look like a squash colander in less than two seconds.

And now across the hardwood floor that burly brute was tiptoeing! I shuddered as I caught the flash of a dark lantern on the bed. Then all was black again. I pulled the sheet over my head, but in spite of this heard him run through my jewelry, tossing the cheap stuff aside. He seemed to be an expert at this, for I distinctly heard my hard-earned medals hit the rug, one after another; an occasional one skidded off on the bare floor. Stickpins and cuff-links followed, after which I made out the stealthy inspection of dresser drawers.

In a few moments the robber started back across the room, climbed out of the window and pulled down the screen. How long I lay there reeking with perspiration I do not know. The storm blew itself out and a chorus of robins ushered in the day. I turned on the light and searched for the pearl-handled revolver but could find no trace of it. My watch and currency were likewise missing, but I had expected this. My best cravat lay in a pile by the dresser, and in putting them back I missed one of bright red, a favorite, and a horseshoe stickpin of solid gold.

I started afresh as I thought of Uncle Kent. What would he say to my losing my gun—to having my weapon of defense slipped from under my pillow as I snored on? It was a situation that would admit of no possible explanation, and in a sulky mood I turned the key in my bedroom door ignored the maid's calls for breakfast.

An hour later I heard the mater and Uncle Kent talking on the veranda. Uncle Kent was leaving. He would walk to the station. As soon as he started down the driveway I got up and dressed. It had been a hard night and I needed coffee and eggs.

"Did—did you miss anything this morning?" I asked the mater as I turned to the sport page.

"We certainly did," was the none too gracious reply. "Maggie called us twice—a nice way to treat your uncle. He's going to Canada."

Greatly relieved, I swallowed my coffee and stepped into the wide hall for my striped flannel blazer. Some heavy objects caused me to feel in the pockets, and as I realized that here indeed were the missing revolver, watch and currency, my anger rose like a rocket. Jumping on my wheel, I raced down to the station. The conductor was signaling the engineer.

I flung the wheel on the lawn and scanned the open windows. From a window of the second car Uncle Kent looked down upon me, a quiet, well-groomed man.

"You—you 'I punted, white with rage. Then as my eye fell on a familiar bright red scarf and horseshoe stickpin my anger quickly vanished.

Running along the cinder platform I reached up and grabbed the outstretched hand.

"Good-by, Uncle Kent," I called after him as we traded grins. Since that day, I have made my purchases practical purchases. And when I have been beaten in contests of any kind, I have tried to be a good loser and a good sport—all of which I attribute to Uncle Kent Mallos, Pinkerton detective.

Why the $10.90 USCO is better than just a $10.90 tire

ON November 10, 1921, the 30 x 3 1/2 "USCO" was marked to sell for $10.90.

This odd and closely figured price was the lowest quotation ever made on any tire of known standards.

A genuine pioneering step by the makers of U. S. Tires.

Now comes a lot of different $10.90 tires being rushed into the market. "Special" tires. "New" trends.

Unfamiliar to look at—with perhaps an atmosphere of having been made to meet the price.

But the "USCO" still occupies a place by itself. A good old standby on millions of cars for years. Better than it ever was.

Still putting the emphasis on honest quality, even if it does sell for only ten dollars and ninety cents.

The $10.90 tire with the record of a proven product.

The tire that people still buy for the dignity of its quality regardless of the low amount they pay.

EASY MONEY FOR THE BONUS

John T. Taylor, vice chairman of the American Legion's legislative committee, in a letter to United States senators in favor of the soldiers' bonus bill, makes some points which deserve the widest possible publicity and reiteration. His arguments break down the favorite argument of opponents of the bonus—that financing of the adjusted compensation will be an intolerable burden upon business, and by thus throwing men out of work will do the former soldiers more harm than good.

"The banks of the United States," Mr. Taylor writes, "enriched during the war period and the prosperity era immediately following profits which they still retain of $1,747,605,000.
This vast sum is three times greater than the retained profits for a similar period preceding the war, and is three times the amount of money which the chamber of commerce of the United States estimates that veterans will borrow from the banks within the next three years upon adjusted service certificates."

In another paragraph he says: "If the financial interests maintain the average during the current year it will mean that they float and sell to the public $4,200,000,000 worth of new securities, in addition to refunding operations and government issues."

Mr. Taylor is not opposing successful business enterprises. He is not saying that Wall street should not float and sell $4,200,000,000 worth of new securities, at least such of them as mean new and constructive enterprises to add to the general wealth and prosperity to the United States. What he seeks to make clear, and what we seek to emphasize, is that any country in which private enterprise can operate on such a scale is financially able to take care of the adjusted compensation of its soldiers without an undue burden upon business.

We can finance the bonus as provided in the bill which has passed the house and is now before the senate. The only proper question which remains therefore, is whether we are willing to make good the informal promises we made the men who left their jobs and businesses to fight for their country, and whether we will show them that the country appreciates their sacrifices. The senate will answer that question in the affirmative. The greatest argument of the opponents of the bonus has been refuted. Only the plea of justice to the soldiers remains. That will not be scorned.—Chicago Tribune.

VOTE "NO" ON THIS AMEND- MENT

One of the amendments to be voted on this fall will be a proposal to make the Superintendent of Public Instruction appointive instead of elective. We hope the voters of Charlevoix county will defeat this amendment. Michigan has had a long line of capable superintendents of public instruction. What has been the matter of Henry R. Pattengill, J.
E. Hammond, Delos Fall, P. H. Kel-
and the present incumbent Thos. E.
Johnson. Have not these and their predecessors clear back to the time of Francis W. Sherman in 1851, served the state almost without an exception with honor and ability?
That being the case, why change?
Can not the people be trusted to select the head of their educational department? They pay him. They are the ones most vitally interested, and they are no more apt to make mistakes than the governor or any other state official or officials.

There is a concerted movement at the present time to concentrate all the power of the state in the hands of the governor by giving him the power to appoint not only the superintendent of public instruction but nearly all the other state officers. It is not only undemocratic but dangerous. It tends toward too great concentration of authority. The Courier is against any plan which takes away from the voters of Michigan the right to elect a single officer whom they now elect. Vote "No" on the superintendent of public instruction amendment.

NO ROOM FOR KNOCKERS

We have sometimes wondered what would happen if America should become a nation of knockers.
A knocker is the fellow who goes about with a sledge hammer. He never makes anything—he destroys things. His pathway is strewn with wreckage, desolation and ruin. Poverty, oppression and ignorance are the ever effective allies of the knocker.

If, having knocked to pieces, and laid waste such civilization and government as there was, he attempts to rebuild, he rears a social order ten times more cruel, more despotic, more hopeless than that he destroyed.

Russia, under the absolute sway of her Czars, was infinitely happy, contented and free beside Russia under the horrible nightmare of a Lenine and a Trotsky. Even Emma Goldman, deported by the United States to Russia and welcomed by these twin exponents of anarchy, bloodshed, starvation and terrorism, has fled to Sweden. She writes America "Bolshevism is in collapse" and tells how a nation of 167,000,000 has been brutalized, starved, subjugated and plunged into degeneracy. Too bad Emma could not find consolation there. She is a model knocker and Russia is the knockers' paradise.

The lesson should be so clear that every American knocker can read it and should heed it. What America, what every state and community needs is not knockers but builders, not revolutionists but reformers, not destructionists but constructionists.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

"There is no pretense that probi-tion has settled all of life's problems. But the benefit from it has been tremendous." So says Miss Georgia Hopley, first woman U. S. prohibition agent. She continues:
"From everywhere come reports of improved conditions—civic, domestic, social, physical, mental, moral, financial and spiritual. School superintendents are unanimous in their opinion that continuation of the enforcement means better rising Americans. They report pupils healthier and happier, more punctual and thrifty, with fewer echoes of trouble at home. Social workers state their experience with families shows that the difficulties formerly met with, occasioned by intemperance and alcoholism, have almost entirely disappeared."

Discussing the enforcement of the dry amendment, she says: "The only way to have respect for the law is to see that people obey the law.
It is not what one wants or does not want, individually, but what is on the statute books, for enforcement is the question which should be uppermost. The disrespect of law is the disrespect of government. While sober facts show a remarkable indication on the part of the people at large to respect the eighteenth amendment, the rebellion against it in other quarters and the evil effect are obvious.

"I am just now answering through the press a statement made by a representative on the floor of congress that 'for the past few years conditions under prohibition have been nothing but straight hell,' by quoting the highest authority of the nation. President Harding, who stated recently:

"In every community men and women have had an opportunity now to know what prohibition means.
They know that debts are more promptly paid, families better fed and clothed, and more money finds its way into the savings banks. The liquor traffic was destructive of much that was most precious in American life. In another generation I believe that liquor will have disappeared not only from our politics but from our memories."

Why Chevrolet Leads in Sales

Chevrolet New Superior Model is a completely modern, fully equipped car, built to deliver all the real service you can get from any automobile, at the lowest price for which you can get it.

In every line, people pay different prices for the same thing, or what is essentially the same thing.

You can hear an opera for from $1.00 to $50.00.

You can buy a square meal from 50c to $25.00.

You can take a ride for from 1-2c a mile to $2.00 a mile.

In this year of common sense, 1922, people are weighing values. They realize how much they have been spending for show, for vanity, and for non-essentials, and how they are making each dollar work.

That is why Chevrolet is first in sales of standard fully equipped cars

"THE SHEIK"

When screen stars are required in the performance of their roles to battle for the preservation of their lives honor or personal rights, it is often done listlessly, but seldom so in Paramount pictures. The invariable rule of the Paramount directors is to be realistic, so that when a fight is scheduled by the story, it is a real battle and no make-shift affair.

Thus it happened that when Agnes Ayres, Paramount star and featured player with Rudolph Valentino in George Melford's magnificent production of "The Sheik" which will be the feature at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday was directed to fight four Arabian slave girls "for all she was worth," she obeyed orders literally, the result being a scene of intense realism seldom seen in any motion picture. "It was lots of sport," said Miss Ayres the next morning. "But, oh, today! I feel as if I'd been through a cyclone. Those girls were all stockily built and all four clung to me at once and I had to throw them off. I assure you I haven't any idea just what I did—I was told to fight and that's all there was to it."

This is only one of many realistic scenes in this superb production. There are many thrilling moments in the action, a desert sandstorm, battling Bedouins and magnificent Saharan scenes. The picture is based on E. M. Hull's novel of the same name which created a literary sensation both in this country and in England.

"The Primal Law," a William Fox picture which begins a run at the Palace Theatre next Wednesday, presents Dustin Farnum as an engaging type of Western hero. In such roles the popular star has won much of his fame, though his versatility enables him to play a wide variety of parts. There are many changes of mood in the character of Brian Wayne, giving Farnum good opportunities to display his power of expression.

MILEAGE

Mileage is the "commodity" one purchases when buying a tire; not mere materials, but the service that certain materials will perform when combined. Greater mileage is assured in Hydro-Toron tires because processes and principles employed represent the industry's greatest forward steps. The Internal Hydraulic Expansion Process prevents defects from being built into the tire concealed from sight. The Toron (no-rot) chemical treatment of fabric gives greater tensile strength, greater holding power between layers, increased affinity for rubber and complete protection against the damaging effects of moisture. Hydro-Toron tires are over-sized—as big as cords, better than cords. Next time you are ready to buy tires, come in and let us show you the tire you have heard so much about.

PROMISES TO BE VERY INTERESTING

Sunday School Convention at Alden May 15-16

The Sunday school convention to be held at Alden, May 15-16 promises to be very interesting and helpful to the county. For the first time those who have attended these conventions will have the opportunity to hear the new state worker, Clarence Wright, who has set aside the date for this gathering. Other state Sunday school men are also looked for. Here are a few good reasons for gatherings of this nature:

No religious institution affords so large and so satisfactory returns for the amount of the investment.

It reaches, in a helpful manner, as many Sunday-school workers as all other agencies combined. It is economy.

The Association is doing more than any other agency to answer our Lord's prayer for the unity of His followers. God's blessing is assured.

It is the only agency through which the workers of all schools are brought together in exchange of ideas and in co-operative activities.

All the services of the Association, if for the denominational and Union Sunday-schools. It maintains no Sunday schools of its own.

We should not share the blessings without sharing in the financial support. We do not want to be slackers.

It promotes standards, discovers and trains leadership, employs specialists and field workers, sends out literature, and holds conventions, institutes and conferences. In the interest of the best, I must.

The dollar has lost some of its value and the needs are greater. The challenge of God for service and for more and better service is on us. We should not only contribute but contribute more than ever.

Captain Cook, the famous navigator of the eighteenth century, was the most skillful hydrographic surveyor of his time. The number had increased to 18,000 families, tilling a total of 1,432 acres in 1918, while in 1921 in Vienna there are 75,000 families cultivating the city gardens, the total acreage of the year being 5,430.

BURNED TO GROUND EARLY SUNDAY EVENING

Fire From Unknown Origin Destroys Hotel, Bairo and Wm. Eastcott House—Loss Heavy

Ellsworth was visited on Sunday evening with the worst fire of recent years when the New Orient hotel, the barn belonging to the hotel property and the Wm. Eastcott house just north of Klooster's store, were completely destroyed, all in the space of less than two hours.

The fire, which was of unknown origin was discovered about seven o'clock in the evening, attention being first called to it when smoke was seen issuing from the basement window of the hotel and before help could be secured the whole interior of the building was in flames. Mr. and Mrs. VanSkiver, the proprietors were spending the evening at East Jordan and they were called by phone as were both the Charlevoix and East Jordan fire departments.

Both cities responded at once with chemical wagons, but before they could reach here, the tenant house of Wm. Eastcott just north of the Klooster store had ignited and was a mass of flames entirely beyond control. This house was occupied by the George Heller family and they, like the VanSkivers were at East Jordan, when the fire started. It was thought for a while that the Citizen's bank would also go up but hard work in the intense heat finally saved it, although the east side presents a badly battered appearance. If the bank had burned, the whole north side of the street would have no doubt been wiped out.

Nothing was saved from the hotel and the loss will probably reach over fifteen thousand dollars with less than half covered by insurance, while the Eastcott house carried no insurance. The contents of this house, a small part of which was saved were fairly well covered however.

The Ellsworth people extend their heartfelt thanks to the citizens of East Jordan and Charlevoix for their prompt response to the call, as well as to those from the surrounding country who worked hard to save the town from almost complete destruction. Mr. VanSkiver expects to start rebuilding at once in order to be prepared for summer business and is already working out plans for a new building to replace the one destroyed.

Vienna Spades Are Trumps.

Food shortage in Austria has stimulated the cultivation of city gardens. In 1915, 3,000 families were developing a total of 301 acres in small gardens in Vienna. The number had increased to 18,000 families, tilling a total of 1,432 acres in 1918, while in 1921 in Vienna there are 75,000 families cultivating the city gardens, the total acreage of the year being 5,430.

It is probably the absence of one brand of justice that causes the agencies of justice to be branded.

LIVE STOCK FACTS

KEEPING OUT ALL DISEASES

Quarantine Instituted Against Importation of Live Stock From Different Countries.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The prevalence of foot-and-mouth disease in some European countries, in certain sections of Asia and Africa, as well as in South America, has caused the United States Department of Agriculture to institute special quarantines against the importation of live stock from these places. This systematic survey of foreign sources of breeding stock and protection against the introduction of diseased animals is annually worth millions of dollars to the live stock breeders of the United States.

Any one who wishes to import cattle, sheep, goats, swine or other animals from any country, except Canada or Mexico, must first obtain from the secretary of agriculture a permit, to be presented to the American consul at the port from which the animals will be shipped. No permits are issued for shipment from countries where rinderpest, surra, foot-and-mouth disease, or contagious pleuro-pneumonia exist.

Foot-and-mouth disease prevailed to serious extent in England during the past two years, but recently has been limited to the extent that horses from both England and Ireland are now allowed to enter the United States. If certain restrictions regarding feeding and care are observed. These regulations require that the animals be subjected to disinfection, both before shipment and after arrival in this country, and that the feed and bedding used during the voyage come from this country. These precautions, although they may seem very radical to those who do not appreciate the critical character of the diseases under discussion, are effective in preventing the introduction of live-stock plagues into the United States.

Peculiar "Crop" Rotation.

An unusual rotation of crops, consisting of fish two years and oats one year, is reported by a recent writer in the Scottish Journal of Agriculture. This occurs in some localities in the reclaimed regions along the coast of England and the continent. The fish are raised in shallow pools, which are drained and cultivated every third year.

On the other hand in regard to those Western Michigan farmers who want a special corps of deputy sheriffs to protect their orchards against automobilists, we suggest that they merely step out while the strangers are in the orchards and

Plant White Fish Spawn

Captain S. M. Rose, of Charlevoix, who was in Petoskey last night for the meeting of Ivanhoe Commandery, No. 36, Knight Templar, reported that the federal department of fisheries planted 7,000,000 whitefish off Middle Village, northwest of Harbor Springs. The tug left Charlevoix hatchery, where the whitefish fry was hatched, at 6 o'clock Thursday morning. The baby fish were three weeks old.—Petoskey Evening News.

Making of Arrow Heads

That the making of arrow heads by Indians was not a delicate process of chipping with hammer and chisel, as many suppose, is shown in the Mason County Enterprise by Dan Shoup, who learned the art in 1855. The Indian bends one green twig into the form of a hair pin for tongs, and brooms up the end of another by chewing it. "He then takes a piece of flint of the desired size and lays it in a bed of coals. When properly heated he removes it with his improvised tongs, moistens his little broom with his tongue and applies it to the part of the flint he wishes to remove. Zing! A chip flies off. He continues the process while the flint retains the proper temperature; then he returns it to the fire and the process is repeated until the arrow head is required shape."—Detroit News.

Kalkaska Reports Bridge Done

Kalkaska county is experiencing the most trouble with floods along its water ways that it has suffered in years. While there was the largest body of snow in years, it went very gradually until the ground was thawed so there has been no trouble on the high land. But the heavy thaw and rainfall of the past few days have caused the swamps and waterways to be flooded. The Boardman river, where it flows past the village of Kalkaska, has overflowed its banks several rods. The new bridge which the state built last fall on the Mackinaw trail is washed out. The bridge over the north branch of the Manistee river on the road to Grayling is also washed out. Several culverts are badly washed and much damage is being done where the water overflows the roads in low places.

Wolves Kill Deer

Eugene Brown of Carp river told the Republican-News on Tuesday of the finding of six bodies of dead deer—all done—on one of the creeks that are tributary to Carp river. The location of the finding was in town 42 north of range 3 west, where the deer "yarded" during the past winter. The killing, Mr. Brown said, appeared to be merely the instinctive savagery of the wolves, as the throats of the animals had been torn but little, if any, parts of the bodies had been eaten.—St. Ignace Republican-News.

Had Heavy Snow

A heavy fall of snow in Marquette was reported Tuesday. South Shore employees claimed that the snow was hard "bucking," but none of its passengers, trains were more than a few minutes late and all connections were made without difficulty. It was necessary for the city's snow brigade to put in some hard work opening up the principal streets where the men reported many high drifts. The street cars were run on schedule Wednesday but the line was open only as far as Gold street. The snow on Iron street between Gold street and Pioneer avenue was heavily drifted.—St. Ignace Republican-News.

Mrs. Alden Chamberlain Passes 90th Birthday

Following is a poem written by Mrs. Alden Chamberlain, which she read to her friends on Monday, April 17, her 90th birthday anniversary: Just ninety years ago today

A little girl was born to stay
For ninety long successive years
Within this vale, of smiles and tears.

And in her early childhood she
With her parents, crossed the sea.

They landed in Detroit small
Before they built the houses tall.

We see her next a girl of ten,
A youthful pioneer, and then

'Twas in the woods her work began,
In the wild woods of Michigan.

When nine more years had passed away
Sly Cupid that then to display

His skill, and sent a piercing dart
To wound the maiden's tender heart.

Then flung the rest among the men,
And one was struck, who said

Amen
To batchelors hall, and batchelor's life

A said I'm going to win a wife.

He found the maiden's wounded heart,
Relieved her of the piercing dart.

Then clasped her hand, and sixty years
They walked this vale of smiles and tears.

Then death claimed him, and left her here
To wait and watch, from year to year.

Now soon she hopes to pass away,
Unto the Summer Land to stay,
With those who went on long before,
And left for her an open door.

She hopes the Angels soon will come
And take her to her heavenly home.

We quote her pleading words so clear,
And for her sake we hope they hear.

Come Angel bands, bear me above,
Upon the wings of your kind love,

Or let me float, with you along
Upon the waves of some sweet song.

We'll rest upon some brilliant star,
Until we see the gate ajar,

We'll hasten then, to meet and know
The Savior who has blessed us so.

And when we meet him face to face,
And rest in His divine embrace,

We'll know our struggle then are past,
And we have found our home at last.

Mrs. Alden Chamberlain.

Clean and DRY for the line without a wringer

THE Laun-Dry-Ette has no wringer. It washes the clothes, and whirles the suds out; it rinses them and whirles the rinse water out; it blues them and whirles them dry for the line—a whole tubful at a time.

The Laun-Dry-Ette saves work on wash day because it dries as well as washes. It saves work on mending day because it never smashes buttons or injures the daintiest fasteners. The Laun-Dry-Ette does not require extra tubs, because both the washing and the drying are done right in the Laun-Dry-Ette itself. The Laun-Dry-Ette prevents red hands, because it makes it unnecessary to put your hands in the water even once.

BIRDS FARMERS BEST FRIENDS

THE WISE FARMER WILL ALWAYS PROTECT THEM

Detroit Board of Commerce Head, Who is a Farmer, Says Birds Need Protection

The birds are the farmers' best friends and the wise farmer will do everything in his power to protect all of them in all seasons of the year.

This is the message to the agriculturists of the state by C. A. Bingham, head of the agricultural division of the Detroit Board of Commerce, former secretary of the Michigan State Farm Bureau and who, as a farmer, has helped to make horticultural history in this state.

Mr. Bingham's statement was made following wide publication throughout Michigan of an article disseminated by the Associated Press in which James A. Smith, Jr., Detroit bird lover, expressed the conviction that song birds were increasing in numbers in this part of the country.

"Mr. Smith's statement is being received joyously by all thinking farmers of Michigan," Mr. Bingham said. "Any agriculturist who has made a study of the matter has learned by actual experience that the birds are adding hundreds of thousands of dollars each year to the wealth of Michigan by destroying worms, insects and foul seeds, and that the damage they cause is trivial compared with the good they do."

"Birds have been convicted by some farmers in the past because they destroyed fruit or ate grain. A close study reveals that in most instances where crows and blackbirds pull growing corn they are seeking out worms and other animal life that would destroy the corn eventually if allowed to live. Thus it is seen they are a distinct benefit rather than a menace."

"Other farmers are unfriendly to the robin because he eats cherries. It is true these birds will strip a tree if it is the only cherry tree on a farm, but where a number of trees are located on one farm the amount of fruit destroyed is so small comparatively that it scarcely is noticed. While the robins are eating a few of the cherries they are destroying thousands of insects that are a menace to the entire crop. Actual investigation has shown birds that peck holes in apples are seeking insects either on the outside or inside of the fruit that would spoil the apple if permitted to exist. No fruit grower who has investigated but is a warm champion of bird life of all kinds."

"Another argument advanced against the birds is that they spread San Jose scale in traveling from one tree to another."

"This they undoubtedly do to a certain extent, but if the fruit grower fails to keep his trees sprayed the scale will kill his orchards within a short time, regardless of the birds."

"Still other farmers complain of sparrows and pigeons carry hog diseases from one farm to another. This is possible, but unless farmers vaccinate their animals they are in danger of losing them, regardless of bird life."

"The few faults the birds have are so far overshadowed by their good points that no jury of men and women could be found who, upon hearing both sides of the argument, but would give the birds a vote of thanks without leaving their seats."

Mr. Bingham has carried out several experiments on his farm in Oakland county to prove his contention that birds are the farmers' best friends. At one time he took a young sparrow from a nest and placed it in a box where it could be reached by the mother bird and at the same time be where he could observe it. He discovered that the mother bird fed the young sparrow from three to six times each hour all day long, in each instance an insect or worm, many of them dangerous to crops and trees, being destroyed. Mr. Bingham urges other farmers to make the same test.

"Scientists have shown that if all bird life were destroyed life for humans in the world would become impossible within a few years because of the rapidity with which insects multiply," Mr. Bingham said. "I will venture to say that if it were not for the birds no growing thing would be left in Michigan within five years."

"No handicap should be placed in the way of the birds on the farms. On the other hand they should be induced to stay. One of the finest things imaginable would be for every farmer to post signs on his property telling of the value of the birds to the public generally and appealing to the hunters not to destroy our friends of the air. It is criminal for any person to destroy bird life of any sort. It is killing one of your friends."

Mr. Bingham urges the farmers of Michigan who have no evergreen trees on their property to plant a few on the land and provide nesting

CHARLEVOIX CASTS BIG "WET" VOTE

BONDING ISSUE CARRIES BY A BIG MAJORITY

City About the "Wettest" Spot in the County When it Comes to Voting on Water Question

Charlevoix cast an extremely "wet" vote at the special election Tuesday. In fact it was so "wet" that results show out of 708 votes cast in the three wards, 689 were for the proposed water works extension, 17 were against, one was an illegal ballot and the other a blank.

No city ever voted more intelligently on any proposition. And the vital importance of carrying the proposition was never more urgent. The few who voted against it must certainly have been ill advised, or were not fully conversant with the real situation.

Further, the people of Charlevoix, have demonstrated their confidence in the recommendations of the members of the city council. Never before in the history of the city has a question of greater importance been brought before the voters, and the results plainly indicate that they were fully aware of the true situation and the actual necessity of correcting the conditions at the city water plant.

Charlevoix will now establish an entirely new source of water supply. One that will produce an adequate supply of water for many years to come, also one that without doubt will give the city a PURE WATER SUPPLY.

It can now answer the hundreds of inquiries from all parts of the country by stating that the water situation has been corrected not by remodeling the old plant, but by rebuilding and entirely new one. "Come—spend the summer with us—the water is fine."

Work of constructing the new plant will start immediately and by the middle of July should be completed. In the meantime, daily water tests will be made and the supply carefully watched. We can assure our summer friends that we will be ready for them when they arrive, and the water will be pure.

Following is the vote cast Tuesday by wards:

Surprised Choir Leader

Twenty members of the Cecilian Choir of the Congregational church surprised the church organist and choir-leader, Miss Ione Catton, at the home of Mrs. Cassie Hart on Clinton street, with a six o'clock pot-luck supper Monday evening of this week. The girls presented Miss Catton with a painting of "The Birches" and path on Michigan avenue, in appreciation of her work done in the church for the past two years.

BUSY BEE WILL BE KEPT STILL BUSIER

The proverbial "busy bee" is to be kept still busier if an ingenious little contrivance just invented by a government scientist is adopted by the apiarists of the country. An official of the bureau of entomology has invented a device which will operate on the principles of the turnstile and that it will register the arrival home and departure of every bee that enters the hive on honey-making errands.

The apparatus consists of a gate to be placed at the entrance to a beehive with a series of telephone message registers attached in such a way as to register each time a bee hops, skips or jumps on or over the contrivance, which was said to be operated electrically by alternating current.

The inventor explained that while considerable electrical energy was needed to operate the recording gate on the average hive, the amount of energy expended by the device each time a bee passed was infinitesimal.

DANCE PROVED MOST POPULAR

ONE OF BEST ENTERTAINMENTS OF SEASON

Masonic Temple Tastefully Decorated and Numerous Clever Costumes Added to Enjoyment

The masquerade dance held in Masonic Temple last Thursday night proved one of the most popular and picturesque entertainments of the season. The ball room reflected the taste and labor of the house committee.

Lanterns of violet, pink, blue and pale orange hung from wires, stretched obliquely across the room, while Old Glory swung above the dancer's heads in the center. The light brown walls were decorated with white lattices, ornamented with sprays of ivy.

A novel feature was a halloo shower followed by paper ribbon streamers, the variegated balloons raining unexpectedly from a suspended box. A refreshment stand in the billiard room added to the pleasure and comfort of the guests.

Among the clever costumes was one of rich Burgundy satin that quite gorgeously suggested the splendor of Turkey, and the unmasking fully sustained the impression of beauty. A snowy owl was very attractive, likewise a Scotch lassie. Other Oriental costumes were very good. A petite lady of the Colonial period looked charming.

But it would be an injustice to ignore the men. There were the gallant, sheik, tuxedo, sailor boys, clowns, tramp and colonial gallants. And our affable assistant postmaster, Lee Smith, in high-heeled slippers and filmy creation, sunbonnet and curls, all of which added to the fun. E. A. Nordrum was quick to sidestep undue credit for the affair. "The ideas came from the committee," said Mr. Nordrum. "We all helped."

Timeliness' Orchestra of Bay City, furnished the music, which included several new fox trots well rendered.

FORTY LADIES ATTEND MEETING

W. C. T. U. Members Gather at Home of Mrs. Emmet Coulter

Mrs. Emmet Coulter entertained the W. C. T. U. last week on Wednesday, this being the April meeting. Forty ladies were present for the afternoon meeting, others coming late to partake of the fifteen-cent tea which Mrs. Coulter's circle served.

The bond issue was explained and every member urged to attend the special election to be held April 25th.

The contest which has been in operation for several weeks closed with the April meeting, Mrs. Hooker's circle securing the greatest number of points, 332 in all. The remaining three circles will banquet the women, Tuesday, May 9th.

Twenty-five new members were secured for the Union, making a total of eighty-four paid members. One hundred thirty-two dollars and forty-eight cents ($132.48) was raised during the contest from the four circles.

Mrs. H. S. Harsha had charge of the program for the April meeting, the topic being "Women in Industry" and "What kind of Community Work Can We Follow in our City," which was so ably handled that they will be included in the program for the County meet which will be held in Charlevoix the latter part of May.

All committees are showing a splendid spirit of cooperation and much good is being accomplished.

RECKLESS DRIVING PLACED UNDER BAN

Justice Cooper Hands Out Stiff Sentence to Offender

Young blades, who in the past have been in the habit of filling up on Moonshine whiskey, or any other kind for that matter, and driving their autos about the community in a reckless manner, would do well to sit up and take notice, or they are quite liable to spend some time in the county jail, besides having to pay a stiff fine.

Justice H. C. Cooper handed out a sentence to one of the offenders on Wednesday of last week that should receive the approval of every auto driver and citizen in this community. Jack Bird of Eveline township was the offender, and drew a fine $25.00 and 30 days in the county jail. He has the option of paying the $25 or spending 60 days in the bastille. We hope when he is again at liberty, he will cut out the booze and drive his Lizzie as it should be driven, and respect the right of others.

We believe if every justice should deal likewise with such offenders, the pedestrian and the auto owner who drives decently will have a better chance to die a natural death.

Drunken auto drivers should be jailed, and likewise the sober speeder who burn up our city streets and country roads.

CITY IS VISITED BY THREE FIRES

FIRE DEPARTMENT KEPT ON THE JUMP

Brady & Shapton's Grocery and Meat Market Sustain the Heaviest Individual Loss

Usually when Charlevoix is visited by one fire, it is immediately followed by two more, three being about the limit in succession. At any event, this is the manner in which it has worked out lately.

Friday night about 5:30 p. m., fire was discovered in the Russell & Boznanago restaurant, next to Brady & Shapton's store. The entire upper part of the kitchen was afire, and within a few minutes the upper part of both buildings was ablaze.

The fire department responded quickly and soon had the fire under control. The roof and ceiling was badly burned in both places of business. Damage in stock to Brady & Shapton will amount to quite a sum, especially in perishable goods. Stock and fixtures were covered by insurance.

About noon Saturday the department responded to an alarm sent in from the home of E. M. Geer, 114 East Lincoln street. The fire was started by a spark from the chimney, which set the roof of the back shed afire, burning that and the roof on the front of the house. Little damage was done, and the loss was fully covered by insurance.

The department was called to the Robert Weststaff home on West Lincoln avenue Monday about 5:00 p. m. by a small blaze which had started in the roof. Mr. Weststaff had the fire under control a few minutes and with the aid of the chemical, was extinguished without damage to the interior of the house. The loss was fully covered by insurance.

WELCH ARRIVES WITH SADDLE HORSES

Charlevoix Riding School Will Have Added Features

Among the first of those to arrive in Charlevoix to prepare for the season's business is Frank Welch, proprietor of the Charlevoix Riding School, who arrived on Thursday last with his string of thoroughbred Virginia saddle horses.

Mr. Welch, who spent the winter at Southern Pines with Mr. Creamer, reports a most successful season at that point, and is well satisfied that the summer business will be as good here as in former years.

He says his string of saddle horses to be used here this season will excel those of previous years, both in number and riding qualities.

TEACHERS SEEK STATE CHANGE

ASK THAT SUPERINTENDENT BE APPOINTED

Idea Is to Take Schools of Michigan Out of Politics as Much as Possible

Petitions asking that an amendment to the state constitution, providing for the appointment of the superintendent of public instruction by the state board of education, instead of electing to this office, are being circulated by teachers of public schools of the state this week. Such petitions are being circulated in Charlevoix by local teachers who feel that it would be better to have the superintendent appointed instead of elected.

The move is one intended, as much as possible, to remove the schools of the state from politics. In speaking of the proposition A. S. Whitney, president of the Michigan State Teachers' association, says:

"How can we take the Michigan schools out of politics? Amend the constitution in such manner as to provide for the election of the state superintendent of public instruction by the state board of education instead of by popular vote as at present. Such action would remove the office from party politics and place it upon the same high plane as that of the presidency of our higher institutions—the university, agricultural college, school of mines, normal school—or that of the superintendent of our best city school systems. It is potentially a much more important position than the headships of these institutions and offers far greater possibilities for constructive statesmanship."

"As late as 1850 all the city superintendents in the United States were elected by popular vote save ten. Today every city in the United States has abandoned this plan as a failure."

"The purpose of this proposed amendment is, in short, simply to transfer to the state the machinery of our best city systems, and thereby to empower the state board of education to select a superintendent of public instruction anywhere within or without the state, determine his salary, fix his term of office, and grant him freedom to devote his whole self to the duties of his office unhampered by political expediency. This arrangement would multiply the efficiency and add dignity and honor to the office the same as in the other states where it is in full operation, or as it is in our best city school systems."

"The proposed amendment is presented with the full knowledge and consent of the state department of public instruction and the state board of education. It is also highly commended by the United States commissioner of education and many other leading educators in the United States. It also has the unanimous endorsement of the Michigan State Teachers' association, Federation of Teachers' clubs and many other organizations."

A very pleasant afternoon was spent Friday, April 21st at the home of Mrs. Alex Cameron when about fifteen of her friends gathered to welcome her home after spending the winter in Chicago with her son. A delightful pot-luck supper was served, after which the evening was spent in conversation and music.

USES HIS TEETH—GOES TO JAIL

Sam McCarty, a Polek, who is employed in one of the Cobb and Mitchell camps near Springvale, was before Justice Staacks in Boyne Falls, on Thursday, of last week, charged with assault and battery on the person of George Tsetney.

McCarty had been freely imbibing from a bottle of moonshine which he claims to have purchased from the driver of a passing car. He visited the Tsetney shack and not being pleased with the reception tendered him, proceeded to tie the old gentleman into knots, and made several attempts to devour him, leaving sundry tooth marks on his anatomy.

Justice Staacks found McCarty guilty as charged and sentenced him to pay a fine of fifty dollars and to spend thirty days in the county jail, or in default of the fine being paid to remain a guest of the county for ninety days.—Boyne Citizen.

How Uncle Sam Spends Your Money in Conducting Your Business

VIEW OF THE EMPLOYEE.

The obvious solution of the government's employment problem is the standardization and readjustment of salaries. To be scientific, such readjustment must rest upon a careful reclassification of the service. Conditions are very different now, both in regard to the functions of offices and the cost of living, from what they were when positions in the government service were first classified and salaries assigned to those positions.

It struck me that an interested party in this inquiry into how the government conducts its business was the employee himself. He ought to know from actual daily experience something about the mechanism of the national business and the relations between the working force and employer.

It was clearly impossible to talk to the more than 500,000 men and women who work for the government, but I learned that between 50,000 and 60,000 of them are banded together in an association called the National Federation of Federal Employees. It is a regular labor union, and is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. It includes all classes of government workers, technical and scientific men, as well as clerks and unskilled workers.

I asked the president of this employees' union, Luther C. Steward, if he and his associates were authorized to speak for all its membership. He assured me that they were.

So I asked him to tell me about the conditions of government employment and how the business was carried on. I am glad I did, for what he told me discloses not only facts, but a state of mind existing among the employees which necessarily must be taken into account in any consideration of the efficiency and management of our common business. Here then is what the employees, who speak through Mr. Steward, have to say, and the constructive program they present for the improvement of the service:

The civil service on its human side consists of about 500,000 men and women engaged in the operation of an antiquated patch-up machine. Because of the durability of its vital parts and the faith and ability of the mass of the operatives the machine still functions. But the parts are ill-fitted, and many of them are defective. The managers and superintendents of the establishment, being too often chosen for political reasons, are frequently inept, and the operating system is clumsy and disjointed.

The employees are recruited under a law which provides a test of qualifications, and probably nine-tenths of the rank and file have satisfactorily passed the entrance test. But the better positions, say from $3,000 upward, are usually occupied by political appointees. Another considerable group of employees get their appointments by executive order, waiving civil-service tests of fitness.

The newcomer in the service, therefore, finds himself on against a minimum of opportunity for promotion, with the disheartening knowledge that the advancement which is earned by competence is all too likely to be given to the friend or political supporter of some congressman or executive who wishes to pay a political debt. And the employee is subject to dismissal at the will of the executive of his department, unless he can bring sufficient political influence to bear.

In other words, the civil-service law is not backed up by enforcing power in the Civil Service Commission. It merely recalls the applicants for entrance. Thereafter the employee's fate is largely a matter of his own luck and negative passive merit. There is no system by which he may be fitted to the job, and no protection against dismissal, unless the employee himself can show that the reason is political or religious. "For the good of the service," as the law reads, covers every other charge which the executive official may bring. There is no court of appeal.

Such is the oppressive, incentiveless, vitriol atmosphere of the government service. It stifles initiative, frustrates ambition and reduces the mass of employees to a more or less passive state, which is permeated by a sense of fear.

In such an atmosphere, naturally enough, the physical conditions of employment are far from what they should be, and the government loses efficiency, as does any other employer where the wage scale is inadequate and unstandardized, where sanitary conditions are bad and hours of work too long and irregular.

The wage scale is so low that the Civil Service Commission has difficulty in securing properly qualified applicants, and throughout the service the turnover is high. Employees doing the same kind of work often receive widely different rates of pay; experienced workers often receive less than beginners, and virtually every kind of inequality and injustice exists.

UP TO YOU AND CONGRESS

At the present time it would be a misnomer to speak of the national government having a personnel system at all. The reform accomplished by the establishment of the civil service commission and the merit system has touched but one phase of the personnel problem, and that but partially. Entrance into the government service, practically nothing has been done in the way of erecting the government service into careers that will attract and retain efficient men. Bad as conditions were in this respect before the war, they have become many times worse during and since that event.

The correction of these evils presents a problem of great complexity. It cannot be achieved by a half-hearted or half-way tinkering with the present system. Nothing, out a thorough reorganization of the whole personnel system and the establishment of a new system covering all phases of the question and embodying the most approved principles of personnel administration will meet the needs of the situation. Fortunately a legislative body has been made in this direction. It at least furnishes a starting point for action looking to the giving to the government of the personnel system that it must have if government work is to be even measurably well done.

The situation now is that there is an insistent demand on the part of the public that the whole administration of the national government be put upon a more efficient basis, and that the present waste of public funds, resulting from present defective organization and methods, shall cease; that congress is alive to this demand and has made a start toward meeting it; that the fundamental defects in the existing system are well known; and that the direction efforts looking to reform should take are clearly established. The responsibility is thus squarely up to congress.

If the problem that confronts congress in carrying this legislative end is analyzed it will be found that the fundamental reforms are: The reform by congress itself of its own organization and methods of procedure; the entire revision of the present system under which the financial needs of the government are determined and provided; the setting up of an agency and procedure through which the expenditure of public funds may be properly controlled and congress be given that information regarding such expenditures which it must have if it is to assure itself that its agents, the administrative services, are properly performing their duties, and to act intelligently in respect to the future grant of funds; the provision of an organ through which the President may in fact, as well as in name, discharge his duties as head of the administration; the reorganization of the administrative branch of the government so as to eliminate the present widespread overlapping of jurisdictions and functions and indefensible duplication of services, organization, plant and work; and the complete recasting of the present system under which the personnel required to man the governmental plant is secured, compensated, promoted, assigned to particular tasks and controlled, to the end that not only justice will be done to the several classes of governmental employees, but that a personnel system will be established that will insure a maximum of efficiency in the actual conduct of public affairs.

A study of action actually had or now under way shows that steps have been taken toward the accomplishment of each of these fundamental reforms. The introduction of a budget system is a long step forward.

I don't mean in the least to give the impression that all private business is perfectly run and that only government business is badly managed, or that all the efficient people are in private employ and only inefficient in the public service. Neither of those conditions exists.

In the common phrase, you have got to hand it to Alexander Hamilton for devising a scheme that has stood up since revolutionary days. It has not been fundamentally altered since his day. There has been no readjustment of salaries in the departmental service for sixty years. That implies a certain loyalty and faithfulness on the part of the workers.

My only desire is to disclose the present condition of government employment; that good men are leaving, and that the present tendency, if not checked, will inevitably drive out of the service all of the efficient and leave only the mediocre and incompetent. I have said little myself, but have chosen to let the men working for the government tell the story. Every assertion of fact in these articles comes from some responsible source or authority within the service. I am not making a criticism or attack from the outside, but merely serving as a mouthpiece for your hired men.

Perhaps they had Zeke's address in letters up in the garret, maybe a chest full of 'em, but then it was easier to let Ben hint Zeke. Today people are addressing letters to John Smith, New York, N. Selznick's "A Man's Home" Introduces Notable Cast

What is regarded as one of the best cast screen plays of the year is the forth coming Selznick Special, "A Man's Home," which on Saturday will begin a two day engagement at the Palace Theatre. In addition to its notable cast, "A Man's Home" is said to tell an unusually strong dramatic story, written by Anna Steese Richardson and Edmund Breece, and the picture has had the advantage of the directorial genius of Ralph Ince, who personally supervised the filming of the play.

The cast for the production was selected from the wide field that only Broadway can present to the casting director of a photoplay. The characters were all outlined and studied with a view to fitting the individual player to the essential parts—and there were seven roles that demand most intelligent interpretation in order that the story might be visualized efficiently.

When the cast was completed it was found that there was a very desirable blend of both talent and "names" in the assemblage—names that are known to "fans" the country over. Harry T. Murey, who has been a screen star for years, and Kathryn Williams, one of the best known women in pictures, interpret the leading roles.

Matt Moore and Faire Binney contribute the love interest, while Grace Valentine and Roland Bottomley are more adventures than "villains" in providing a counter-motive that is said to invest the plot with its "surprise" angles. Margaret Sedden plays the role of an old-fashioned mother who finds herself bewildered in the swirl of events that engulf her family.

First to establish the $10.90 price "Usco"

THE makers of U. S. Tires made this announcement last November—

"Hereafter the price of the 30 x 3 1/2 'Usco' is $10.90."

The lowest price ever quoted on a tire of quality reputation and standard performance.

And now, with the opening of Spring, there seem to be quite a number of "New and Special tires" coming into the market in the $10.90 price range.

Perhaps you are wondering just what there can be either "new" or "special" about these tires.

It can't be the $10.90 price—"Usco" established that five months ago.

Nor quality reputation and standard performance—for it takes more than one full season for any new tire to demonstrate where it stands in quality and value.

With so many tires rushing into this $10.90 price field (now that the season promises business from the American car-owner), it is worth remembering that "Usco" showed its good faith by announcing this price last fall.

The same intent to serve that has made "Usco" a standard value for years.

The "Usco" Tire was never better than it is today—with its established quality, its time-tested performance, and its price closely figured in tune with the times.

Hurt By a Tractor
Jesse S. Dennis, prominent wholesale potato jobber, was seriously injured early Wednesday morning of last week at his home in Brutus, where a heavy caterpillar tractor passed over his body several times.
Mr. Dennis had gone alone to a field, and in starting the tractor, was caught in some way and thrown to the ground. Unable to extricate himself, he was dragged by the revolving wheels and badly mangled. He managed to walk to his residence, where he collapsed.

A Kalamazoo woman who received a basket of food from a charitable organization sent back asking for a set of false teeth with which to eat it. Obviously, she felt any one who attempts to break old habits of not eating should not stop half way.

Treat 'em Rough at Grand Haven
Some people at Grand Haven who captured a prohibition sleuth made an attempt to stuff him into the furnace, it is alleged. Naturally, they had an idea that he might be dry enough to burn.

"His promises were like pie crusts—easily broken," declared a Grand Rapids woman in her plea for divorce. "That is," he may have reported sarcastically, "like the pie crust mother used to make."

HEART RENDERING STORIES CONTINUE

Thousands of Children Dying in East From Starvation

Heart-rendering stories continue to come from the Near East. Christian Armenians are facing extermination and the only hope for these unfortunate people is in the relief that comes from America. Unless liberal contributions are received at this time thousands of children will die of starvation and exposure.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union of Charlevoix will receive and forward moneys to the Near East Relief Fund. Make your contributions to Mrs. Metcalf, Mrs. Kibbe or Mrs. Saltonstall.

CLEAN UP PLAN IS STATE WIDE

Cities and Villages are Asked to Join in Big Drive May 1-6

Mayors and presidents of Michigan's 114 cities and 330 villages are being urged by the state departments of health and public safety to observe Clean-up and Fire Prevention week from May 1 to 6.

Col. Roy C. Vandercreek, commissioner of public safety points out that 75 per cent of all fires are preventable, the cost of which amounts to $9,000,000 annually. This amount could be saved, he adds, if inflammable material is removed from premises, fire regulations observed and precautions taken for possible emergencies. Fifty-two persons lost their lives in burning buildings alone last year, records show.

In his letters to mayors and village presidents, county school commissioners and health officers Dr. R. M. Olin, commissioner of health, calls attention to the fact that malaria appeared in various localities last fall and that citizens should be interested in eradicating all breeding places of mosquitoes, such as stagnant pools, uncovered cisterns, undrained ditches, tin cans and open receptacles.

"Low death rates were experienced in most communities during 1921, 55 the letter reads. "Efforts to clean up in the spring—and to continue the clean-up, throughout the year—will stimulate sanitary precautions and have a favorable effect upon the death rate in 1922. If the clean up could be extended to include a general paint up, repair up and 'keep it up' campaign, much could be done to alleviate unemployment. Civic cleanliness spells health and longevity."

The big event of the school year occurred in the Beach Hotel ball room and tea room Friday evening of last week, when the juniors of the high school entertained the graduating class and guests numbering nearly two hundred.

The ball rooms was prettily decorated in purple and gold, paper streamers of these colors hanging from the center beam to the side walls, forming a low ceiling, the windows and lights being partly concealed with narrow streamers of the same colors.

Dancing began at 9:30 o'clock with a grand march led by Mr. and Mrs. Eversz Nordrum who, with Mr. and Mrs. Irving Hallett, comprised the chaperons of the evening. The seventeenth dance was featured with serpentine confetti and balloons, and punch was served throughout the numbers.

FERRIS TO RUN FOR THE SENATE

Former Governor Receives Endorsement of Leaders of Party

Woodbridge N. Ferris will oppose the Republican nominee for the U. S. senate in the fall in Michigan election this year.

Democrats of Michigan assembled in a state advisory convention at Grand Rapids Thursday unanimously indorsed the former governor to be the Democratic standard bearer in the race for the senate seat. While this action does not necessarily bar any other Democrat from seeking the nomination in the September primary, it is believed that Ferris will be unopposed.

Alva Cummins, Lansing lawyer, and James M. Balch, mayor of Kalamazoo, received the indorsement of the delegates attending the convention as candidates for the gubernatorial nomination.

He was also interested in the summer tourist interests of the region, and had a half interest in Old Trail Tavern on the shore road.

Why Suffer So?

Why suffer from a bad back, from sharp shooting pains, headaches, dizziness and distressing urinary ill?

Charlevoix people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Ask your neighbor? Could you ask for stronger proof of merit?

St. Chury 4, 1920, Mrs. Cowan said: "I had been subject to severe backaches and pains through my kidneys. I was also annoyed by the irregular action of my kidneys. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and I brought relief."

On May 4, 1920, Mrs. Cowan said: "I always recommend Doan's Kidney Pills for they certainly are a fine kidney medicine. Doan's rid me of kidney complaint years ago and I always keep them in the house and use them occasionally when I feel any attack of backache coming on."

Who Started Life Insurance?

Life insurance is an outgrowth of custom of insuring ships and cargoes, practiced by the owners from olden times. They would insure against the loss of the ship through the death of her skipper. These policies were issued by individuals before companies came into existence. The first recorded life policy was issued in London, 1583, on the life of William Bydlands, for 12 months. It was underwritten by 13 individuals, the premium being $50 per $500.

MILEAGE

Mileage is the "commodity" one purchases when buying a tire; not mere materials, but the service that certain materials will perform when combined. Greater mileage is assured in Hydro-Toron tires because processes and principles employed represent the industry's greatest forward steps.

The Internal Hydraulic Expansion Process, prevents defects from being built into the tire—concealed from sight. The Toron (no-rot) chemical treatment of fabric gives greater tensile strength, greater holding power between layers, increased affinity for rubber and complete protection against the damaging effects of moisture.

Hydro-Toron tires are oversize—as big as cords, better than cords. Next time you are ready to buy tires, come in and let us show you the tire you have heard so much about.

FLOOD CLOSES ONAWAY MILL

BREAK THROWS 80 MEN OUT OF EMPLOYMENT

High Water Endangering Property
Around Mullet Lake Summer Resort Places

Notwithstanding the washout at the Tower dam, which caused the river to break through its banks and impair the efficiency of the water power, Onaway is still supplied with lighting with what water that finds its way through the wheel-pot. However, it was found necessary to discontinue the use of the power circuit and in consequence about 80 men employed at America Rim company at Onaway are thrown out of employment.

The new channel made by the river has washed the sand to the bed of rock of limestone for a space of about 300 feet wide, but it is said the expense of repairing the dam will not be as great as was first believed, on account of the rock formation where the course of the river has been diverted. As yet no attempt has been made to repair the break.

Between highwater and the floating ice the owners of resort property around the shores of Mullet Lake are caused much uneasiness, especially along the west shore which is skirted by the Michigan Central railroad the entire length. About one-half of the ice in the lake has disappeared, but the large field still left in the lake is being shifted by the changing winds, and should a strong east wind spring up it is feared that some of the cottages may suffer in consequence. The Michigan Central is hauling large quantities of cinders from every available point and dumping them along the lake to protect the track. The trains in passing Mullet lake are restricted to 20 miles an hour to avoid the possibility of an accident.

J. Leahy, the Optometrist will be at the Hotel Charlevoix, Wednesday May 3rd, one day only. At Central Lake May 4th. 1922.

MICHIGAN WOOL CLEANER THAN 1920

First Wool Pooling Establish New Records

First wool pooling, by the State Farm Bureau at Charlotte, Eaton county, and St. Johns, Clinton county, last week established new records for the general cleanliness of Michigan wool, said the bureau. In 14,000 pounds pooled at both points there was less than five per cent of rejects. In 1920 the first pool showed better than 22 per cent discount wool for the state; by 1921 educational features of the pool had cut that figure to 14 per cent. Fourteen Thousand Michigan wool growers saw their clips graded in the local pooling campaign of 1921, and the 1922 pool is showing less than five per cent rejects, or discount to date, the bureau said.

The big pooling campaign opens May 1, when grading teams begin visiting 75 to 100 local pooling points throughout the state's wool producing sections. The pool is making a forty per cent cash advance on the value of the graded wool.

The American Farm Bureau has just published figures from 22 wool pooling states saying that in 1921 co-operative pooling and marketing of wool paid growers $1,013,000 over other sales channels. The bureau said 45,246 growers pooled 22,298,856 pounds of wool. It sold at an average gross price of 25c a pound 20.7 cents average net to grower. Average marketing cost for the 22 pools, exclusive of freight and wool pooling association charges, was 2.865 cents a pound. The average price offered by buyers the country over at shearing time was 16.1 cents a pound. The wool pools netted the grower 20.7 cents a pound, said the report.

A storehouse amputeurehouse mounted on a standard is placed immediately within the main entrance of the church. The storehouse plan is to bring the whole tithe into the storehouse permitting it to be distributed on the basis decided upon by the association. One is a member of the storehouse association when he brings the whole tithe in. We have now an enrollment of seventy-six titheers twenty three of which are storehouse. On May 7th Dr. Charles W. MacKenzie of Grand Rapids, will give the morning address. His special theme will be "Storehouse."

The membership of our church is showing a splendid increase. The Fourth Quarterly Conference held last August reported 337 members. A typographical error in the conference minutes of September reported us 373 members. So large has been our increase since, that we have not only overcome the above referred to error but have added ten besides and also now have twenty-six to be received. All this is due to the fine cooperation on the part of our entire constituency. The Quarterly Conference for the third quarter is to be held at Barnard this Wednesday night. Sufficient machines are provided to take the twenty-six members from here out there. Dr. Robert J. Slee, superintendent of Grand Traverse District will be present and preside. The Barnard church is making this a special social occasion and those of us who have been there before know it will be second to none. All heads of departments are requested to be ready with their reports.

Superintendent Slee will hold Quarterly Conference and Quarterly meeting at the Indian Mission this Wednesday afternoon. Returning here he will meet the pastors of the Charlevoix group. Rev. T. W. H. Marshall of East Jordan, Rev. H. L. Rod of Bellaire, Rev. E. E. Clark of Ellsworth, Rev. Phillip Howe of Indian Mission and the local pastor.

NEW AUXILIARY LIGHT PLANT NEAR COMPLETION

Latest Municipal Addition Marks Progressiveness of People of Charlevoix

The days are now numbered until the time that the new Charlevoix auxiliary lighting plant will be ready to take up its duties of supplying this city with light and power. Light and power to be used to any extent; a system that can be depended upon to meet any demand put upon it and to respond to any emergency, also one that will handle the continued growth of the city.

They say history repeats itself, but this case is the exception. When before has the city had a source of light and power beyond reproach. It has been the goal of many attempts, but never before has the desired objective been reached. It may well go down in city history as one of the most vital examples of progress.

The plant itself is one to be proud of. Few cities in the state can boast of as well equipped, beautifully constructed power plant. For those who have not followed its growth, it may be well to give a short description of our latest achievement. The site chosen could not be bettered. Directly on the railroad, fuel and materials may be handled with a minimum of expense and effort. The plant is constructed of reinforced concrete with an exterior of red brick and Kelly stone. Living quarters consisting of six rooms, modern in every respect, furnish comfortable quarters for the resident engineer.

The equipment is the best obtainable. Two Sterling boilers furnish 500 h. p. with two Skinner uniflowers developing 300 h. p. each. The generators were built by the General Electric Company, and have a capacity of 480 K. V. A. The switchboard was also constructed by the same company and is one of the most complete in northern Michigan.

The construction work has been carried on under the supervision of Clarence N. Bridge, superintendent of light and water, and each step has been carefully followed by the city council and each detail worked out fully. Neil Kemp has been engaged as resident engineer and will make his home in the living quarters at the plant. Work began in September, 1921, and will be entirely completed during the month of May.

With the completion of this plant the worries of city officials in this regard are over. The heavy loads which came every summer in the past were a night mare. Now it will be welcomed and will only mean a larger revenue from this source. With the combination of water and steam, the city not only has an excellent system but also an economical one. Bellare water power will easily handle this city during the winter months at the lowest possible cost, and when the summer drive

TIME TO CLEAN UP AROUND THE HOME

The raking of lawns, clearing off gardens and burning the accumulated rubbish or carting it away is the general order of these days. Numerous piles of tin can and rubbish have been taken care of by the city teams, but many property owners have failed to attend to this most important duty. "Make and Keep the City Beautiful" should be the motto of all. The tourist judges a city by the manner in which its citizens keep up their property and its neat appearance. This is why the term "Charlevoix the Beautiful" is used and known everywhere. Help make it a reality.

When spring arrives in this north latitude she casts aside her winter garb, dons the emerald hues and announces in an unmistakable voice she has come to stay. She brings with her her great orchestra of birds, whose notes fill the air with the harmony of delightful sounds, proclaiming her presence. She commands the ice to depart, the grass to start, the flowers to come forth and show their lovely colors, the sun to shine and warm the earth, and they obey. There are no words that adequately express the joy, the gladness, the return of cheer and renewed energy that enters into the lives of the dwellers of this region when this loved, most welcome season of the year is again with them.

comes, the new plant will handle the situation.

There is no question as to whether the program being carried out, bettering public utilities, is the right thing. Conditions had developed to a point where something most radical had to be done to satisfy public demand. It has been done, and the result will make itself felt in the response that the resort public will make, in the way of new business. That an increase in business will follow this work is beyond doubt. Success comes to those who are ready to receive it and Charlevoix has prepared herself and is ready.

THIEVES MAKE WAY WITH VALUABLE SEED

Charlevoix Co-Ops. Visited by Night
Prowlers

Thieves entered the elevator of Charlevoix Co-Operative association last Thursday night and made their escape with seed valued at about $100.

Entrance was made by taking a pane of window glass out and enter the elevator through the window. About 150 pounds of Grimm alfalfa, some common alfalfa, and a bag of medium clover seed was stolen.

To date no trace of the thieves has been found, but every effort is being made to arrest the culprits, and place them in custody.

TOURIST HINTS FROM COLORADO

DENVER TOURIST BUREAU
URGES KINDLY TREATMENT

Tells Some of Things Necessary to Make Travelers Come Back for Another Visit

The Tourist bureau of the Denver City Commercial association has sent out suggestions of interest to Charlevoix and other resort cities in Michigan.

Denver is one of the cities that is thought to have profited more than any other community of the country through summer resort travel. Newspaper advertising has been the key of Denver's success.

At Grand Rapids recently, it was stated by the representative of the Denver bureau that the gain to his home city had during the past two years been equal to a permanent population of more than 5,000 people.

It is expected this year, commencing with May 1, that Denver's automobile tourist camps will include not less than 10,000 people every night to November 1.

Suggestions to the people of Denver and to those who have to do with tourist camps elsewhere include the following:

A tourist's sense of appreciation is as keen riding in a flivver as in a railroad observation car, so clean up and paint up your town.

Appointment committees to greet tourists and to hand them literature pertaining to your district and regarding side trips.

Encourage an exchange of camp fire tales of adventure and see that tourists are supplied with church and amusement directories.

See to it that camp facilities are conveniently provided and have the tourist feel that you're expecting him and glad to have him come.

Remember that the tourist of today may be the citizen of tomorrow.

SPORTSMEN'S BANQUET HELD AT PETOSKEY

Three Hundred Attended Second Annual Gathering

Northern Michigan sportsmen 300 hundred strong gathered at Petoskey last Thursday night, to attend the second annual congress of sportsmen, held under the auspices of the Petoskey Rod and Gun club.

Prominent speakers from all parts of the state were present, and a strong plea for the preservation and advancement of fish, game and state forests, was made to those present. The importance of fire protection was most emphatically brought out, as a means of preservation. The re-stocking of Michigan's trout streams also received considerable attention. Eight Charlevoix nimrods attended the banquet and reported a very pleasant and interesting evening.

WILL STRIVE TO BE RESORT WITHOUT A FLAW

The vote of confidence which the people gave the City Council in the water works extension matter should be very gratifying to the members of that body. It has become very evident that the people were satisfied that the difficulties of the situation had been handled by their agents and servants in a careful and safe way. It now remains for the Council to proceed with all possible dispatch to carry out the directions of the people. There are many details to be worked out with the object of making every possible saving consistent with good construction.

We have been informed that a number of prospective summer visitors have withheld reservations, and the making of final plans for the season's vacation pending advice regarding water developments. Of course, we have no means of knowing how extensive this holdback has been, or whether the water condition has been the only and real reason for it, but it is clear enough now, or at least should be, in the minds of any who are holding back that no further occasion for anxiety exists.

The present plans of the council contemplate a completion of the work by June 15th, or at latest by July 1st. Pending this work, our present supply of water can be used with perfect safety. We have been using it freely and it testifies in its raw state. It is convincing proof to know that not a single case of typhoid or any other contagious disease has occurred in this city at any time. We are the healthiest community in Michigan, or any other state for that matter, and if we desired to move to a place that would be an improvement, we wouldn't know where to find it. Why any person should hesitate now, is beyond our comprehension.

We are going to say now the thing we have believed all along and that is that Charlevoix has been slandered and libeled by interests and influences more or less hostile; about long enough. It is time that we stood up and gave the direct lie to those whose hostility or jealousy prompted them to knock, and attempt to injure a neighbor. All these things react in time and some people should have sense enough to realize it.

A careful canvas of the situation is very re-assuring. We find that all but a few cottages available for leasing have been reserved and that the hotel and boarding-house reservations are being rapidly taken. We predict that Charlevoix will have its usual quota of summer visitors the coming season, if not the most successful of its history. There are sufficient reasons for this. We have the inducements, and they are too well known to require repeating. Doubtless there will be quite a number of the over-tired, super-sensitive, scary-minded type who will hang back and go elsewhere for a season, but they will come back and take a mouthful of the water that never yet did them any harm, and fill their chests with some of the ozone which has always acted upon them like the elixir of life and sent them home to Chicago and elsewhere, prepared to withstand eight or nine months of smoke and river water and a thousand other things we know nothing of.

All that is necessary is for them to compare the pale, anaemic child who comes here in June with the ruddy boy or girl who goes back in September, tanned and hard-boiled inside and out.

All they need is to see our old friend Alvin Goldman when he first arrives, with hardly muscle enough to crank the engine in his old fishing boat. And then see him in the fall after he has roughed it three months and filled his hide with Charlevoix water, air and fish, tanned brown as an Indian and with pep enough to lick half the men in St. Louis.

Then there is our booster friend John Wineman, whom everyone knows from here to there by the number of fish he catches—and don't catch. He shows up here early each season dragging his hind foot, and with a hitch in his walk like Lazarus. Before he leaves in the fall, just ahead of the first snowstorm, he has drunk so much Charlevoix water and soaked in so much Charlevoix air that he wants to do five men's work and even tries to get on the police force so as to arrest speeders. All this comes from environment and location.

Why there is nothing to it.

Now, we are not silly enough to have the idea that the presence of our Summer visitors is the one and only joy of our lives here in Charlevoix. Neither do we believe they are our stock in trade. Some of these visitors have the notion that they constitute an industry in our midst which must be fostered and subsidized the same as a community would a canning factory. This is not true. The Creator made this place, along with some others, and we propose to make it a fit place to live in, just a little better than some other place perhaps. There is room for all of us, and we will shove along and make room for everybody even though they stay only a short time. If the 18th amendment, or any other thing, makes it desirable to have a little more and a little better water, why we will get it, both for ourselves and the others.

We guess that is about all there is to it, so come up and see us and find out for yourselves. The only other observation we would make just at present is, that it is a pity we do not have a law making it a felony and a sin to drink Charlevoix water—then everybody would drink it to excess.

FARM BARN AND CONTENTS BURN

Fire Destroys Old Land Mark on Sneathen Farm

The big barn and silo on the Frank Sneathen farm, south of Charlevoix in Hayes township, was burned to the ground about four o'clock Friday afternoon, the fire starting from an unknown origin.

The fire started while Lee Sneathen, who was living on the farm, was on his way to Petoskey with his wife, who had been ill for some time and was being taken to the hospital for treatment.

Only the small children of Mr. and Mrs. Sneathen were at home and before neighbors could arrive, the barn, two team of horses, seven head of cattle, about three hundred bushel of seed and grain and nearly all of the farm implements were burned. About $2,000 worth of beans owned by Frank Sneathen, which were stored in the barn, were burned.

The barn was valued at $6,000 and the silo at $200, insured at $3,100. Lee Sneathen's loss will amount to over $2,500, with about one-half insurance.

The loss is a hard one for Mr. Sneathen, especially at this time of the year when the spring work is about to start.

SOME NEW RULES FOR FISHERMEN

THAT MUST BE OBSERVED BY ALL ANGLERS

Numerous Changes in Size of Fish Lawful to Catch and Number in Your Possession

The hook and line season for fishing opened Monday. Not only from all over this section, but from outside the state also, fishermen will seek their favorite streams and lakes for their annual spring sport.

The department of conservation has prepared placards setting forth a digest of the fishing laws of the state and, for the benefit of those who are interested, they are here reprinted.

All non-residents over eighteen years of age must have a license to fish with hook and line in all waters within the jurisdiction of the state, including the great lakes, their harbors, bays and connections. The fee for general license, permitting the holder to take all kinds of fish, is $4.00; for a special license, permitting the holder to take all kinds of fish except trout, $2.00.

It is unlawful to take any kind of fish in inland waters of this state in any manner except by hook and line, excepting during the month of January and February each year; all kinds of fish except brook trout and bass may be speared in the inland waters of the state, and during the months of December, January, February and March the use of not more than five ice lines is permitted for the taking of fish, excepting brook trout and bass.

It is unlawful to buy, sell or attempt to buy and sell, any brook trout, large or small mouth black bass, calico bass, sturgeon, blue-gills, sunfish, rock bass, wall-eyed pike or emperors. Perch over nine inches in length may be commercialized.

Open season on brook trout, May 1st to September 1st inclusive. Legal size—seven inches in length excepting North Branch of AuSable river—legal size eight inches. Limit—twenty in possession at one time on stream; forty in possession at one time away from stream. Unlawful to ship by express, or in any other manner. Must be carried as open hand baggage.

INSTALL BOOSTER SPIRIT AT HOME

TOWN SOLD TO ITSELF IS BOUND TO SUCCEED

Delivering Goods Necessary to Keep Confidence of Visitors and Uphold Reputation

Inasmuch as a goodly share of this publication has been given to material betterments in the city and its new improvements, most of which has been dictated to our prospective summer visitors, its seems to be a most opportune time to add a few suggestions for the use and benefit of our Charlevoix citizens and business men, which if properly absorbed will later make themselves evident in increased civic pride and good old fashion "booster spirit."

Every town must sell itself. It must conscientiously or unconsciously set forth its advantages to the public in some obvious way, so that people will want to live in it and do business with it. This statement is true of every city, it is true of Charlevoix.

But no town is better than the people who inhabit it. The town is its inhabitants personified and will always be what the people make it. The first thing a town has to do is to sell itself to its own citizens. It is a mistake, made by many towns, that they, lacking confidence in their own town as it is, hope to sell it to outsiders thereby making it good. It can't be done. A town must be sold at home first. A booster at home is worth ten away.

If a town is not sold to itself it is usually run down. Repairs and painting are neglected. Building is at a standstill; there is no civic pride and the people fight like dogs for the dwindling business. Citizens who let their town run down in this way are bound to pay the penalty. Their lack of confidence and lack of enterprise is reflected in low real estate values. They lose the respect of their neighboring towns and the support of the surrounding country.

When a town is sold to its own citizens it handsomes up. They pave it, paint it, build it, repair it and provide it with adequate buildings and proper utilities. Being proud of it they make it presentable and worth living in.

Ever sign points to the fact that Charlevoix citizens are sold in their town and are proud of it. They are displaying this spirit more and more and this fact is beginning to show and is making itself felt not only at home but where ever there are people who are interested in Charlevoix or what it represents.

People in other cities read the papers and see that the citizens of Charlevoix are up and doing. They are planning on spending a vacation during the summer and want a town which is fair, square and does the right thing by itself and the people who come to visit it. Charlevoix appears to them to be that kind of a town and they decide to come here.

But if they come and are disappointed and find that Charlevoix has been misrepresented, that all of the desirable qualities are missing, they will never come again and will influence their friends not to come.

So the town must sell itself to be successful and to sell itself it must deliver the goods. A town sold to itself always has the goods to deliver. Let's get together and do a little more selling here at home.

Circulation counts—we have it.

INSTALL BRACKET STREET LIGHTING

Several street lights of the bracket type have been installed on Bridge street between Park avenue and Clinton streets, and the city council has approved the purchase of 30 additional fixtures to light the remainder of the street. The marked contrast between this system of lighting and the old, is certainly remarkable.

Instead of the blinding glare of the old corner lights there is now an even, brilliant light, completely illuminating the entire street eliminating all dark corners and providing the equivalent to daylight over the main street.

This type of light not only provides excellent light but is also attractive and adds to the appearance of the thoroughfare. Neatly tucked away on each side of the street the fixtures are inconspicuous during the day, and at night their soft glow is a pleasing sight.

One woman writes:

"A domestic science teacher said it was the lightest cake she had ever tasted or seen—but remarked that I used at least six eggs in every cake. She wouldn't believe I used only two—until I showed her exactly how I made it. Now she uses nothing but Royal."

FRIDAY, MAY 5 IS ARBOR DAY

Governor Sets Aside Day By Official Proclamation

Fifty years ago the State of Nebraska instituted the observance of a day set apart for tree planting. This day was known as Arbor Day, and its observance has become general throughout the nation. It is a day of sentiment, reverence and faith—sentiment in the acknowledgment of the tender susceptibility of man toward all the living things of the outdoors; reverence inspired within us by the sturdiness of the oak, the majesty of the pine, the beauty of the elm and the splendor of the leaf bearing branches of the maple with its seasons of changing color and form; a well grounded faith in the productive energy of nature's generous creative forces.

To us of Michigan, Arbor Day is of particular significance. Time was when our forests outshone in splendor and magnificence those of any other State. Today, through the utilization of this natural product and the devastation wrought by forest fires, these forests have to a large extent disappeared, though we still have many thousands of acres of beautiful forest land.

Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in me as Governor of the State of Michigan, I do hereby designate Friday, May Fifth, 1922, as Arbor Day, and I request that exercises appropriate to the day be held in all our schools.

Alex J. Groesbeck, Governor.

Must Display Proper Lights

An active campaign against horse-drawn vehicles which fail to show a light while traveling along village and city streets or state highways, will be started immediately by Sheriff C. E. Taylor of Grand Traverse county. The same thing holds true of those drivers of either horse-drawn or motor vehicles who park along trunk line highways without a proper display of lights. A new law was enacted in 1921 which makes it necessary for every driver or owner of a horse-drawn vehicle to show a light from one hour after sunset to one hour before sunrise.—Traverse City Record-Eagle.

Fishing Industry in Full Swing

Cheboygan's fishing industry will soon be in full swing. The first car lot shipment of fish to New York markets went forward by express today and came principally from A. D. Shawl's fishery at Drummond Island, being brought here by his tugs most of which are now in commission. The fish now being brought in are principally what are called by those engaged in the business as rough fish and find ready markets in the east.—Cheboygan Tribune.

Boys Narrowly Escape Death

While remodeling the new Eastport garage recently, a large hole was dug near the building to get dirt to make the necessary approach. Last Saturday morning three of the young lads of that place; Forrest Kaufman, Perry McPherson and Arnold Addington decided to dig a cave in the excavation. The Addington boy, after helping to dig for a short time went in search of more tools, and upon returning discovered that the cave had collapsed, burying both of his companions. The alarm was given at once and the rescue began. Perry was the first to be found, Forrest being in the cave the farthest had four feet

AT THE MOVIES

When "The Old Nest" comes to the Palace Theatre on Saturday and Sunday, the people of Charlevoix will have a chance to see a picture that has been hailed by critics and reviewers as the most satisfying all-American picture that has yet been produced. The theme, that of a mother who sees her six children leave her, one by one, is common to American families. All the poignancy of feeling that these leave-takings arouse in real life have been caught on the screen.

Rupert Hughes is the author of this unusual tale of mother love. He has sought to present a cross-section of a universal theme as applied to an American family. All the joys and sorrows connected with raising a family have been dramatized. Each of the children grow to manhood or womanhood with their own individual interests, then leaves the old nest to follow the call of his desires. Only their mother is left to her loneliness and her memories. But, as in every American family the young member the old nest and return to it.

The picture was produced by Goldwyn and was directed by Reginald Parker. Mary Alden plays the old mother, and her performance has been said to be masterpiece of screen acting.

About Some of Bingham's Birds

I noticed in Mr. C. A. Bingham's remarks about the value of birds to the farmer and fruit grower, that he puts a halo of virtue and righteousness around the sparrow and crow which would be misleading to persons not knowing the real nature of these birds, who by destroying the eggs and young of really useful birds, do more harm than good even if they did no other damage.

I know that a crow will joyously hack to pieces any unlucky toad he happens to meet, and the toad is about as useful to make away with insects as many of the birds that are more stylishly dressed, and after the crow has killed a few toads and eaten eggs or young of a number of good birds, he has done more harm than he can do good if he works overtime.

The sparrow is also a destroyer of nests. No wren is safe in making its nest where there are sparrows unless provided with an entrance of not over an inch and a quarter, and a wren with its song and growing at me when I go near the house that was built for it is preferable to a lot of screeching sparrows.

The black bird is classed as a pest by the agricultural department, and I have been told they rob other bird's nests.

From the standpoint of the farmer who grows no small fruit, the robin is probably a helper, but it seems to me Mr. Bingham does some exaggerated minimizing when telling how little fruit it takes to satisfy them. They seem to have developed a taste for fruits that they formerly let alone. A correspondent writing to the "American Fruit Grower" about black berry growing said last summer the robins and eat birds took his crop as fast as they got ripe. They took mine last year the same way, but I only had a small bearing patch.

I believe in helping the good birds, but think it a mistake to protect the pirates. E. H. Newman.

Four Reasons for Gardner Supremacy

(1) The Gardner Car is backed by more than forty years of successful manufacturing experience—and its makers have a present financial position of over half a million dollars cash in bank—and no debts.

(2) One year ago the Gardner at $1265 was known and sought out as a 'big value' car. Today it's a greater Gardner—with fully $200 additional value built into it, at practically $400 less than last year's price. It's the "buy" of the business at $895.

(3) And Gardner's the only car that's covered by a Written One-Year Guarantee—what better way to win public confidence?

(4) A liberal dealer contract, fully backed up by the factory's advertising, co-operation and team work. What other car, in any price class, gives its dealers such advantages.

THE JAZZ ANDITOTE

Jazz music, imported from the underworld dives of Buenos Aires, began to sweep America in 1913. Sailors brought it into New Orleans. It spread up the Mississippi river. Negro roustabouts on the levees chanted new varieties of jazz "blues." Tramps in their camps, which they call jungles, caught the infection. They called jazz "snowbird music." "Snow" being the underworld name for cocaine and a "snowbird" meaning dope fiend. Infectiously the epidemic of jazz spread over the country, evolving from jazz melodies to a form of jazz life characterized by fatalism, indifference, recklessness and immorality. Simultaneously, the jazz germ swept Europe. In "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" you read Ibanez's fine description of France being worked to a high pitch of jazz emotionalism. Psychiatrists recognized the jazz epidemic as one of the peculiar waves of social neurasthenia, or hysteria which periodically sweep countries or even the whole world. The tango craze was one of these psychic epidemics. The international wave of social hysteria culminated in the world war violent international insanity.

The reaction is on. The world sobers. Nerves calm slowly down. People are becoming normal again. During the jazz epidemic there has been a lot of worrying about young America. Youth in general seemed to have gone on a tangent of wild prodigality. One morning the country woke up and was amazed to learn that the youngsters had gone crazy on wireless. The radiophone had corrupted juvenile enthusiasm. The wireless craze has developed far enough to show that it's going to be the most powerful antidote against jazz. The lad who is tinkering with Hertzian waves has his feet on the ground, is thinking clean thoughts, training his brains, soaking up useful knowledge.

The wireless fan is vaccinated against jazz just as boys of a generation ago were kept in a healthy, normal mental state of playing Indian building shanties, collecting bones and old junk in alleys, listening to street fakers, staging amateur minstrel shows, stringing toy telegraphs.

We are a foolish lot of sheep, we humans. But a kindly providence shepherds us, bringing us back to the fold when we stray too far from normal.

COVERS WERE LAID FOR 170 GUESTS

At Mother's and Daughter's Banquet
Wednesday Evening

Covers were laid for one hundred and seventy guests at the Mothers' and Daughters' Banquet held in the dining rooms of the Congregational church Wednesday evening, April 26th.

The rooms were tastefully decorated in green ferns and boughs, while carnations at the individual places at the tables and fern, constituted the favors of the evening. The supper was served at 7 o'clock, following an offering of Thanks by Mrs. H. S. Harsha—the entire serving, cooking and decorations being the work of the Men's Booster Club of the city.

The toastmistress' address by Mrs. Herschel Miller, was followed by "Our Daughters" by Mrs. R. B. Armstrong; then "Our Mothers"—Eleanor Kelderhouae; Vocal solo, Mrs. Archie Livingston; "Our Husbands and Sons" Mrs. Rollie Lewis; "Our Church," Mrs. E. E. Cross; Reading, Miss Florence Maddaugh, while a piano solo by Mrs. A. A. Swinton and Mrs. Pearl Partridge completed the program.

The Club of men is to congratulate upon the success of the evening. An efficient cook in the kitchen supplied the waiters without long delays, the entire number being served in an hour.

B. Y. P. U. NOTES

Monday, April 24, proved to be a great day for us. Rev. Morgan L. Williams, director of Religious Education for Michigan, was with us in the afternoon and evening. At four o'clock, a goodly number of our Society listened to a very interesting and instructive address. Rev. Williams gave us a great deal of encouragement and we hope to carry out a strong evangelistic program this summer. In the evening about twenty-five of the Petoskey B. Y. P. U. came over for supper and remained for a Rally in the evening. Yells were exchanged and everyone became acquainted with his neighbor. About eight-thirty a very enthusiastic service was held. Rev. Rice welcomed the visitors, and following his address, Rev. E. J. Parsons of Petoskey, and Neil Munger, president of the Petoskey B. Y. P. U. gave short addresses. Rev. Williams then gave a very inspiring and impressive address on the possibilities and opportunities of youth in Christian service.

This was the first B. Y. P. U. Rally to be held in the Grand Traverse Baptist Association, but we hope it shall not be the last and we hope it shall lead to a greater interest and increased enthusiasm throughout the different societies of the Association.

We feel that our Society has gained much and we expect to do greater things for the Master.

We hope to have Rev. Williams

We had an interesting meeting last Sunday evening, under the leadership of Mrs. W. E. Hadsell. There were about twenty-eight present. Were you one of them? If not, why not?

Next Sunday evening we will discuss the topic: "Better Sabbath-Keeping"—Jeremiah 17:19-27. Miss Margaret Lennis will lead.

The topic is a live one at the present time. If you were told that you must decide tonight how you would spend ten solid years of your life, would you stop to think? Would you consider it an important question? A person who has lived to the age of seventy years, has had ten solid years of Sunday. It is an important matter how he spent those Sundays for they represent one-seventh of all his life.

On Thursday evening at seven-thirty the B. Y. P. U. prayer meeting meets. Lets everyone who possibly can, be present.

"He made the Sabbath shine before The work day and the care, And set above its golden door The messenger of prayer."

"Take the Sunday with you through the week And sweeten with all the other days."

NEW PALACE THEATRE

Especially Good Attractions For This Week

COMING TWO DAYS ONLY — NEXT SATURDAY AND SUNDAY. — A MOST REMARKABLE PICTURE.

"THE OLD NEST" is life. It is the Comedie Humaine. The Great Gripping, absorbing drama of the actual. All the people in this are alive. Hughes has taken down one wall of the American home of today and you walk in and know the family. It is of the mother, the father and the children. The trinity of the same plot a hundred million Americans are playing. A story so simple and so direct, and so human and so deeply tender must win for itself a lasting success.

"The Old Nest" will appeal to anybody who ever had a mother—and most people have. It is real and touching and almost incredibly without an atom of false sentiment really worth while. Added attraction—Al. St. John in a two reel Sunshine comedy "The Happy Pest."
